Congress Spends $32,800,000,000, All-Time Record

Passes Supply Bills Exceeding 4 Billions In Last-Minute Rush Before New Year

$54,183,106 for D. C.

A $54,183,106 DISTRICT appropriation bill was ready for President Roosevelt's signature last night after the House, by the margin of six votes, accepted a Senate amendment to continue granting free tuition to children of nonresidents of the District. Story on Page 15.

Record Spending Spree

Congress yesterday completed action on appropriation bills totaling $4,300,000,000 and recessed more than an hour before the new fiscal year began at midnight.

When the annual last-minute log-jam of money bills had been broken, the House and Senate had set an all-time record for 12 months of spending. Appropriations passed during the fiscal year 1941 total $32,800,000,000, about $8,000,000,000 more than the figure for the fiscal year 1919.

Conferees worked more than 12 hours yesterday adjusting differences between the House and Senate versions of the 6 major supply bills in the legislative mill, while the two chambers took turns acting on the conference reports.

Smallest WPA Bill

The House recessed at 10:31 p. m. and the Senate finished its work 13 minutes later.

Bills approved yesterday include:

A $1,195,000,000 outlay for the Labor Department and Federal Security Agency.

An appropriation of $1,060,300,000 for farm benefit payments and the Agriculture Department.

A $910,905,000 relief bill, smallest since creation of the WPA.

The $1,402,000,000 second deficiency bill, carrying supplemental items for a number of agencies and including nearly $500,000,000 for naval aircraft.

A $25,002,000 appropriation for operating the legislative branch of the Government during the next 12 months.

The $54,183,106 District of Columbia supply bill.

Wire-Tapping Voted Down

In intervals between disposition of appropriation bills the House found time to debate and vote down by 154 to 146 legislation to authorize wire-tapping by the Justice Department, and the Senate passed a bill giving the War and Navy Departments power to suppress prostitution within a "reasonable" distance of military establishments. An amendment authorizing the service departments to enforce prohibition within certain areas was defeated.

The Senate also completed action on legislation increasing from $1,400,000,000 to $2,650,000,000 the lending authority of the Commodity Credit Corporation.

A dispute over the period for which the life of the agency should be extended ended with acceptance of the Senate version, continuing the corporation for two more years, instead of five, as proposed by the House.

$212,000,000 for Parity

The Agriculture appropriation bill carries $500,000,000 for soil conservation and $212,000,000 for farm parity payments. In addition to the outright appropriations, the measure gives the department authority to borrow from the RFC a total of $270,000,000 for farm tenant and rehabilitation loans and for rural electrification.

There was little debate on the four "billion dollar" bills. The sharpest fight of the day centered on a $50,000,000 item for disposal of surplus commodities under the

House Group Votes $5 Tax On Auto Use

By Hedley Donovan
Post Staff Writer

The House Ways and Means Committee yesterday voted to impose an annual "use tax" of $5 on all automobiles in the country, estimated to yield $160,000,000, as the committee neared the end of its nine-week search for $3,500,000,000 in new revenue to finance the defense program.

To help pay for planes, tanks, and warships, the committee tentatively approved new or increased taxes on refrigerators, new automobiles, passenger travel, wine and liquor, radios and phonographs, sporting goods, luggage, bowling alleys, chewing gum and candy, matches and night club bills.

The excise taxes approved yesterday would yield $733,000,000 over present rates. Individual and corporate income taxes and estate and gift levies previously approved would bring in $2,582,000,000 more than existing schedules. This leaves the committee about $185,000,000 short of its $3,500,000,000 tax increase goal, with excise levies on a

750,000 Due To Register Today for Duty

Registration to Begin At 7 A. M. at 25 Schools For 21-Year-Olds Here

Selective Service organizations in the Capital and over the Nation were declared primed last night for the registration of an estimated 750,000 21-year-old Americans, new candidates for the Army.

Washington selection officials reported draft machinery ready for the go signal after checking facilities at 25 registration places in as many District schools.

This country's second peacetime registration day will get under way at 7 a. m. Before the 9 p. m. closing hour approximately 4,900 white men and 2,700 colored are expected to have recorded themselves as ready to don khaki.

That many of the men who register at 6,406 registration places today will see service soon appears likely. It is understood a system has been worked out whereby the new registrants will have their numbers integrated with those of older candidates on order lists, not merely added at the end of the list.

Thus many of the 21-year-olds, less likely than older registrants

O'Daniel Slashes Johnson's Lead In Texas Race

By the Associated Press

Dallas, Tex., June 30.—Gov. W. Lee O'Daniel pulled within 77 votes of Representative Lyndon Johnson as tabulation of the special United States Senatorial election neared completion tonight.

With 2,000 to 2,500 votes still out, Johnson had 173,548; O'Daniel, 173,471; Attorney General Gerald Mann, 139,547, and Representative Martin Dies, 79,985.

A plurality only was required for election to the seat vacated upon the death last April of Morris Sheppard. The term will run until January 1, 1943.

Spies Hound D. C. Police, Probers Told

'Gestapo' Reports To Brown, Captain Charges at Hearing Before House Group

By Robert De Vore
Post Staff Writer

A charge that a "Gestapo" squad of confidential informers spies on members of the Metropolitan Police Department and reports its findings to Maj. Ernest W. Brown, the superintendent, yesterday highlighted sensational disclosures before the House Police Investigation subcommittee.

The charge was made by Capt. Harvey G. Callahan, of the First Precinct, who according to testimony, is the only Washington policeman to have attended the Federal Bureau of Investigation training school.

With District Commissioner John Russell Young sitting alongside, drinking in every word and frequently encouraging him to continue, Capt. Callahan, veteran of 21 years experience in the department, told the subcommittee:

Appointed Secretly

"There has arisen within the department generally within the past few years an all too well founded suspicion that they are being made the subject of reports by a confidential squad of stool pigeons and informers who are spying on their activities, official and otherwise, and carrying back reports to the superintendent.

"Such a squad is usually composed of men who have passed the civil service tests for appointment, and have been confidentially appointed without the knowledge of other members of the department, beyond a very limited group. They have no experience and have no acquaintance with the duties of a policeman. They may, and frequently do, bring with them into the department certain prejudices against uniformed officers.

Brown Denies Charges

"They are instructed and indoctrinated with the idea of turning in reports allegedly setting forth misconduct on the part of other members of the force. They have no background whatever which would help them in determining whether or not certain actions on the part of, for instance, uniformed men are proper or improper."

Asked to comment on Capt. Callahan's charges, Maj. Ernest W. Brown, last night said "I don't agree with him. I feel he's badly misinformed."

Referring specifically to the assertion regarding the department "Gestapo," Brown said "there's no truth in this . . . there's no such set-up in the Police Department. He added he would tell the "true facts" when, as he expected, he would be called to testify before the investigating committee.

Inefficiency Alleged

Sometimes reading from a four-page prepared statement and sometimes talking extemporaneously, Capt. Callahan who came to the department after serving 27 months overseas during the last World War, also made these charges:

1. That "distrust, suspicion, jealousy and personal animosity"

2 Women Robbed Of $677 in Purses

Mrs. Mary Lou Shannon, a Bureau of Internal Revenue employe, who had saved $327 for her first vacation in 19 years, was robbed of her savings last night. A colored purse snatcher grabbed her pocketbook as she walked on R Street.

At the same time Ethel P. Clark, who also works at the Internal Revenue Bureau, told police that a purse containing $350 was taken from her home.

Now Is Time to Let Navy Drive Nazis Out of Atlantic—Knox; Reds Flee in North, Berlin Says

Defense Council Takes Over Rule Of Russia, Reds Admit Retreat

By the Associated Press

Moscow (Tuesday), July 1.—Russia has fallen back to a new battle line in the Lwow sector of the European-wide battleground because of a flanking threat from Hungary but the Red army is stubbornly and tenaciously resisting fierce attacks from Minsk to the Arctic Ocean, it was reported today.

It was announced that the Russian soldiers retreated from Lwow, in old Poland, in a delaying action since the entrance of Hungary into the war opened a possibility of a move to outflank that former Polish city and the western Ukraine.

Of German's claim that the Nazis have occupied Minsk, white Russian capital, 20 miles within the old Russian border and some 450 miles west of Moscow, the Russian communique merely said:

"In the direction of Minsk and Baranowicze, our forces are waging a tenacious fight with numerically superior mobile troops of the enemy, checking their advance at intermediate positions."

Locality Not Stated

The Germans have claimed their panzer units are thrusting beyond Minsk, but the communique gave no indication where the checking action occurred.

Russia went on an all-out basis at home as well as on the fighting front.

Because of the seriousness of the war situation, a defense council headed by Premier Josef Stalin was announced. It took over powers of the government and all Russians were told they must carry out the mandates of the committee.

The Russian communique dealt with the action by fronts.

Fierce Fight in Arctic

A fierce clash is in progress with German soldiers in the Murmansk area—the vicinity of Russia's far northern port on the Arctic—with the Germans suffering considerable losses.

The offensive launched Sunday along the Soviet-Finnish line was driven back by the Russian army, the war report said.

One German attack is aimed toward Leningrad through the Baltic States, and furious battles are being waged in the Vilna-Dvinsk area of old Lithuania and Latvia. Russian soldiers are "coun. ring the enemy's numerical superiority in this sector

Raining Bombs On Fleeing Foe In Baltic Area, Germans Report

By the Associated Press

Berlin (Tuesday), July 1.—The Luftwaffe showered tons of bombs upon hundreds of miles of struggling Russians retreating with all their machines on the Baltic front, and German and Rumanian troops reported making deep thrusts into the Ukraine where they found deserted devastation, the official German news agency said today.

Stuka dive bombers made northern roads impassable, inflicted bloody losses, destroyed eight bridges over which the retreating Russians had expected to pass and thoroughly attacked airdromes beyond captured Lwow, the D. N. B. review said.

An informed source added that in a grand scale air battle over the bridgehead of Dueneburg yesterday morning one German squadron downed 65 Russian planes. Dueneburg is 125 miles southeast of Riga in former Latvia.

250 Miles From Moscow

German armored and motorized forces, jabbing swiftly eastward, were reported within 250 miles of Moscow after the announced capture of Minsk, stubbornly defended capital of White Russia.

Minsk was declared firmly in German hands, but the Nazis admitted that the armored spearheads which thrust quickly on 200 miles toward the east had left many Russian troops behind them and that the country through which they sped could not be regarded as German-occupied.

[New York Times dispatch from Bern, Switzerland, said heavy German armored divisions through rapid counter-action by Russian infantry and artillery lost contact with their supporting lines. It is added that once behind the lines one whole tank regiment was wiped out as Russian artillery, using .75 millimeter antiaircraft guns at zero elevation, piled shell after shell into the oncoming tanks at point-blank range.]

400 Miles Beyond Border

To the south, the high command announced the capture of Lwow, Poland, which the Germans took in September, 1939, and handed over to the Russians, then their friends; and to the north the Latvian port of Libau was declared to be in German possession, with a Russian di-

8 Marines, 17 Nurses Saved In Torpedoing

Sinking of 'Foreign Ship' Confirmed; No Loss of Life Is Told

A Navy Department announcement yesterday gave official confirmation to reports that a foreign flag steamer, en route from New York to London with American marines and Red Cross nurses, was torpedoed and sunk "a few days ago."

The department said that eight marines were rescued, and the headquarters of the American Red Cross here said that all of 17 nurses on the ship were saved, six having already reached land.

In its terse statement, the Navy did not mention any loss of life among the marine contingent, w ch was being sent to the American Embassy to assist the American missions there. It did not comment on earlier reports that ten marines were in the group.

Although the Navy merely described the torpedoed ship as "a foreign flag steamer," it is understood it was a former Dutch ship operating in the Atlantic service of the British, and that it may have been the Maasdam of the Holland-American Line.

Nurses Aboard Ship

"There is no information as to the other passengers from the vessel," the Navy statement said, "but it is believed that other ships in the vicinity may have picked up survivors. Efforts are now being made to confirm at the earliest practicable opportunity information on the remainder of the passengers."

Sumner Welles, Undersecretary of State, made the disclosure that nurses as well as marines were on the sunken ship. He said at his press conference that the Navy was checking circumstances surrounding the torpedoing. Under the neutrality act, Americans are barred from traveling on ships owned by belligerents. However, Welles ex-

Spy Suspect Saw Bombsight Several Years

Norden Inspector Had Access to Closely Guarded U. S. Secret

By J. Norman Lodge
Associated Press Staff Writer

New York, June 30.—The United States' closely guarded military secret—the Norden bombsight—has for several years been examined by a man now charged with espionage, it was disclosed today as three more men were arrested in the Government's Nation-wide spy hunt.

The arrests brought the weekend total to 32. Seven of the 29 whose arrests were announced yesterday mumbled "guilty" when arraigned before United States Commissioner Martin C. Epstein in Brooklyn.

2 Stewards, Cook Seized

The Norden inspector, Herman Lang, 40, German-born draftsman, and Everett Minster Roeder, 47, employed in an important capacity in the Sperry Gyroscope factory, were among 18 defendants who pleaded innocent here, and were held for hearing July 15. Each was held in $25,000 bail, as were those who pleaded guilty. A defendant pleaded innocent in Detroit, another waived a removal hearing in Milwaukee and two others are still to be arraigned.

Shortly after the pleadings, J. Edgar Hoover, director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, announced the arrest of three seamen on charges of conspiracy to engage in espionage activities against the United States. The Government alleged they acted as couriers, aboard ship and ashore, in bearing and

Committee Backs Jackson Despite Tydings' Protest

Passing over the protest of Senator Tydings (Democrat), of Maryland, Senate Military Affairs Committee yesterday unanimously recommended Senate confirmation of Attorney General Robert H. Jackson as Associate Justice of the United States Supreme Court.

Tydings served notice he would continue the fight on the floor.

Tydings declared Jackson had been "derelict" for failure to prosecute two newspaper columnists, Drew Pearson and Robert S. Allen, whom the Senator alleged libeled him in charges that WPA labor had been used to improve the Senator's Maryland estate.

Measured Words

Secretary of the Navy Knox declared last night that "the time to use our Navy to clear the Atlantic of the German menace is at hand."

In an address before the thirty-third annual Governors' conference at Boston, Mass., made public here, the Navy head said that America can assure the ultimate defeat of Hitler by "clearing the path" for delivery of arms to Britain.

"Now is the time to strike," he said.

Knox began his speech, strongest yet made by a ranking Government official, with a declaration that he was speaking "out of a deep sense of my responsibility and as the civilian head of the American Navy." He said that under the present grave circumstances, he must "measure his words with care."

Believes Russia Can Hold

Contending that Russia can hold the Nazi military machine for "vital months in this crucial year," Secretary Knox said that "for the first time since Hitler loosed the dogs of war on the world, we are provided with a God-given chance to determine the outcome of this world-wide struggle."

"Now is the time to get into motion the huge machine we have been building since the war began," he continued.

Calling on the Nation to deal Hitler a "smashing blow," by stopping the sinking of ships carrying American-built planes and guns to Britain, Knox added:

"I would be derelict if I did not add that all of this involved risk and danger. It may involve sacrifice to the uttermost.

"Dangers Are Real"

"America must wake up, not alone to its danger—and the dangers are real and fearsome—but to the realities of the sacrifice demanded. We must, if need be, match with American tars, American toil, American sweat and American blood, the toil, the tears, the sweat, and the blood which Britain has gallantly spent to hold in check the devastating spread of Nazi power throughout the civilized world."

The Navy Secretary said that during the first five months of this year, 2,198,000 tons of shipping were sunk by German U-boats, planes and surface raiders, as follows: January, 309,731 tons; February, 339,833 tons; March, 505,750 tons; April, 581,251 tons, and May, 461,328 tons.

Pointing out that such losses were at an annual rate of 5,275,000 tons of ships, Knox said:

"We must remember that for every ship that we and the British are now building, three are being sunk.

R.A.F. Blasts Kiel by Daylight; U. S. Fliers Active Over Reich

By the Associated Press

London, June 30.—In a significant daylight raid, the R. A. F. today bombed docks at Kiel, seat of Germany's sea power in the Baltic, and followed up tonight with a destructive attack on a power station near Lens, France, 40 miles inland and south of Dunkerque.

During the Lens sweep, six German planes were shot down, the British reported, while one R. A. F. plane was lost.

On the home front, German raiders bombed a South Wales town for the first time in two months and attacked two other Welsh points. A number of high explosives damaged houses and injured a few people.

America and Americans were linked to the expanding aerial assault on Germany's Western Front.

The American Eagle Squadron, manned by volunteers from the United States, has been in the vanguard of fighter sweeps over the continent, informed sources said.

3,000 More Planes Ordered for Army

Contracts Total $800,000,000; Navy Also Strengthens Defenses

The War Department yesterday placed orders for airplanes, engines and equipment totaling more than $800,000,000 to add to an estimated 3,000 or more bombers and fighters to the Air Corps.

At the same time the Navy announced that the new naval air station at Dutch Harbor, in the Aleutian Islands, would be commissioned September 1, a major step in the Nation's efforts to strengthen the defenses of Alaska.

The base, which will also provide operating facilities for submarines and other light naval vessels, will be an important protective link in the area, now looked upon with increased importance because of the possibility that Germany may occupy Siberia and become our neighbor on the Bering Sea.

Comdr. William M. Updegraff will command the Dutch Harbor base. At the same time it was announced that new naval air stations at Midway Island in Pacific and Trinidad in the Caribbean, will be commissioned August 1. Comdr. Cyril T. Simard will be in command at Midway and Comdr. Arthur W. Radford, of 3226 Nineteenth Street Northwest, in charge at Trinidad.

Largest of yesterday's Army aircraft orders went to the Glenn L. Martin Nebraska Co. for production of medium bombers at the new Government owned assembly plant at Omaha. Chrysler Corporation, Hudson Motors and Goodyear Aircraft Corporation are the major subcontractors under the $166,261,526 contract.

North American Aviation received a $127,440,000 contract for assembling medium bombers at Kansas City, with General Motors as the principal subcontractor.

Speeding to get all available 1941 aircraft appropriations allocated before the close of the fiscal year, the War Department also placed a $89,075,000 contract with Chevrolet division of General Motors for aircraft engines and the following airplane orders: North American, Dallas, Tex., $57,725,572; Vultee, Downey, Calif., $31,619,280; Northrop Aircraft, Hawthorne, Calif., $16,287,184; Bell Aircraft, Buffalo, $15,885,081; Republic Aviation, Farmingdale, N. Y., $8,165,400; Douglas Aircraft, Santa Monica, $7,843,010; Lockheed Aircraft, Burbank, Calif., $2,797,947, and $7,809,597 to Curtiss-Wright, Buffalo for airplane maintenance parts.

A $12,309,930 contract for Link trainers was awarded to the Link Aviation Devices of Binghamton, N. Y., and letters of intent issued to expand aircraft production at three plants. Sperry Gyroscope Co. received a letter guaranteeing them reimbursement for $40,000,000; Ford Motor Co., $15,000,000, and Allis-Chalmers Co., $12,500,000 worth of aircraft tools and equipment.

At the same time, the Senate passed the following national defense bills and sent them back to the House for action on amendments:

Authorizing the President to appoint 9 additional vice admirals to command "special or unusual" naval units or missions.

Providing new airship bases costing $16,000,000, and directing the War Department to transfer Moffett Field, Calif. back to the Navy, and replace it with an Army air field costing $6,500,000.

Authorizing 13 large new cutters for the Coast Guard, 3 special ice-breaking craft for use in Greenland waters and 10 to replace those recently turned over to Great Britain.

Permitting unlimited temporary promotions in the Navy, Marine Corps and Coast Guard during the emergency.

The Senate also passed and sent to the House legislation making it a crime to make unauthorized photographs of naval stations, ships or equipment.

France Breaks With Soviet, Seizes Russians

Copyright by New York Times

Vichy, June 30.—The breaking of diplomatic relations of France with Russia today was accompanied by a general round-up of Russians of all categories in both zones of France.

All persons with Soviet passports whether Soviet citizens or white Russians were held for questioning and a general verification of identity was proceeding pending measures of internment believed to have been ordered against all active Communist agents or agitators.

Tonight the French Ministry of National Economy announced that all holdings in France either direct or indirect of persons of Russian nationality either resident here or abroad had been blocked.

The diplomatic break, it was said in official quarters, does not mean the participation of France in the conflict with Russia but, in addition to the departure of diplomatic representatives, it involves the closing of official Soviet representatives in France including the Tass News Agency which is considered to be an official organization.

The reason for the break with Russia, as given in the official communique, was that "the French government had acquired the certainty that diplomatic and consular agents of the Soviets in France were exercising an influence affecting the security of the state."

In government circles it was further explained the Soviet embassy here and the official Soviet representatives elsewhere had been known for a long time to be serving as centers of harmful propaganda and that it was certain that French Communist activities were being supported by funds dispensed from the Soviet officials.

It is stated here tonight that negotiations are in progress here and in Moscow to arrange for the repatriation of the representatives of the two countries.

The round-up of Russians in Vichy began early today. Cafes, hotels and public places were raided, and a general order was issued for Russians to report to the police. They were assembled—to the number of about 500 by evening—in the municipal stadium, and from there they were transferred to lodgings in hospitals and schools, where they will be kept pending the official investigation.

Russian Planes Downed

Helsinki, June 30 (INS).—The Finnish wireless announced tonight that 35 Russian planes have been shot down on Finnish territory since the new war in the East began.

vision closely surrounded in that Baltic sector.

In fact, the pursuit and roundup of Russians in that area has gone so far that there no longer is a true "front," Germans said.

A German military spokesman, reporting the capture of Minsk, intimated that the armored vanguard already had gone 200 miles eastward and was within sight of Smolensk—a dash clear across the white Russian Republic and nearly 400 miles from the nearest point of the German-Russian border as established in 1939.

These forces currently are engaged in gouging out a pocket around Red army troops in the Smolensk region, he said.

The high command added that the Nazi noose was being drawn steadily tighter around the two Russian armies which it said yesterday were surrounded east of Bialystock, Poland.

(Bialystock is about 350 mies west of Smolensk, the distance being indicative of the breathless speed with which the Nazi panzer apparently have pressed forward, staking their lives on the ability of their supporting infantry to catch up before the panzers themselves can be nipped off. The method appeared to be similar to that which conquered France a year ago, although on a vaster scale this time.)

Aim at Bottling Reds

The German military spokesman said the purpose of the fast panzer push is to prevent withdrawal of any great portion of the Russian army into the interior.

He said the entire region had roads running East and West but very few North and South. Therefore, he said, it obviously was to German interest to block the crossroads and strive to confuse the big Russian army in a succession of traffc jams.

This, along with a succession of swift encircling actions, was described as the first duty of the advance units.

Thus, it was declared, German strategists seek to avoid one of Napoleon's historic mistakes of 1812. He allowed large groups of Russian foes to filter off into inaccessible regions of the vast country. The German objective was described as the capture and destruction of the Russian army.

In this aim, the German Air Force was credited with a big part, closely cooperating with advancing troops on the ground. It concentrated its heaviest bombardments today in the Minsk sector.

The German people were told semiofficially that fewer Russian planes had been shot down Sunday and today because there are fewer of them.

It was said that the high command had been able to report destruction of more than 4,000 Russian planes in the seven days up to Sunday because in that week the cream of the Russian air force was concentrated on the German frontier and easily accessible to German attack.

Because of the unsuitable terrain, the Russians had only 150 to 200 airports along the border and these were crowded with planes, giving the German dive-bombers excellent targets, it was said.

The intimation was that the Germans knew in advance pretty well where every one of these fields was situated.

New York, June 30.—The Columbia Broadcasting System's News broadcasts from Berlin have been canceled by the German government, it was announced tonight.

Harry W. Flannery, chief of the C. B. S. Berlin bureau, telephoned to New York the news of the ban on broadcasting facilities which, he said, came as retaliation for remarks made last Thursday by Elmer Davis in New York, following a radio interview with P. G. Wodehouse. Wodehouse was recently released from an internment camp by the Nazis.

Flannery was permitted to give other news in his telephone report. He said the extraordinary refusal to allow broadcasts was subject to review by unnamed higher authorities. The ban may be lifted at any time, it was pointed out.

Dictatorship Assailed

In connection with the action of the German government, Paul W. White, Columbia's director of public affairs, issued the following statement:

"The Columbia Broadcasting System will submit to no foreign dictation as to its broadcasts in this country.

"We will not seek to please Germany in presenting the news over here as the price of being allowed to broadcast from Berlin. If the motive behind the German government's action is to compel us to color our analysis to its liking, that action has failed.

"When Flannery communicated the German decision to us, he was immediately instructed to make no compromise with the integrity of our news broadcasts in an effort to remain at his post. He was further instructed to make clear to the propaganda ministry that our broadcasts outside Germany and German-controlled territory were beyond the censorship of the Reich."

Publicity Value Stressed

In the Wodehouse radio interview, the English novelist said he did not mind being a prisoner of war since he had a suite at Berlin's famed Adlon Hotel at the expense of the Nazi government, and that he could come and go pretty much as he pleased.

In commenting on the interview, Elmer Davis pointed out that the German treatment of Wodehouse was somewhat different from that accorded other prisoners with less publicity value.

Battle Rages For Soviet Base At Hango

By the United Press

Helsinki, June 30.—A battle for the key Russian naval and military base of Hango in Southwest Finland raged with undiminished fury tonight.

Strongly entrenched Soviet forces fought desperately to retain the prize taken from the Finns a year ago.

The sound of heavy shelling clearly was audible in Helsinki, 75 miles away, and it appeared that the Finnish and German high commands were attempting to soften up the Russian positions with artillery before attempting an all-out land and sea assault.

The Russian positions, isolated except by sea, left them open to merciless air and artillery attack, but even so they were believed here to be strong enough to withstand even a combined land and sea attack for considerable time.

The Finnish high command, following the German model of complete silence until an action is completed or has reached a decisive stage, made no mention of the Hango fighting. Its communique, however, told of nine places in the Hango region bombed by Russian aircraft, indicating that the Red air force was attempting to relieve pressure on the garrison.

Russian air attacks also were aimed at points on or immediately behind the Finnish front in the East. Among them were Heintaevaara and Mulo, on the road from Joensuu to Vaertsilae and Sortavala in the region north and west of Lake Ladoga.

The accounts of the bombings were the only indications so far released by the Finns regarding any kind of military action in the East along the Soviet front.

Nazis Freeing French Sailors

Vichy, June 30.—Parties of sailors of the French navy, released from captivity in Germany, continue to arrive in the unoccupied zone.

The men arrive in all sorts of garb. They are given new uniforms and outfits after which they are told that they may go home for one month furlough at the end of which they are to report to their original ships. According to official announcements, the released sailors will be employed to complete crews of the merchant and fishing fleets.

Leningrad Defense Hastily Bolstered

with stubbornness and rapidity of maneuver," the communique said.

Major tank engagements are still under way in the Rowne district east of Luck, in old Poland, where one German spearhead apparently is aimed at the Ukraine capital, Kiev.

"All attempts by the enemy to break through to the East have been repulsed with heavy losses to the enemy . . . a considerable number of German tanks was destroyed," the war report added.

The Red navy has sunk two enemy submarines in the Baltic and one in the Black Sea, it was reported. The communique did not mention any air combats yesterday.

The home defense efforts of the Red government extended particularly to Leningrad.

All able-bodied men and women in Leningrad and the Leningrad district went to work yesterday as conscripts in building fortifications against repeated German-Finnish assaults.

In the new German-Finnish attempt to reach the city at the head of the Gulf of Finland, the invaders struck at frontier defenses on both sides of the Karelian Isthmus—in the Kakisalmi (Kexholm) sector with three infantry charges, and in the region of Viipuri (Viborg) on the Gulf of Finland with an attempt to land troops by sea.

Before Kakisalmi, an earlier Russian communique declared the Germans and their allies left 300 dead, and a Viipuri their landing party was smashed in its efforts to disembark. Both actions were only about 70 miles from Leningrad, Russia's second city.

Nazis Bomb New York, Lincolnshire, England

Copyright by New York Times

London, June 30.—German bombers last night dropped high explosives on New York. A few slates were knocked off a barn roof.

New York is a Lincolnshire hamlet of 300 inhabitants. During peacetime there was a famous signpost on the outskirts reading: "New York-Boston 7 miles."

Van Waggoner Calls Army, Navy Real "Bottleneck" in Defense Task

Roosevelt Urges Cooperation Upon State Governors

By the Associated Press

Boston, June 30.—President Roosevelt told the Thirty-third Annual Conference of the Governors of the United States today that "the days ahead are going to test our energy, our ingenuity and our statesmanship, and I know from past experience that America can depend upon the States to do their full part."

"The Governors' Conference meets at one of the most critical times of history," he said in a message read by Gov. Harold E. Stassen of Minnesota, chairman of the conference.

"Never," he continued, "was there a period when it was more imperative for all levels of government to cooperate fully for the safety of America."

A charge that the Army and Navy were responsible for "the real defense bottleneck," because of failure to let contracts "fast enough or large enough" was made by Gov. Murray D. Van Wagoner of Michigan at the same session.

Labor Disputes Hit

With cooperative action as their keynote, Gov. Van Wagoner, Gov. Herbert H. Lehman of New York and Gov. Frank M. Dixon of Alabama called upon the governors of other States to forget "business as usual" and to press for swift settlement of industrial-labor disputes so that America's capacity for defense production may match Hitler's mechanized forces.

"The Office of Production Management," declared Van Wagoner, "now has convinced the Army and Navy that there is no need to fear that industry will be confused if it is swamped with advance orders. The larger the backlog of unfilled contracts, the better American industry can plan and carry out a long-range program of subcontracting for speedy filling of orders."

All three governors discussed curtailment of defense production resulting from strikes.

"A new technique of enforcing labor demands by the violence inevitable in mass picketing, in defiance of the constitutional guarantees of the right to work without molestation," Dixon said, "has created a situation difficult to controll."

Appeasement "Hopeless"

Dixon told the governors that "we, as leaders of the people of the various States, must do our part finally to bring to our people the conviction of the dangers which face them of the hopelessness of a policy of appeasement, of a certainty of the ultimate loss of our free institutions should we falter on the way."

Malcolm MacDonald, high commissioner for the United Kingdom in Canada, declared that "if any mishaps were to cause us to lose the Battle of Britain, it would be followed by the Battle of America."

"It might be the Battle of South America first," he continued, "but the Battle of North America would follow afterward. Hitler with his usual cunning prevision, has already made some attempts to gain his bases for that battle in the French colonies of North and West Africa."

Board Seeks Truce in Naval Shipyard Row

By Alfred Friendly

The Defense Mediation Board yesterday appealed to 16,000 shipbuilding workers to postpone a strike threatened for tonight which would halt construction of 37 destroyers and five cruisers in the yards of the Federal Shipbuilding & Drydock Co., Kearny, N. J.

The dispute, certified to the board yesterday by the Secretary of Labor, arose from demands for a closed shop, vacation with pay, and union recognition of foremen and supervisors by the C. I. O. Marine and Shipyard Workers of America.

The mediation board's executive secretary, Ralph Seward, set hearings on the controversy for next Saturday.

The company holds $433,000,000 of Navy contracts, it was reported.

In other action during the day, the board gave the management of the North American Aviation Co. an additional 24 hours to answer board recommendations on the remaining issue in dispute with the C. I. O. United Auto Workers. The issue, it was reported reliably, concerns the union's demand for a closed shop. The board has recommended that a maintenance of union membership clause be accepted by the company.

Other controversial items, which led to the bitter strike last month at the company's Inglewood, Calif., factory, were settled by direct negotiation, board spokesmen reported. The agreement, it was learned, provides a 10-cent-an-hour general increase in wages, a 60-cent-an-hour minimum, with a 5-cent raise each month for three months, and a vacation of one week with pay.

Outside of Washington, the principal labor development was the return to work of 1,800 machinists in 11 San Francisco shipyards, after a strike of almost eight weeks.

The machinists will be covered by terms of the master wage agreement for Pacific Coast shipyards, and will work a 48-hour week, of which eight hours will be payable at time and one-half rates for overtime.

In a long editorial in the American Federationist, appearing today, A. F. of L. President William Green again announced his "unrelenting opposition to Communists" within the labor movement. By inference, Green assailed Philip Murray, C. I. O. president, who, "as head of the dual labor movement . . . is raising funds to defeat the deportation of Harry Bridges, the alien who has been disrupting unions on the West Coast."

U. S. Rationing Hinted; Price Control Is Hit

By the Associated Press

A cautious prediction that rationing of consumers' goods might be employed along with "drastic" price control measures to prevent inflation was made yesterday by Leon Henderson and Donald M. Nelson as Congressmen voiced new opposition to price-fixing by executive decree.

A score of Senators and Representatives at a special meeting adopted a resolution "that price-fixing should be postponed until a definite policy has been authorized by Congress, and if and when price-fixing is authorized, it shall also apply to processing costs and prices to the consumers."

The meeting was called by Chairman Smith (Democrat), South Carolina, of the Senate Agriculture Committee. Smith and other farm State Senators have vigorously criticized recent actions by Henderson as Federal price administrator which they view as hampering Congressional efforts to insure greater returns to farmers for their crops.

Henderson, and Nelson, purchasing director, collaborating on an article in the New Harvard Business Review, wrote that although "rationing is repugnant to us," it would provide a "direct clear-cut method by which limited quantities may be distributed equitably among those who need them."

Some persons might argue that rationing of automobile tires "would be desirable right now" because the Government has undertaken to build up a two-year reserve, they said, and the accumulation could be expedited by rationing while at the present time it will not be completed until February, 1944.

Furthermore, they noted, tea and silk could be rationed in order that shipping space in importing those commodities might be devoted to rubber, tin, tungsten and other vital defense commodities.

The defense officials expressed belief that "a certain minimum per capita consumption of the few basic commodities is essential to the national efficiency, and this minimum consumption may possibly only be insured by rationing."

"We do not want to have the available essential goods go only to those with the longer pocketbooks," they added.

Navy to Retire Adm. Courtney; Served 46 Years

Rear Admiral Charles E. Courtney, one of the Navy's oldest officers in point of years of active service, will be transferred to the retired list today, the Navy Department announced yesterday.

The officer, 64 yesterday, had served 46 years. He will be placed on the retired list with the rank of vice admiral, haying been especially commended by Secretary Knox for outstanding performance of duty in combat.

A native of Mobile County, Ala., Courtney participated in the Spanish-American War, the Philippine Insurrection and in the World War. In the latter he won the Navy Cross for duty as commander of the U. S. S. Rowan.

2 Union Leaders Accused in Racket

New York, June 30.—Five alleged racketeers and two leaders of two teamsters' unions arrested today on charges of extorting $2,500,000 from trucking concerns and independent wholesale milk dealers.

According to District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey, the men arrested controlled the shipping of milk by truck to New York City from up-State New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Vermont, as far as 30 independent milk trucking companies were concerned.

They are said to have used violence, threats, sabotage and pressure from two unions which they controlled, local 445 and unit 1 of local 584, of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, an American Federation of Labor affiliate.

Defense Hit As 'Chaotic' By C.I.O. Aide

By the Associated Press

James B. Carey, C. I. O. secretary, told a House Labor subcommittee yesterday the national defense program was being "chaotically administered."

Supporting a resolution by Representative Voorhes (Democrat), California) for a post-emergency advisory commission to study economic problems and guard against unemployment, the C. I. O. official said the Administration "has not seen fit" to call a conference on unemployment which his organization proposed two years ago.

"As a result of the tremendous volume of proposed arms expenditure, which now aggregates over $40,000,000,000, the problem of unemployment has tended to become obscured in some minds," he said. "The expenditure has led to the easy assumption that since production will be enormously expanded, unemployment must automatically disappear."

On the contrary, Carey added, large numbers of workers have lost their jobs because of what he termed "priority unemployment," that is, the closing of plants or curtailment of production of civilian consumer goods.

Meanwhile, an administration member of the House Military Committee protested against a committee report which asserted that "failure" of the Administration to appoint a "responsible head" had contributed to a serious deficiency in strategic materials for the defense program.

Representative Sparkman (Democrat), of Alabama, said that no committeeman was given a full copy and only its introduction and conclusions were presented before the members voted, 13 to 8, to approve it.

"As a matter of fact," Sparkman said, "the report was softened after the committee voted on it and before it was handed the press, apparently with the idea of forestalling a minority report."

As released, Sparkman said, the report contained some suggested amendments by Representative Smith (Democrat), of Connecticut, which Representative Faddis (Democrat), of Pennsylvania, chairman of a subcommittee which drafted it, had opposed before the full committee.

The report, which said that emphasis had been placed on "social reform rather than national security," declared "absence of a responsible head with authority and power" was responsible for "deficiencies we now are experiencing all along the line."

Civilians Must Cooperate, Says Defense Adviser

"We shall all be out on Pennsylvania Avenue doing the goose step if the civilians behind the lines do not cooperate completely with our armed forces," G. A. Parker, regional defense coordinator, last night told the Regional Advisory Council, opening a two-day conference here yesterday.

Parker is regional defense coordinator for the District, Maryland, North Carolina, Virginia and West Virginia. The council is composed of representatives of some 20 Federal agencies concerned with health, education, welfare and related problems created by the national defense.

Other speakers were Charles P. Taft, assistant Federal coordinator; Commander John L. Reynolds, morale officer, United States Navy, and S. Howard Evans, acting assistant director of the Office of Civilian Defense.

British Defeat Would Split Hemisphere, Institute Told

By the Associated Press

Charlottesville, Va., June 30.—If Great Britain were defeated or accepted a compromise peace, an important part of Latin America would be "forced to secede from the hemisphere," John W. Evans, adviser on Latin America, asserted today.

Such a development would leave the United States in real peril, he told the Institute of Public Affairs at the University of Virginia, unless this Nation begins soon to take drastic precautionary steps in the field of practical economics.

"Fortunately, though," he added, ". . . steps can be taken now to weaken that threat, steps which will not have been wasted even if American aid to Britain does succeed in turning the tide of the war."

James R. Young, newspaperman and author, declared tonight that while the Japanese were in no economic position to wage war with a major power, military fanatics would risk the nation "to strike at us, at England or the Dutch, thinking they could win."

Other institute speakers today stressed the importance to the United States of her foreign trade, foreign cultural relations and foreign radio broadcasts.

Evans said he did not think that a German victory over Russia would destroy "her incentive to dominate Latin America."

"I believe the fanatic Nazi zeal to rule has no limits, in spite of the elastic limits announced from time to time for propaganda purposes," he declared.

"And I do not believe that the German concept admits the existence of a powerful world bloc which might challenge her 'new order.' Even if Germany should defeat both Russia and Great Britain she can expect to face the United States and at least some remnants of the British empire as an obstacle to complete world domination. I doubt if she will be willing to let them have Latin America as a storehouse of strategic materials.

"I believe we will be committing a dangerous error if we fail to recognize the strong chance that, at least for a while after a German victory, Europe would be as big a market for Latin American goods as before the war."

Young, formerly Far Eastern director of International News Service, said the paradox of the situation involving Japan was "the astounding timidity of our State Department in Washington, apparently ignorant of Japanese strife, indecision and shortage of war commodities, to continue to allow increases of supplies to Japan of petroleum products."

"The same pattern of the Chamberlin-Halifax-Henderson group in appeasing Hitler," he said, "is being followed by two or three half-hearted cream puff diplomats and bureaucrats in Washington who have not or seem to have not, the remotest idea of actual conditions in Japan.

"It is time to smoke out our misinformed 'experts' on the Far East."

Carroll Binder, director of the foreign service of the Chicago Daily News, also on tonight's program, told the Institute that American citizens had a better opportunity than the citizens of any other nation to know how their destinies were being affected by events beyond the Nation's borders.

"The journalistic achievement of American foreign correspondents between Europe's two major wars is one which places all students of contemporary history in their debt and of which the profession can be proud," he said.

John F. Normano, research director of the Latin-American Economic Institute, expressed the view this afternoon that so-called Pan Americanism suffers from self-deception, and that "defense of continental economy" was just an empty slogan without any content.

Cadet, Mechanic Die in Crash

Fort Lauderdale, Fla., June 30 (AP). A youthful aviation cadet and his mechanic crashed to their deaths today during a training flight from the Opa-Locka Naval Training Station at Miami.

They were Aviation Cadet Frank D. Mears, 23, of Pocomoke City, Md., who was at the controls, and Walter M. Ledford, 20, seaman first class, of Grimsley, Tenn., the machinist. Mears lost control of their training plane and it went into a spin.

Commissioners Act to Take Bang Out of July 4

The District Commissioners have taken the "bang" out of cap pistols and on July 4 Washington youngsters must be content with an absolutely noiseless celebration.

The city heads approved an opinion of Corporation Counsel Richmond B. Keech holding that caps used in toy pistols are "fireworks which contain powder or other explosive composition" and therefore are against municipal regulations.

Keech's opinion was submitted to the Commissioners at the request of Henry W. Samson, a claims agent in the Maryland Building, 1410 H Street Northwest, who pointed out that 74 persons received severe injuries from cap pistols last Fourth of July.

District laws now prohibit the use of any type of explosive fireworks, but permit such innocent things as sparklers, torches, colored lights, nonpoisonous snakes, toy pistols of the friction variety, dip sticks and fountains.

stoppage or lapse in either program.

However, neither project is as large, as inclusive, as it should be. And in the case of the nickel quart program, it is not even secure. A clause in the contract awarded yesterday provides that it may be canceled on 48 hours notice in event of a price increase.

Secretary of Agriculture Claude R. Wickard now has under consideration a petition by the Maryland-Virginia Milk Producers Association to boost the price of surplus milk, as well as that sold at the regular market price.

Chestnut Farms-Chevy Chase yesterday signed papers agreeing to supply up to 10,100 quarts daily to the 11 milk depots, at a flat handling charge of 3 cents per bottle. This is the same rate as the dairy had during the last four months. The new contract, for which there was only one bidder, expires November 1.

Producer Price Is 5c

The producer price for this surplus milk averages 5 cents a quart. This is paid by the Surplus Marketing Administration, with the nickels received from the buyers. The 3-cent handling charge is borne by the S. M. A. with funds appropriated for its surplus milk programs over the country.

Whether the S. M. A. could stand to absorb an increase in the producer price, if one were granted by Secretary Wickard, would be determined mainly by the size of its appropriation in the 1942 agriculture supply bill, still unsigned by the President.

At present, sales of the 5-cent quarts to needy families—that is, the relatively few impoverished families who are certified—are averaging 3,900 a day. This number may shoot upward in the next week, when WPA rolls are scheduled to be cut almost in half.

While WPA workers are not eligible to buy the low-cost milk, those certified for work relief, but jobless, may do so.

5,200 Benefit Today

Bought with District, rather than Agriculture, funds, the half-pint bottles of milk, together with a hot lunch, will be served today to approximately 5,200 undernourished boys and girls in 60 public and five parochial schools.

Roland Brennan, District purchasing officer, asserted that by a special understanding with Embassy-Fairfax Dairy, deliveries would be made today on the assumption that funds for payment will be carried in the still unpassed 1942 supply bill.

Until the school term ended, about 8,800 free lunches were served daily in 78 schools. It had been expected that the number would be reduced to 4,000 when summer vacation began, but public attention focused by The Post on the plight of underfed Washington children resulted in a smaller curtailment.

Dr. Frank W. Ballou, superintendent of schools and who recently applied to Agriculture for a "penny program" which would at least double the number of milk drinkers among needy children, said yesterday that it is his understanding that such a project could not be started here before the opening of school in September.

exist among ranking officers and privates in the department.

2. That the department suffers from "a lack of adequate and intelligent supervision" resulting in "laxity of performance with sporadic and unequal penalties for infractions." In this connection he declared that 25 per cent of the 1,400 men in the department are inefficient.

3. That because of "absence of clearly understandable and definite orders, together with follow up as to execution" superiors and subordinates are able to evade responsibility for poor police work. In elaborating this charge, Callahan declared: "The tendency in giving orders is to make them so vague and indefinite that if something unfortunate happens the officer steps aside and the policeman gets it in the nose."

4. That the department is honeycombed with cliques based on religious, fraternal or social ties and comprised of "stooges or yes-men" who hang upon the words of the leader and who "today to his wishes or try to cultivate his favor to the prejudice of other men." This, said Callahan, results in "animosities between groups, unhealthy and subversive group activity."

5. That the present system of police promotions is "inadequate, unfair and unintelligent" and that its fruits are "injustice, resentment, discouragement, stifling of individual effort, inferior quality of promoted personnel."

6. That superior officers sometimes keep their inferiors in the dark about their plans and often withhold information that might be of assistance to them in investigating a crime. The purpose of withholding information or sources of information is to gain or hold advantage for promotion, Callahan indicated. He also charged that political activity to gain advancement is "disgrace and a scandal to the department."

7. That personnel management policies are "unintelligent" with "no special effort" made to assign men "to duties for which they are trained of educated; or which they prefer," personal inconvenience frequently resulting in "lessened morale and decreased efficiency."

8. Callahan accused "personnel of superior rank" with "illiteracy, ungrammatical language, crudeness, absence of professional qualifications." He said there is "evident lack of professional knowledge or good judgment among officers in the higher brackets." Few, if any, he declared, of "these comparatively illiterate and ignorant oldsters is able to intelligently read or interpret, much less issue in his own writing, orders and instructions to the other men."

9. The veteran officer also attacked the "time-honored" practice of policemen in selling tickets for police benefits and raising funds for other purposes. He called the practice a "rather thinly veiled form of public extortion" which might encourage "certain officers" to do a "little collecting for their own personal benefit."

Part of Capt. Callahan's statement was read into the record by him. The balance of it was submitted to the subcommittee stenographer for inclusion in the proceedings. He read his statement on the informing squad in full after Representative Schulte, subcommittee chairman, asked:

"Isn't there a Gestapo in the department headed by a fellow who used to tap wires?"

Callahan said that the Gestapo's reports "are frequently made the basis of various kinds of disciplinary action, transfers, changes in assignments for the individual who is reported and he has no chance to explain nor defend himself against such action."

"The least that the subject of such a report may expect is that it will be filed with his record, and, being an adverse report, that it may subsequently prejudice his chances for promotion or other advantageous assignment in the department.

"But even though he should suspect this and inquire about it; this is a 'confidential matter' and he never will be frankly advised of the reason why he is penalized. No member of the department, regardless of his rank or position, feels safe against this insidious and underhanded activity and there is consequently a corresponding feeling of suspicion and resentment of such injustice."

Sitting in the hearing room was Capt. Floyd Truscott who will be the next witness when the investigation is resumed at 10 a. m. today.

Schulte disclosed that before the inquiry is finished all captains in the department will be asked to file with the subcommittee a statement of their "thoughts on rehabilitation of the department from top to bottom." Captain Callahan was asked to file such a report after he had finished testifying.

While reading, Capt. Callahan spoke rapidly and in a low voice so reporters had difficulty hearing him. Schulte requested him to raise his voice for the benefit of the press table and Callahan replied: "Perhaps it is just as well they don't hear all I have to say."

At this point Schulte and Representative Hebert (Democrat), of Louisiana, and Bolles (Democrat), of Wisconsin, assured Callahan there would be no "retaliation" as a result of his testimony.

"I want to be sure that nothing happens to you," Hebert said. "You are the kind of man we want to keep in the department."

"If there are reprisals, they ultimately will work to the advantage of the department," Callahan said. "I am only one man and the department is so big and much more important."

At times members of the subcommittee were frankly incredulous at Callahan's statements and all praised him for "having the courage to come here and actually tell us what you think."

At a morning session Inspector James F. Beckett, acting police superintendent while Maj. Brown recovers from an ankle infection, told the subcommittee that he believed the police department to be very efficient and that he is opposed to a shakeup.

"I am not going to start off by telling you gentlemen that we are 100 per cent efficient," Callahan began when asked what he could suggest for the department's improvement. He was asked by Schulte what he thought of a shakeup and replied:

"If you mean that certain men are not performing, yes. . . . The Police Department should straighten itself out and it should welcome the pressure of an investigation. . . . I think a general shakeup would make for a very wholesome situation."

Glamour Girl Weds, Flies On Honeymoon

$3,500,000 Dream Of Cafe Society Now Is Mrs. Kelly

(Picture On Page 1.)

By Inez Robb
International News Service Staff Writer

New York, June 30.—In a final burst of flash bulbs and glory, Brenda Frazier, peerless queen of the glamour girls, left the scene of her triumphant wedding early this evening to begin an aerial honeymoon to California and thence to Honolulu with her bridegroom, John Simms (Shipwreck) Kelly.

Those privileged to behold this $3,300,000 bride—with face and figure to match—in her bridal finery now know what it is to see a dream walking. The most publicized June bride and Kelly, once a professional football player, were married before an improvised altar in the drawing room of the swank Carlton House apartment of Brenda's mother, Mrs. Frederic . Watriss.

The Rev. Joseph F. . nnelly of St. Patrick's Cathedral officiated.

Today's bride, who has a public following from Rochester to Rangoon, was soundly kissed by the bridegroom at the conclusion of the ceremony, and instantly declared, "I'm the happiest persor alive!"

Fifteen minutes later, to her hor ror and consternation, she discov ered she sai dthe very opposite into the microphone and sound track of a news reel camera.

"How do you feel about your wedding?" the bride's mother, purred, as the wedding party posed for a newsreel camera en route to the reception.

Brenda's face was radiant as she stood beside her bridegroom and replied, with a gamin grin:

"Miserable!"

When she discovered ten minutes later that a mike had caught the conversation for the sound track, she sent a half-dozen emissaries from the reception to beg the newsreel men to delete her one-word speech.

Since one emissary was the best man, society golfer and Army sergeant, T. Suffern Tailer, and five were waiters carrying buckets of iced champagne, the newsreel men gallantly acceded to Brenda's request.

Brenda, her bridegroom and the wedding party encountered the newsreel cameras after running a gamut of 14 news photographers who lined the corridors of Carlton House and the Ritz-Carlton Hotel, where the wedding reception was held in the crystal room.

This long trek through the corridors of these adjoining hotels obviated the necessity of the bride appearing for even a moment in the streets where she would have been subjected to the prying eyes of the public.

In the final stages of this trek, the bride and bridegroom were forced to use the Ritz-Carlton's battered service elevator, especially carpeted for the occasion and its scarred walls hidden by green and rose brocade.

The bridal party also passed through the hotel's steaming kitchen where the management did its best to improvise a corridor of pale green moire curtains. But, alas, it ran out of green moire midway.

[Cost of the wedding was minor, the United Press reported, compared to the bride's $25,000 coming out party in 1938. The wedding gown cost $300 while the bill for the reception was $750.]

Brenda wore a simple but exquisite wedding gown of soft white slipper satin. The long basque-waist, with its short sleeves, hugged her slim, young figure. The full, circular skirt was cut in one with a train of medium length.

Brenda's long, curly dark bob, imitated wherever girls are young and yearn for beauty, was topped by a tiara of pearl orange blossoms that held her filmy veil of tulle in place. Her bouquet was of lillies of the valley. She wore no jewelry other than cabachon emerald engagement ring.

The bride's only attendant was a flower girl, Helen Barney Alexander, who wore a Colonial frock of white net. The wreath of flowers in her hair matched the nosegay she carried.

Following the reception, Kelly and his bride caught an evening plane for the West Coast. After a brief visit in San Francisco with Brenda's step-brother, James B. Watriss, they will continue on to Honolulu.

Takes Stand At Murder Trial

MRS. ELIZABETH MAYO

'Other Woman' Tells of Joss' Love for Her

By the Associated Press.

Bath, Maine, June 30.—The day before his wife was found dead, Dr. Merrill E. Joss took her out, asked her to get a divorce and said "If I didn't he would join the Army," Mrs. Elizabeth C. Mayo testified today.

"We were in love," Mrs. Mayo said of the 34-year-old doctor on trial for the murder of his physician-wife, Dr. Luverne Harris Joss, found dying from a beating in the cellar of her home on March 27.

Wearing a yellow sport dress and blue turban, the tea-room owner took the stand and testified to a romance with Joss which started the third time they met, when the doctor gave her a "pickaback" ride, she said.

From that night Joss treated her "familiarly," Mrs. Mayo testified.

Once, she said, Joss gave her his fraternity pin and after that took her out for cocktails as well as dropping into her tearoom morning, noon and night."

Then, she continued, a few hours before Mrs. Joss was slain, the doctor sent her a note telling her "I love you."

Mrs. Mayo laughed at times as she testified to the doctor's tearoom visits, where, she said, the note passing started because "there were people around and we couldn't talk."

She described the notes as "not important love notes like anyone would write to anyone they thought a good deal about."

Asked by Attorney General Frank I. Cowan, "had he suggested marriage at some time?" Mrs. Mayo answered:

"Why, he talked about it at times. Later, he told me he had a talk with his wife about the divorce, and I said, 'you didn't tell her about me, did you,' he said 'no'."

6 Die, 17 Injured In Coal Mine Blast; Probe Is Planned

Indiana, Pa., June 30 (INS).—State mine inspectors and U. S. officials tonight were preparing to launch a sweeping investigation into the dust explosion that killed six men and injured 17 in the Rochester & Pittsburgh Coal Co.'s No. 2 mine near here today.

15 Others Escaped

Those killed in the mine explosions were: Albert Doch, Joseph Bedzyk, William Clark, Elmer McGee, all of Aultman, Pa., George Stockdale of Clune, Pa., and Andy Yanef of McIntyre, Pa. McGee was an assistant foreman.

The men were working in section 3 of the mine, at nearby McIntyre, when the blast rocked the region.

Suit Over John Brown

Los Angeles, June 30 (AP).—Nell Brown Groves, granddaughter of John Brown of Civil War fame, filed a $1,320,000 damage suit against Warner Brothers and a group of John Does over the picture "Santa Fe Trail," based on Brown's life She charged the picture presented John Brown as a ruthless murderer while she and other descendants had regarded him as a hero.

Chief of Staff Unable to Make Trip to Argentine

Gen. George C. Marshall, Chief of Staff, revealed yesterday that he had canceled plans for a good-will flight to Buenos Aires because the President and Secretary of War "decided that matters to which I must attend in the coming weeks are of such urgency as to preclude my absence from the United States for the length of time the journey, even by air, necessarily requires."

He gave this explanation in a message to the Argentine minister of war in which he desgnated Maj. Gen. Frank M. Andrews, commander of the Caribbean Air Force at in Buenos Aires on the anniversary Panama, to represent him July 8 of Argentine independence. The message expressed deep appreciation of the invitation extended by Ambassador Filipe A. Espile, disclosed that Gen. Marshall had made all plans for the trip and then gave his reasons for cancelling it.

Mrs. Franklyn Hutton Wed To J. A. Moffett, Ex-FHA Chief

By the Associated Press

White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., June 30.—Mrs. Franklyn L. Hutton, stepmother of Countess Barbara Hutton Haugwitz-Reventlow, and James A. Moffett, oil financier and former Federal Housing Administrator, were married today at this West Virginia mountain resort.

The ceremony was performed at the bride's summer cottage by the Rev. Dr. J. F. Cook, Baptist minister, of Lewisburg.

Moffett and Mrs. Hutton were married under a dispensation granted by Circuit Judge Mark L. Jarrett, in which West Virginia's three-day marriage law provisions were waived.

Only two witnesses were present as Dr. Cook read the brief ceremony in picturesque Colonnade Cottage, which was built in 1848 by Gen. Wade Hampton as a private home. They were Mrs. Aileen Allen and William F. Baxter, of New York, close friends of the couple.

Countess Haugwitz-Reventlow, unable to attend, wired her best wishes from Beverly Hills, Calif.

It was the third marriage for both. Mrs. Hutton was Mrs. Irene Curley Bodde, of Detroit, at the time of her marriage to Broker Franklyn L. Hutton in 1926. He died several years ago.

Moffett first married Adelaide McMichael, of New York, and in 1934 married Adeline Kim Moran, of New York.

Mrs. Hutton came to White Sulphur last Friday and leased the Colonnade Cottage for the summer. The couple plans to honeymoon here for the rest of the season.

Conradin Otto Dold, 37, was taken into custody on the arrival of the American export liner Excalibur from Lisbon. Dold, German-born but now a naturalized citizen, was second steward aboard the ship.

Adolf Henry August Walischewsky, 50, a steward aboard the Moore-McCormack liner Uruguay which arrived from South America, also was arrested when the ship docked. He is also a naturalized citizen of German birth.

The third man whose arrest was announced today was Heinrich Clausing, 37, who was placed in the brig when the Moore-McCormack liner Argentina on which he was a cook docked at Santos, Brazil. Also a naturalized citizen of German birth, he will be held in the brig, Hoover said, pending the ship's return to this country on July 14.

Of three women defendants arraigned in Brooklyn, one, Lilly Barbara Carola Stein, 26, Austrian born artists' model, pleaded guilty.

Also pleading guilty to charges of violation of the U. S. code, conviction of which carries a 20-year maximum penalty, were: Axel Wheeler-Hill, 40, brother of James Wheeler-Hill erstwhile bund aide of the imprisoned Fritz Kuhn; Leo Waalen, 37, German born painter; Hartwig Richard Kleiss, 54, German born seaman; Alfred E. Brokhoff, 39, of West New York, N. J.; and Erwin Wilhelm Siegler and Franz Stigler, both of whom already were in custody on charges of violation of the Federal Registration Act.

22 of German Origin

The case, said U. S. Assistant Attorney General Wendell Berge, in charge of criminal investigation, involved one of the greatest counter-espionage efforts ever made by a law enforcement agency.

Of the 25 arraigned today, 22 were of German origin but United States Attorney Harold Kennedy refused to say for what foreign power the ring supposedly operated.

The Government charged the ring transmitted information concerning movement of cargo ships bound for Great Britain, developments in United States Naval, Army and aircraft products and transported by courier samples of the latest armaments.

Both the Sperry and Norden firms, Kennedy said, cooperated fully with the FBI in their investigation and neither firm was in any way involved.

Those who pleaded innocent today were: Josef August Klein, Evelyn Clayton Lewis, Paul A. W. Scholz, Oscar R. Stabler, Heinrich Stade, Frederick Herbert Duquesne, Paul Bante, Max Blank, Rudolph Ebeling, Richard Eichenlaub, Heinrich Carl Ellere, Felix Jahnke, Elsie Westenfeld, Rene E. Mezenen, Carl Reuper and George Gottliebschuh, in addition to Lang and Roeder.

In Detroit, Edmund Carl Heine, 40, pleaded innocent when arraigned before U. S. Commissioner J. Stanley Hurd and was held in $50,000 bail for hearing July 14 on removal to New York.

Heine, German-born automobile company representative, shouted "nein" (no) when information on his activities was submitted to the commissioner.

In Milwaukee, Erich Strunck, 33, German-born seaman, waived removal hearing before a U. S. commissioner and was ordered held in $25,000 bond. FBI agents said he probably would be removed to New York within a few days.

Mexico Rounds Up Spies

Mexico City, June 30 (INS).—Mexican secret service agents working in collaboration with the United States Federal Bureau of Investigation have been rounding up spies and fifth columnists throughout Mexico, the Interior Ministry announced today.

The ministry said the roundup was ordered by President Emanuel Avila Camacho personally and that numerous arrests have been made at the west coast port of Acapulco and in the State of Chiapas.

Servicemen Invited To HearSymphony

Service men in uniform have been invited to attend the second Watergate "Sunset Symphony" tomorrow at 8 p. m. free of charge by Conductor Hans Kindler, with the cooperation of the District Defense Council and the United Service Organizations.

Tomorrow's concert will consist of a patriotic program, featuring Lucy Monroe, the "Star-Spangled Soprano," and Charles O'Connell, young American conductor.

Dr. Quo Installed

Chungking, June 30 (AP).—Dr. Quo Tai-chi, former Chinese Ambassador to London, was formally installed minister of foreign affairs here today.

Congress Passes Last of Supply Bills

food stamp plan, added by the Senate to the $885,000,000 relief bill after the House had rejected a proposal for earmarking part of the WPA funds for that purpose. Both houses finally agreed to cut the item to $25,000,000, the Senate accepting the conference report by a vote of 27 to 24.

The WPA was one of the agencies which would have been most seriously affected if Congress had failed to complete action by midnight. Technically, none of the agencies could spend money or incur obligations today if the bills had not been approved before the beginning of the new fiscal year.

The second deficiency appropriation bill, which was coming before the Senate for the first time yesterday, was amended in the upper house to provide $150,000,000 for national defense community facilities.

Senator Bridges led an unsuccessful fight to cut $429,000 from funds for the office of Government Reports, which he claimed was a potential instrument for Government censorship.

Representative Taber (Republican), of New York, ranking minority member of the House Appropriations Committee, last night attacked his House colleagues for lack of "patriotism and courage" in failing to reduce nondefense expenditures.

He said the $457,000,000 reduction in WPA rolls had been matched by a $545,000,000 increase in other nondefense items, leaving a net increase of $88,000,000.

"I venture to predict that when the tax bill, calling for from three to four billion dollars, comes in, the people of this country will rise and smite those who have been responsible for these appropriations," he declared.

President Signs Record Bill

Hyde Park, N. Y., June 30 (AP).—The biggest single appropriation bill ever enacted, a $10,264,821,624 measure for America's growing Army, was signed late today by President Roosevelt.

Mr. Roosevelt also signed into law a bill continuing the Treasury's $2,000,000,000 stabilization fund and extending for two years his power to devalue the dollar further. These monetary powers would have expired tonight at midnight.

No, Girls! The U. S. Will NOT Find You a Husband

Census Bureau officials, swamped with letters from women and girls asking for names and addresses of men in United States possessions where men outnumber women, appealed yesterday to newspapers to help stop the flood of requests by printing the fact that such information is "confidential." The letters began pouring in soon after the bureau last week listed the possessions where the ratio of men to women runs as high as five to one.

Frank R. Wilson, chief of the division of information of the bureau, woefully admitted yesterday that it was a "mistake" to issue the announcement. "The women think we are running a matrimonial bureau," he said. "We have hundreds of letters here from all over New England, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and the southern States. They are not only from young girls, but from women as old as 55 years. I wish you would publish the fact that we can't advise these women where to find "a tall, dark, curley-haired man, not over 40," or "a temperate Christian man not over 50 who can manage her husband's estate."

Police last night investigated a theft of $460 from a safe of Leo Rocca, Inc., of 4301 Connecticut Avenue Northwest. They said the safe had been opened by combination and had not been forced.

Report of the theft was made by Walter C. Brooks, manager. The safe is in a gasoline service station operated in connection with an automobile agency.

The Miracle of Gus

A MAN named Gus has performed a miracle.

As a young Swedish immigrant, he had worked on and developed machine guns America used in World War I.

Last November, Gus Swebilius heard World War II's urgent call for aircraft machine guns—for more of them than existing capacity could possibly turn out.

Normally it would take 18 months to create such capacity. But that was too long for Gus Swebilius. He started to build a plant . . . he fine-toothcombed New England for old machine tools . . . he rounded up skilled gunsmiths who had worked with him during World War I . . . and, in less than 6 months, Gus was producing machine guns—500 last month, 1,500 a month soon!

This miracle, the miracle of Gus, is typical of the ingenuity, the resourcefulness of the free men developed in our democracy. It demonstrates anew the kind of skill and determination that has built America's great industrial plant.

It is just one example of how we can adapt and are adapting our way of life from the accustomed pace of peace to the urgent race against mortal danger.

Our transformation is slower than our Democracy wants, but it is faster than our Democracy realizes.

As our mighty effort begins, it is already changing the very landscape of the U.S. Our goal must be to accomplish greater things in two years than Hitler's system has accomplished in seven. And there is evidence that we are now on the way:

This advertisement is one of a series studying our democratic American way of life.

Huge new army camps, 36 of them, spreading across newly cleared and graded square miles of 19 states . . . More than 700 new defense factories, up from the ground in the last seven months . . . Enough new defense workers' homes, 97,000 of them built or under construction, to house a population equal to that of Kansas City.

Three of the world's mightiest battleships, the "North Carolina," the "Washington," and the "South Dakota," have been launched months ahead of schedule; 3 minutes after the latter slid into the water, workmen had the keel of a new cruiser on her still-smoking ways. Along our east and west coasts, yards to build new ships have been more than doubled within the past year, and from their ways 115 new freighters are scheduled to be launched this year.

Every day, flashing up into the sky over Buffalo, Los Angeles, Bridgeport, Seattle, and other plane manufacturing cities, go our new military planes, heading toward camps and eastern ports. By this October our rate of plane manufacture will be a soaring 25,000 a year. Comparing output in June, 1941, with that of June, 1940: Machine tools, doubled . . . aircraft, trebled . . . Garand rifles, more than trebled . . . powder, up 500% . . . tanks, up 1,300%.

Throughout the country there are now more than 9,000 special training schools for defense workers, sponsored by federal agencies, engineering schools, industry, and labor. In one year they have trained more than a million and a half men in the techniques of defense production. In many airplane factories more than half the employees are these school-trained men. Plans call for tripling this man-power training program next year, preparing for defense production four times as many men as are now in the U. S. Army.

The record of American production so far, is encouraging. But only as a beginning. It simply indicates that at this moment there is no justification either for hopeless pessimism or for carefree optimism. It shows that we must accelerate mightily all that is good of our works, correct promptly all that is poor.

And we are doing just that in the democratic American way—lighting and guiding our course with free and open inquiry, discussion, criticism, fact-facing.

In this process, our free, democratic press plays a vital role. LIFE Magazine, for instance, presents facts pertinent to all phases of American life to a weekly audience of more than 20,000,000 readers—offering them, in a vivid way they like and absorb, the information they want and need to understand today's problems.

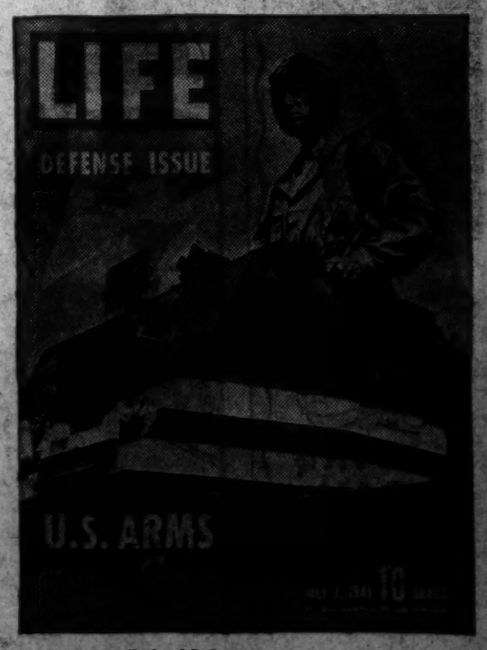
LIFE is proud of the contribution it is making in this crucial time toward the successful functioning of democracy. And, as "America's Most Potent Editorial Force," LIFE is dedicated to continuing this contribution both now and after this time of crisis has passed.

Training productive manpower for National Defense, is major achievement of the year. In 9,000 special schools, under master craftsmen and graduate engineers, more than 1,500,000 Americans this year have learned to man the myriad machines that activate our defense production.

Twenty-eight-Ton Medium Tanks on straight line assembly, and new armored scout cars, 400 of them a month, are now streaming from our factories, endowing our new Army with unparalleled speed and striking force. Newly equipped armored divisions are training intensively in Georgia, Tennessee, Kentucky, Louisiana, and New York.

The U. S. S. "South Dakota" is launched 4 months ahead of schedule—3 minutes later the keel of a new cruiser is swung onto her just-vacated ways. Passenger vessels are converted into troop transports in less than a fortnight. Only 120 days are allowed for launching new freighters.

Vast complex cities, 36 of them, in nineteen different states, are the new United States Army camps thrown up to house, train, feed, care for, more than a million men under arms. Industry is gearing itself rapidly to clothe and equip these selectees, and others that are coming.



Production for National Defense, and other phases of America's Arms program, is the subject of a special issue of LIFE magazine, on sale July 3. This new issue of LIFE gives a comprehensive report of our first year of all out production, shows where arming America stands today.

Roosevelt Dedicates Library of His 30 Years' Service to People of U.S.

By George Bookman
Post Staff Writer

Hyde Park, June 30.—One man's 30-year record of the role he played in bringing the United States towards world leadership became the property of the American people and their historians here today when President Roosevelt dedicated the $250,000 Franklin D. Roosevelt Library. He told the guests at the event that the very action of dedicating a library in these troubled days was proof "that our confidence in the future of democracy has not diminished in this Nation and will not diminish."

The neighborly ceremony on the grounds of the Roosevelt family estate was as simple as the practical lines of the native fieldstone structure, built in Dutch Colonial fashion, that now houses a collection of Presidential books, papers and souvenirs covering some of the most stirring days in American history.

In a five-minute address, which was not broadcast, the President told the audience of about 300 friends and neighbors that the building of libraries is characteristic of a democracy. It demands faith in three things, he said—the past, the future and, above all, faith in the capacity of people, so to learn from the past that they can gain in judgment for the creation of the future.

Mother Hears Address

Smiling proudly, the President's 86-year-old mother, Mrs. Sarah Delano Roosevelt, sat behind him and heard him condemn "so-called information" handed out in non-Democratic nations "by self-constituted leaders who decide what is best" for their people.

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, dressed in an Indian print frock, sat among the distinguished guests who filled the covered way surrounding the open forecourt of the building. Beside her sat her new daughter-in-law Mrs. James Roosevelt, the former Romelle Schneider.

A group of the President's closest friends from official life were on hand. They included Felix Frankfurter, associate justice of the Supreme Court; Treasury Secretary Morgenthau; Basil O'Connor, the President's former law partner, and Edward J. Flynn, national chairman of the Democratic party.

In shirt sleeves and light summer frocks a few hundred of the President's Dutchess County neighbors watched the ceremonies from the shade of a giant, 300-year-old oak tree, facing the courtyard of the library.

Also among those present was Princess Martha, of Norway, and her three children: Archibald MacLeish, Librarian of Congress, and L. W. (Chip) Robert, former Democratic Party treasurer, and Mrs. Robert.

The President spoke from a small stand in front of the library's main door, facing the grass-grown forecourt.

The library and its contents, together with the 12 acres on which it stands, forming a part of the Roosevelt ancestral estate on the banks of the Hudson River were deeded to the Government two years ago by the President and his mother.

Eventually the entire 100-acre Roosevelt homestead, together with old Hyde Park house, but not including a nearby 500-acre farm that also belongs to the family, will become national property.

Tomorrow the library will be opened to the public. An admission fee of 25 cents will be charged.

Funds to pay for the library were raised by public subscription from 28,000 Americans. Though it is now Government property, the only cost to the Government is for upkeep. The commissioner of public buildings has charge of taking care of the building and grounds.

Postmaster General Frank C. Walker, treasurer of the Library Corporation, who presided at today's ceremonies, thanked the 28,000 contributors who paid for the library.

R. D. W. Connor, archivist of the United States, who supervises the collection, expressed the hope that the library would become a "mecca for scholars and statesmen."

The Rev. Patrick J. Mee, rector of the Church of Regina Coeli, Hyde Park, pronounced the invocation, and the Rev. Frank R. Wilson, rector of St. James' Episcopal Church, Hyde Park, gave the benediction.

Frederick W. Shipman is director of the library.

Halvorson Urges Lend-Lease Funds For Prairie Route

To safeguard the North American frontier from any possible Nazi domination of nearby Siberia, the proposed Pririe Route military highway, from Chicago through the prairie States and Provinces to Fairbanks, Alaska, should be built out of lend-lease money and done fast."

So said Halvor L. Halvorson, Minot, N. Dak., attorney, and president of the recently formed United States, Canada and Alaska Prairie Highway Association, yesterday. He is in Washington to consult with War Department and Bureau of Public Roads officials on the proposed highway.

The prairie route would generally follow the crow-flight airplane route from Chicago to Fairbanks, Halvorson said.

At present there is a bill before Congress to construct a road from the State of Washington, along the Rockies to Alaska.

Halvorson states, the association has no grievance with the proposed Rocky Mountain road, but believes that the Prairie Route should be constructed first in the interests of hemispheric defense.

Committee Votes $5 Tax on Autos

dozen more items still to be considered.

Rejecting Treasury proposals, the committee yesterday refused to increase present taxes on tobacco, beer or gasoline. The committee also voted down proposals for taxes on coffee, tea, sugar and insurance premiums.

The committee called on motorists for a large share of the new excise tax revenue to be raised. Besides the $5 use tax on automobiles, which also would apply to all airplanes and yachts, it approved an increase from 3½ to 7 per cent in the tax on new automobiles and from 2½ to 5 per cent on automobile parts and accessories, designed to bring in an additional $60,000,000. Present levies on tires and tubes were doubled to yield an additional $44,000,000.

A 5 per cent tax on all telephone bills, expected to raise $28,000,000, was approved, along with a sharp increase in taxes on long distance telephone calls and telegrams, designed to bring in an additional $36,000,000.

Another tax which will affect millions was imposed on railroad, air, bus and ship tickets. All passenger transportation charges, except those of 35 cents or less, would be taxed 5 per cent. The levy would raise $37,800,000.

Rates Subject to Revision

Committee members emphasized that the rates approved yesterday are still subject to revision. The committee is expected to take at least two more days to complete the excise tax schedule. Awaiting consideration are proposals for taxes on soft drinks, furs, cosmetics, pari-mutuel betting, slot machines, electric light bulbs and gas produced for non-industrial use.

Second to the automobile use tax in estimated yield was the $1 a gallon increase yesterday in the levy on distilled spirits, expected to produce an additional $122,360,000. Rates on wines, cordials and liqueurs were approximately doubled to bring in $15,800,000 over present rates.

The committee reduced the exemption from taxes on theater admission and other tickets from 20 cents to 9 cents and eliminated from the present law all general exemptions from the amusement ticket tax except that applying to service men in uniform. The new rates would yield $60,000,000.

A 10 per cent tax on the retail price of jewelry, clocks and watches was approved. It would bring in $46,100,000.

Manufacturers' Taxes

The following manufacturers' taxes, with their anticipated yields, were approved:

Photographic apparatus, 10 per cent, $15,000,000; mechanical refrigerators, with air-conditioning equipment to be included, increased from 5½ to 10 per cent, $21,000,000; sporting goods, 10 per cent, $8,500,000; matches, 2 cents per 1,000, $8,200,000; radios and parts, increased from 5½ to 10 per cent, $9,400,000; luggage, 10 per cent, $4,500,000; phonographs and records, 10 per cent, $4,500,000; candy and chewing gum, 5 per cent, $18,200,000; musical instruments, 10 per cent, $3,600,000, and playing cards, increased from 11 to 13 cents per deck, $1,000,000.

The committee voted for a 5 per cent tax on bills at cabarets, expected to bring in $1,500,000. Reduction of exemptions from taxes on club dues and initiation fees is designed to yield $2,800,000. A $15 a year tax on bowling alleys and billiard tables, estimated to raise $3,400,000, also was approved. An increase from 11 to 20 per cent in the tax on safe deposit box rentals would produce $1,700,000.

Owners of yachts and airplanes would also pay the $5 use tax to be required of car owners. Automobiles operated by the Federal, State or local governments would be exempt.

The committee has not yet completed detailed definitions of sporting goods, night club bills and some of the other items subject to the new taxes.

7,600 to Register in Capital

to be deferred because of dependency or necessary occupations, are expected to be among 900,000 selectees to be inducted in the next fiscal year. They will be inducted at the 75,000 a month rate in view of the national emergency, it was reported.

The induction of the men who have become 21 since October 16, 1940, first registration day, would be more imminent with passage of pending legislation limiting the draft to men 28 or under. The selection lists would be greatly narrowed by exemption of thousands of men over 28 and who are considered less desirable by the Army than younger men.

The interest of the White House in the new registration day and the draft picture in general was made evident by statements from President Roosevelt and the First Lady.

Published today in Selective Service, organ of the national draft setup, is a letter from the President and addressed to the members of all local selection boards:

"In recent months you have served this Nation well. Without remuneration other than patriotic pride in the knowledge that your self-sacrifice has been of inestimable worth to your fellow citizens, you have labored long hours at the difficult task of selecting men for the armed froces. . . .

"Now you are asked to perform an additional job—to register on this July 1, 1941, those men who have become of age since the original registration day of last October," the statement continued.

"It is my conviction that you will undertake this new task without hesitancy—will achieve the gratifying results the rest of us await . . .

Approximately 370 registrars will be on duty as the 25 registration places here. Local board chairman and clerical personnel will be in direct charge of these centers whose staffs include American Legionnaires and other volunteers.

Waiting lines of men anxious to register on the way to work are expected at the registration places when they open. However, no "overlooking" is expected during the day. An average of only 300 men will register at each school and this in the space of 14 hours, it was pointed out.

Central registration headquarters is the National Guard Armory, Sixth Street and Pennsylvania Avenue Northwest. Out-of-town registrants are to sign up here.

Persons ill or for any other reason unable to go to a registration center will be registered by special registrars at their homes, in hospitals or elsewhere, on notifying the chairmen of the nearest local board.

Officials including Brig. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, deputy director of Selective Service; Brig. Gen. Albert L. Cox, Washington selection head; Senator John Overton, chairman of the Senate District Appropriations Subcommittee, and Senator Robert Reynolds, chairman of the Senate Military Affairs Committee, will tour the 25 schools this morning to check progress of the registration. and not only the sunken ship is lost, but also the planes, the guns, the ammunition and food which it carries."

He continued:

"Momentarily, Hitler has turned his back upon us. Contemptuously, holding our proffered aid to be a futile and empty gesture, since we were permitting it to pile up, undelivered, on our docks, he has turned upon his quondam partner and is treacherously reducing Russia to a slave state in his new order.

"While his back is turned, we must answer his obvious contempt with a smashing blow that can and will change the entire world perspective."

2 D. C. Women Were Aboard Sunken Vessel

Two Washingtonians were among 11 Red Cross nurses reported safe last night, according to the Associated Press, after the ship in which they were homed for war duty at the Harvard Hospital in London was torpedoed in the North Atlantic.

The local women reported saved were Miss Ruth M. Martin, 28, of 2600 Devonshire Place Northwest, and Mrs. Ruth B. Breckinridge, prominent in social circles in Washington and Winston-Salem, N. C.

A private duty nurse graduated from the Emergency Hospital Training School in 1934, Miss Martin volunteered for duty with the Red Cross several months ago. She was born in Plattsburg, N. Y. A sister, Mrs. Frank W. Hunt, lives at 1413 Chapin Street Northwest here.

Mrs. Breckinridge sailed to serve as house mother to the 60 nurses at the Harvard Hospital in London. In 1935 she was divorced from Col. Henry Breckinridge, former attorney for Charles Lindbergh. Formerly she lived in Edgemoor, Md.

plained that the law permits President Roosevelt to make exceptions under special circumstances.

Welles said the Marines were going to England to assist the American Embassy in its expanded services, including communications and fire prevention. Announcement had been made Saturday that three officers and 60 enlisted men were being sent "to facilitate communications between the various United States offices" there.

The eight Marines named by the Navy as rescued were:

Maj. Walter L. Jordan, Virginia Beach, Va.; Sergeant George V. Clark, Newfield, N. J.; Sergeant Augustus J. Eden, New Brunswick, N. J.; Chief Cook U. G. Knox, jr., Houston, Tex.; Corporal Edward H. McAllister, Cleveland, Ohio; Corporal William M. Miller, Charlotte, N. C.; Sergeant John F. Skorich, Marble, Minn.; and Staff Sergeant Willis G. Smith, Orangeburg, S. C.

The names of nurses who, the Red Cross says, are reported safe on land, are:

Laurine A. Smith, Hudsonville, Mich.; Frances A. Bacon, Farmington, Mich.; Margaret F. Malloy, Chicago; M. Geraldine Shuttleworth, Milton, Mass.; Mary Ann Sullivan, Boston, and Martha L. Reis, Tooster, Ohio.

The other 11 reported safe are: Mrs. Ruth B. Breckinridge, of Washington and Winston-Salem, N. C.; Mildred M. McGill, Tekama, Nebr.; Marion C. Goik, Chicago; Mildred E. Deane, Dedham, Mass.; Maxine C. Loomis, Putney, Vt.; Marion C. Weimer, Detroit; Nancy M. Heberden, Lee Center, N. Y.; Susan F. Ralph, Jamaica, Long Island; Lavenia N. Fulton, Amherst, Mass.; Ruth M. Martin, 2600 Devonshire Place, Washington, D. C., and Lillian Evans, Arlington, Mass.

The nurses were part of a staff going over to man the American Red Cross-Harvard Hospital now under construction in southwestern England.

A total of 48 other Americans, including 29 nurses, were said by the Red Cross to have left for this hospital work.

Meanwhile,—a Senate investigation of rumors that units of the United States Navy have attacked German naval craft was demanded yesterday in a resolution introduced by Senator Wheeler (Democrat), of Montana, who asserted: "If we are in a shooting and undeclared war certainly the American people and the Congress are entitled to know about it."

Wheeler, leader of the isolationist forces in Congress, declared that any such action by the Navy would be a violation of the Constitution, which provides that only Congress can declare war. He said the inquiry should seek to identify "the persons who authorized or ordered any such shooting" and that they "should be made to suffer the consequences."

Mrs. Wilbur La Roe Services Today

Mrs. Wilbur La Roe, 75, mother of Wilbur La Roe, jr., local attorney and Parole Board member, died at her Bethesda (Md.) home Sunday night after a brief illness.

Born in Malta, N. Y., she was a member of Chevy Chase Presbyterian Church and in her earlier years was prominent in missionary work. She is survived by her husband, Wilbur La Roe, and by two sons, Wilbur, jr., and Arthur, United States Army captain and flight surgeon at Lowry Field, Colo.

Funeral services will be held today at 3 p. m. at Pumphrey's funeral home, 7805 Wisconsin Avenue, Bethesda. Interment will follow in Cedar Hill Cemetery.

A Tired Driver Is an Unsafe Driver, Physicians Conclude After Exhaustive Tests

How long hours of driving cut down the rapidity of a driver's reactions and make him a hazard on the highways is revealed in exhaustive "guinea pig" tests recently completed by the National Institute of Health's industrial hygiene division.

The experiments with 889 truck and bus drivers in 1,200 test sessions in Baltimore, Nashville and Chicago, are the first attempt to measure accurately the mental and nervous fatigue resulting from driving under actual road conditions.

The findings of the National Health Institute, a subdivision of the Public Health Service, that continuous driving "measurably decreases the driver's efficiency and renders him" dangerous on the road had equal, if not more significance for private motorists, it was stated.

More than twice as many accidents are caused by drivers of passenger cars falling asleep than by truckers slumbering at the wheel, statistics show.

Four principal tests were used on the 889 truck drivers by institute researchers who tested them before and after driving.

These included: "Speed tapping," "simple reaction," "reaction-coordination" and "manual steadiness" tests.

In the first, the drivers were made to tap as fast as they could with each foot in the space of 45 seconds. This is anolagous to the rapidity with which a man could shift his foot from accelerator to throttle and vice versa.

Here, as in driving as a whole, it was shown that the reflexes of the fresh driver worked quickly at first, then slowed down, and finally recovered rapidity. In the case of men who had been driving long hours, it was found the drivers were unable to recover their original speed after slowing down.

In the other three experiments, truckers were tested on the celerity with which they could take their finger from one button and place it on another; transfer wooden pegs from one hole to another, and in the "manual steadiness" test hold a rod successively in each of 10 holes in a brass plate without touching the sides.

The latter experiment was to determine the steadiness with which drivers were able to hold steering wheels when tired.

While reactions of the drivers to the fatigue tests varied widely, it was determined that all showed such a "decrease in efficiency" that it indicated the desirability of a motorist's limiting his hours of driving.

"A reasonable limit on the hours of service" permitted trucks and bus drivers (now 10 hours) "would react in the interest of highway safety" it was said.

According to a survey of the National Safety Council conducted in 1935, a total of 730 motoring fatalities and 4,700 injuries were caused by drivers falling asleep at the wheel.

Experts who conducted the National Health Institute tests were Drs. Benjamin F. Jones, Robert H. Flinn and E. Cuyler Hammond, of the institute; Profs. D. B. Dill and R. A. McFarland, of Harvard University's fatigue laboratory; Prof. Seelig Hecht, of Columbia University; Prof. Walter R. Miles, of Yale University, and C. S. Morgan, of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Prof. A. A. Girault, Entomologist, Dies In Australia

Word was received here yesterday of the recent death of Prof. Alexandre Arsene Girault in Brisbane, Australia, retired, entomologist of the Australian government and native of Annapolis, Md.

Prof. Girault was at the University of Illinois for several years, and at one time was connected with the United States Department of Agriculture here. Later he joined the service of the Australian government, resigning two years ago.

The noted entomologist was the author of a number of books in his field and collections of his work are on exhibition at the Royal Museums in Sydney and Brisbane and the Smithsonian Institution.

Prof. Girault leaves three sons, Ernest, Lawrence and Joseph Girault; two daughters, Helen and Daisy Girault; and a brother and four sisters.

Funds For The District

With all issues in disagreement finally settled, House and Senate passed the 1942 District appropriation bill yesterday, and sped it on its way to the White House. As always the measure fails in many respects to meet the needs of this community. But that is inevitable because of the lack of a responsible local government in control of budgetary procedure. In these circumstances all that the District has got is a legislative compromise, instead of a carefully constructed spending plan.

An illustration of the erratic results of the compromise method of arriving at appropriation requirements is afforded by the decision to provide funds for 79 new policemen—a figure about midway between the 54 additional men for whom the House originally made provision, and the 98 men desired by the Senate. The practice of compromising instead of basing appropriations upon some rational plan for appraising needs and costs is also reflected in the elimination from the supply bill of certain increases approved by the Senate which were put there in response to demonstrated needs. For instance, the $100,000 allowed by the Senate for direct relief was pared to $75,000—a very inadequate sum to take care of the large numbers of persons dropped from WPA rolls. A much needed appropriation to begin construction of new quarters for internes and physicians at Gallinger was also dropped in conference along with other increases which the Senate had allotted for the Fire Department and for a new school in congested Southeast Washington.

Altogether the appropriations bill as it emerged from conference called for about $600,000 less than the total approved by the Senate and for about $1,640,000 more than the sum carried in the original House bill. The final result, however, is an all-time record appropriation of nearly $54,200,000. But comparisons with previous years, as it happens, have become not only invidious but misleading. Account must be taken of the extraordinary growth of the city, and the increasing strain upon community services and facilities. Far from being extravagant, the welcome additions to appropriations for police, schools, welfare and relief services are imperative. Indeed, they will only relieve, not remove, the pressure of an expanding population upon a city utterly unprepared to accommodate the many thousands of defense workers.

Accordingly the new appropriation bill is not the last word on District financing. Acting on request, the District Commissioners have already outlined an emergency defense budget limited to estimates for construction projects considered absolutely necessary for efficient functioning of the muncipal plant under present unusual conditions. The funds to be appropriated for these capital improvements will, of course, constitute an addition to the sums which Congress has just appropriated for the regular District services.

Paderewski

Ignace Jan Paderewski often said that his country came first; his piano, after. Yet to the millions all over the world who were enthralled by his art, his political life remained a thing apart. Perhaps this was because it was difficult to visualize a great musician as a statesman taking part in Europe's political councils. For all the apparent anomaly, Paderewski will long be remembered not only as the greatest pianist of his time, but also as the fervent Polish patriot who played a major role in the re-creation of an independent Poland. He resigned as premier in 1919, after less than a year in office. But he never let his differences with Marshal Pilsudski and other Polish officials affect his deep love and labors for his native land. As late as 1921 he represented Poland at the League of Nations. And, though he lived abroad during many of the years since, he continued to devote a sizable proportion of his large earnings to Polish causes. Not since the present war began had he played in public. And when Poland was again overrun, and part of it split up between Germany and Russia, he became vice premier of the war council of the Polish government-in-exile in London. It was clear in 1939, when he was forced to break off a concert tour of this country, that the great man was approaching the end. Sunday night, in his hotel room in New York, death came at last to the great man. In his service to humanity as an artist and statesman he was truly one of the great men of our age.

This Army Of Ours

After a year of expansion and intensive training we have at least the makings of an army. We have a fine body of men who have been physically toughened to stand the rigors of field service and of forced marches. Yet the fact remains that they are nowhere near ready for war, as is evident from the grave deficiencies in equipment, leadership and discipline which were demonstrated in recent Army maneuvers in Tennessee and elsewhere.

To some extent, of course, material shortages, some of them due to American shipments to Britain, are responsible. This is no news, of course, and it is a failing which industry, given time and guidance, can remedy. But increased and better coordinated production of war material is only part of the job. We need also a thorough housecleaning in the officer ranks. Too many officers still visualize war in terms of 1917 concepts. With French and British experience of the past two years before us, it seems incredible that troop training should emphasize the traditional war of "position" instead of the mobile tactics perfected by the German army. Yet there are still some units whose training has been centered upon bayonet fighting and grenade throwing.

The War Department, as was pointed out by The Post last week, is engaged in attending to the officer problem. It is undertaking to remove from the active command of troops officers who are too old or who fail to measure up in summer maneuvers. This move should be accelerated and extended without regard for political considerations which the War Department in the past has had to take into account, particularly in its treatment of National Guard officers. "Political" officers have no business in the United States Army, and the sooner they are weeded out, the sooner we shall get an officer corps that is capable of satisfactory staff work.

Of course, a thorough housecleaning in the officer ranks is not the solution of our Army problem. Troop spirit is in some respects bound up with intangibles beyond the control of officers. Soldiers training in 1917 had an immediate objective. They knew whom they had to fight and where. Consequently, there was an incentive to get at the job—an incentive which is lacking in our present uncertain state of armed peace. This is one of the major problems of the Army, for the average American youth is temperamentally unsuited to long tours of active duty without a specific end in view. Naturally a shooting war is hardly a sensible solution of the problem. But there will certainly have to be greater attention paid to recreational facilities, to the selectees' leisure, if the training program is to achieve success during a preliminary period which, in military parlance, is aptly referred to as the "war of nerves."

Auto Cuts

The persistence with which we have persevered with business as usual in one of the real crises in our national history is illustrated by the situation in the automobile industry. Much of the replacement output of the car factories is dispensable. Yet the sales of passenger cars and trucks in the calendar year 1940 were a third higher than in the preceding year and exceeded only 1929 and 1937. Even for the current production year ending July 31 the output is expected to be 30 per cent higher than in the preceding year, and the second highest total on record. Hence the already announced 20 per cent cut in next year's production would still permit the industry to turn out more motor cars than the country can afford in view of the heavy demands which the industry makes upon man power and upon strategic defense materials. Such a state of things is now going to be ended. The OPM announces that a further reduction in the 1942 output is to be made. So far as the public at large is concerned, an additional cut of 20 or 30 per cent would work no great hardship. Excepting a limited number of people, who for business reasons find it necessary to replace old machines, motorists can get along very well by using their present cars a year or so longer and by cutting down on pleasure trips.

The automobile industry, of course, will be called upon to make some real sacrifices in turning from production of cars and trucks to production for defense. Still the shift has to be made regardless of its effect upon the industry. We must conserve steel, gasoline, rubber, plate glass, nickel, lead, and other defense materials that enter into automobile production. In 1939, or before our defense program was launched, the motor industry consumed 18 per cent of our total steel output and 55 per cent of our alloy steel. It accounted for 90 per cent of the gasoline used and 80 per cent of our rubber consumption. Moreover, the industry now employs about 500,000 workers, many of whom could be used to advantage in defense jobs. And, with some retooling, machines used for producing automobiles can be adapted to production of defense equipment. As to the sacrifice which all this will entail in the industry, the transition from production of cars for civilian use to production for defense calls for careful planning to avoid extensive and prolonged dayoffs of men. Consequently, the OPM has asked automobile manufacturers to meet this week in Washington, and set up an advisory committee to assist the Government to "minimize dislocations which might result in wasteful shutdowns and large scale unemployment." Waste of time and energy hitherto should induce a speed-up on this new line of approach.

Gayda's Advice

As a dutiful yes-man Benito Mussolini has followed Hitler into the war on Russia. He has even begun to organize an Italian expeditionary force to help the Nazis conquer that vast and sprawling country. But Italian radio and press commentators are raising no high hopes of a speedy victory over the Bolsheviks. On the contrary, all of Benito's mouthpieces, from Virginio Gayda down, have been warning the Italian people that the struggle with Russia may prove a long hard one. "It would be a grave error," says Gayda, "to think everything will be easily and quickly settled. Russia is able to resist in the face of various offensives, not only because of the gigantic mass of arms and men, but also because of the vast extension of Russian territory."

From a realistic point of view this may prove sound advice. But its purpose may be preventive as well as informative. The Germans have never concealed their scorn of the Italians as soldiers, and the Italians know it. Should the German drive into Russia fail speedily to achieve its objectives, there can be little doubt that the Italians would not be too upset by that development. They might go so far as to indulge in some discreet cheers over the discomfiture of their ally. Perhaps, indeed, they are hoping that the German army will be given a near-licking, so as to reduce Nazi bumptiousness, particularly in relations with Italy.

Therefore, Signor Gayda, as spokesman for his Quisling Duce, may be trying to keep Italians from premature jubilation in the event of a possible German setback. He is telling them, in other words, not to permit their natural feelings to get the better of their judgment. They must be wise enough not to believe that even if the Germans are held up by the Russians for any length of time, Germany will be defeated. Defeat for Hitler may be too much to expect, though the only hope of Italian liberation lies in the possibility of such a defeat.

Hardly Cricket

P. G. Wodehouse has got into a weirder situation than even his fertile imagination could have conceived. Here is an Englishman released from an internment camp in Germany for the purpose of entertaining his American public from a Berlin broadcasting studio. Justifiably the British are hurt, particularly as Mr. Wodehouse adds gratuitously that he does not feel belligerent. Without doubt the Nazis would not accord Mr. Wodehouse such an extraordinary privilege unless they expected to profit from it. What do they expect? Obviously to show off Mr. Wodehouse as a demonstration of their generosity and fellow-feeling. Of course, Mr. Wodehouse would not lend himself to propaganda, but he will be propaganda, nevertheless. The easy-going Mr. Wodehouse, who was caught during the blitzkrieg in France as he was entertaining his friends at a cocktail party, should have put the problem up to Jeeves. That is certainly what Bertie Wooster would have done. Jeeves, of course, would not have hesitated a minute, and we feel he would have kept Mr. Wodehouse from accepting this seductive proffer from his country's enemy. For Jeeves had a sense of the proprieties and a sense of proportion—both of which qualities Mr. Wodehouse himself seems to lack, even though he is Jeeves' creator.

LINES FOR THE NEXT GENERATION

We have this thing, more malleable than reach
Of thinning Time: compounded syllable
And thought, rewelded into lucid speech
Of iron consonant and silver vowel.

More weighted than the vialed mercury,
Louder than thunder, clear as bittern cry,
A word can pierce the brain more potently
Than brash Ulysses probed the Cyclops eye.

Be volatile. Let no alarming foes
Impede the throated valves with dikes of fear;
However far, however strange, our language flows
Against the caves of every hearkened ear.

Give back the talon to the hungry hawk,
Return the lethal gas to earth again;
There is no room for force where men may talk
To one another on a common plane.

We shall advance upon your speaking voice,
Upon the vehicle of what you spell—
O you to come, be chary in your choice:
Shell without words or words more charged than shell!

Indignant

On June 19, accompanied by my wife, I was stopped at the north end of Pennsylvania Avenue Bridge by a police officer and charged with speeding at 42 miles per hour from the light at Minnesota Avenue, across and to the north end of the bridge.

On the following day at the Traffic Court I was fined $12 after stating my case, which was that from the light at Minnesota Avenue, I followed immediately in the rear of a car traveling 20 miles per hour and was unable to pass it until I crossed a railroad track a short distance from the south end of the bridge. A car following us made a left turn toward the golf course. This, with the car moving along slowly at 20 miles, tied up other traffic and caused us to be out in front alone upon approaching the bridge. I was at least one-third of the way across the bridge when two cars bearing District tags came on the bridge behind us. A laundry truck was preceding us. I kept pace with this truck for some distance at 30 miles per hour. Through the mirror I noticed the car in which the officer was traveling, speeding through the bridge and catching up to me rapidly. At this moment the laundry truck slackened up and I pulled up ahead and parked at the curb opposite the trolley station to permit my wife to board the street car and thus avoid driving through the heavy traffic in the center of the city.

In the courtroom before our case was called, another insult was passed along to us. An officer held up one finger before the officer who arrested us, indicating "What, only one case?" thereupon the officer held up his fingers indicating two fives, one five and one single finger, indicating 16, with a grin showing that he was quite happy about it all.

The point I want to bring out is that the traffic laws should be flexible, the same as all other laws; that my wife and I were not criminals, and should not have been treated as such; that the officers engaged in this work should not allow their enthusiasm and their eagerness for promotion to get the better of them and forget the Golden Rule. No driver, and no policeman, is without some faults. I have been driving for 30 years and this is the first time I have ever been in court. Yes, I was exceeding 25 miles per hour, but who doesn't. It was not so much the fine, nor the loss of time, but the contemptible manner in which it was carried out that prompts me to ask what rights we have, if any.

Senator Pat Harrison

Small and great statesmen and lawmakers have come and gone and no matter how bright their star of deeds shone, it burned out after a short time. But the lights which Hon. Pat Harrison, Senator from Mississippi has kindled during his time in the Capital is bound to keep burning for many generations to come. When many Southern Senators were smiling at the suggestions of a young over-enthusiastic girl from Austria, to educate the American people to nutrition values and of bringing within every one's reach vital Southern food products of the sea and land to all parts of the country, and so to help them all to better living and greater prosperity, Senator Pat Harrison was helping me in 1934 to bring Mississippi's crabmeat and other products to the markets, and so helped every one to enjoy this rich vitamin food and at the same time establish in his and in other Southern States a new prosperous industry and also increase other industries in connection with it. There are other far too numbers benefits to mention which Senator Pat Harrison has helped me to bring to America, my chosen country.

He knew and was fortunate to have always a cooperative office force and a wife and children, who backed him up in every way and are constantly contributing to America's greatness and the perpetuation of his ideals. Mississippi can be proud of having had such an outstanding man represent them. It is hoped and wished that they will continue to make wise choices in the selection of their representatives. WPA Curtailment

The proposed reduction of $500,000,000 in the appropriations for WPA operations during the fiscal year beginning July 1 will greatly quicken poverty and want throughout the Nation, not among the younger generations, who are the idols of national defense and private industry, but among the older generations, who are about to be forgotten by the Government, and, like beggars, will be abruptly and cruelly brushed aside by private industry.

It will be a disgrace to Congress and a stigma upon our way of life if the WPA rolls are curtailed as proposed, because few of our countrymen have been told that the pay rolls of the WPA are composed of men and women who, on account of their age, will not be considered by national defense or private industry. There are 1,440,000 men and women on WPA projects; 32 per cent, or approximately 460,000 are under the age of 35; 24 per cent, or approximately 345,000, are between the ages of 35 and 44; 24 per cent plus, or 345,000, are between the ages of 45 and 55; and from 19 to 20 per cent, of 273,600, are 55 years of age and over. If the WPA rolls are reduced, what is going to become of these 618,600 unemployables who were over 50 years of age as of June 1?

If these people are dropped from relief work—not charity—and if this is the democratic way of rendering to democracy the things that are democracy's, then we should, if we have any decency left, never speak of democracy again!

Two-Front War

For the first time since that fateful day at Munich, when the cold steel of the 2,000,000 Czech bayonets pressed dangerously close to the back of the Nazi tyrant were shattered by the appeasers, the Allies have a splendid opportunity to force Hitler into fighting a two-front war.

At the present, the problem confronting the Nazi despot is not that of maintaining a small force in the East to combat an equally small Czech army, but is rather in addition to policing of the continent, that of concentrating nearly all of his available men and materials in the East in order to carry out the gigantic task of subduing the powerful Russian Bear.

An invasion of the European continent by the Allies, who now not only control the western sea lanes but also the air, is not a far-fetched dream, but a logical possibility. After an intense bombardment from the sea and the air, the Allies may well jut a spearhead into the continent certain of a friendly reception from those peoples recently subdued by the Hitlerian regime.

If the Allies ever expect to attempt an invasion, which they certainly must do in order to gain a decisive victory over Nazidom, now is the time.

With every force that Britain can possibly master, and all possible assistance from our Nation, the Allies should force their way into the front door of the house that Hitler built, while he is locked in mortal combat protecting the back door.

Police Department

In the Letters to the Editor department this morning I note a letter signed by F. D. Tremd, suggesting that the Governor of each State appoint two policemen for duty in Washington. This prompts me to suggest that an investigation should be made to determine whether that is not already what is wrong with the Police Department; that members of the force get their jobs through intervention of politicians back in the States.

Of Aid To Russia

I am one American woman who is distressed and outraged by the turn our national thought has apparently taken as exemplified by such expressions as "Russia the lesser of the two evils," and offers of aid to Russia by officials of our Government. The fact that our two avowed enemies, Nazism and Communism, are now in separate camps does not alter their status one whit. Both are out to destroy our form of government, and to strengthen one is only to strengthen an enemy.

This new issue means that we must deal with these enemies separately instead of together, and since each works its destruction by different methods, we must recognize these methods and direct our fight accordingly. Hitlerism gets its results by military aggression, and must be downed by military means. We can aid in this accomplishment, not by making Russia stronger, but by furnishing Britain with all possible materials of war to blast Germany on her own soil while her war machine is occupied in Russia. That is one sure and certain way of conquering Germany, but the materials must come swiftly, and be accompanied by explicit directions for their use, prepared by our own military strategists, that the materials be not wasted or poured down a sieve as Americans are beginning to feel. After all, it is part of the American heritage to know how to fight savages, and the Nazis are nothing more or less than savages on wheels.

Communists wage a less obvious but more deadly battle by infesting the body politic with cancers which devour slowly but surely the heart of our democratic institutions. They do not need strong military establishments, and even if Russia is overrun by Germany, their war will not cease. We must fight this menace by clinical methods; by inoculating our citizens, young and old, with the strongest virtue of Americanism possible to manufacture; by building up resistance in our social structure so strong that no germ can take hold; by swift and ruthless surgery wherever the cancer has already appeared. The Dies Committee can tell us where to begin the surgery, and no one, high or low, suspected of harboring the disease, should be spared. Our national safety demands it.

So I, an American woman, hereby appoint myself a committee of one to tell my Government how I should like to have this defense business handled. I personally am not going to fall headlong into the trap of believing that I must fight one enemy by aiding another. And as I am a mother and have a great stake in the future of my country, I shall use every influence and voice I possess to make my sentiments known. LUCILE C. MILLER.
Berwyn, Md., June 25.

Farm Labor

Labor raids in defense factories have had wide publicity in the press, but little has been said about such raids on farms, which deserve to be ranked as defense operations at a time when England and associated powers are preparing to draw so heavily on this country for their cheese, eggs, pork and milk.

A flagrant case of this sort in agriculture has just come to my attention. A local young man who is in service as a lieutenant at a North Carolina camp employed a colored man, January 1 of this year, on a year's contract, to take care of his crop of tobacco. A few days ago a neighbor hired this colored man away from his employer. No notice of any sort was given the young farmer, who is preparing at a military camp to defend his country. The only explanation given by the farmer who hired the Negro was, "I must have labor and shall hire it wherever I can get it."

This sort of thing certainly does not make for unity and national defense. Possibly there is some law which can reach a labor hog of this sort who takes advantage of a man who is patriotically serving his country. If there isn't, there should be. The ethics and patriotism of some citizens seem to be at such a low ebb that they will not play the game fairly.

The Post Impressionist

Emmy

"Write a piece sometime all about me," Emmy suggested the other day.

She didn't expect that I would really do it, because she knows that I am an old curmudgeon, and perhaps in the end I won't, because the subject is a baffling one. In fact any specific individual makes a taxing subject, and the only persons it is quite easy to write about are those whom you make up yourself, entire or in part.

One reason that it is hard to describe Emmy is that she hardly ever stays still long enough for you to take a picture of her. And my typewriter is no high-speed, candid job. It's quite old-fashioned, and anything that I attempt to portray through it must stand very still for a long time, some things for as long as 20 years. For no typewriter is any faster in turning out its product than the intelligence of the person who operates it, and if I had been Adam I would have had to look at even a pig for a matter of months before deciding that it looked like a pig and therefore should be called a PIG.

Emmy, of course, is no pig, but although I have had the advantage of looking at her almost continuously for nearly twenty years, I have not managed to find the exact and specific name for her. I know there's at least one young man who has made up his mind, and now calls her sweetheart, but even to one young man nowadays that name is not certain to denote one individual and her alone. Nor can I call her daughter and let it go at that, for I have other daughters, and the name might mean one of them, just as sweetheart to the young man (especially as he is in the Marine Corps) might from time to time mean some other girl than Emmy.

And Emmy, of course, is only a name. It doesn't tell what the young lady who bears it really is, for it might denote a short, dumpy, complacent sort of person who has difficulty in getting under way. And the young lady who wanted me to write just about her doesn't answer to any part of that description. She isn't tall, but she is not dumpy. Instead, she's slender, with here and there a quite satisfactory curve, say about the mouth, and here and there an awkward angle. Her knees, for example, come at each other in a peculiar way.

You can't describe Emmy satisfactorily at all by laying out a map of her anatomy, for it is not the distinguishing thing about her—and if some less sunny and energetic person than she happened to possess it, it might turn into a mere clod of peculiar shapes and ensemble and move about with far less grace than that with which Emmy, because of something deep inside her, manages to invest her own movements. For Emmy has rhythm, and song, and the love of dancing and merriment and laughter and the bright sunlight in her. And although she did in a contemplative moment ask me to write a piece all about her, she ordinarily puts a great deal more thought on other persons, and on the lively times she can have with them, than she puts upon herself. She doesn't like to sit around and rust, and she is apt to consider that she is rusting grievously if she is home all evening and has no callers, or has engaged in no conversational marathon over the telephone. Best of all, she likes to be out where there's light and noise and lots of good looking people.

But her activity doesn't positively have to be what usually goes under the label of "fun" or "a good time." If something has to be done, and the only person around to do it is someone such as her mother, whom she loves a great deal, she will pitch in and do the job herself. It may be disagreeable and monotonous or even dirty and repelling, yet still it is something to do. Quite frequently, or at any rate frequently enough, she will dash out and do the dishes for the family, and that at the end of a fairly long day at the office where she has had to complete any number of detailed and tiresome things. It isn't the same as dancing, but it does let her use some of her muscles, and it gives her a kick because she is doing something actively that is associated with someone she loves.

You can call her extrovert; or sunbeam, or radiance, or gunpowder, or humming bird, or dynamite, or clitter-clatter, but you cannot accurately call her anything that is dead or static or dull or motionless. Sometimes, if you are an old curmudgeon like her dad, you can call her a pest and nuisance and the greatest possible distraction, next to the radio and phonograph, to a person who may conceivably wish to sit quietly in his home and brood over his troubles. But if you do call her these latter names, it won't get her down. Instead of that it will get you un either up in the air, or into a more sociable mood, for anyone as grumpy as all that simply isn't real to Emmy. They're just people who need to be kidded or laughed out of a mood that, since it isn't very comfortable for her, can't, she feels, be very comfortable for them, either.

She is so very sympathetic that she can't bear to see anyone uncomfortable or in any kind of distress. She'd give her last dime to anyone who seemed to need it, and has done so a number of times. And although she's always talking about starting a saving account, she hasn't yet, because this week (of course it'll be the last week, she says) she saw the daintiest bit of underwear for her mother, or the grandest present for the boy who calls her sweetheart, or it happened to be just before Father's Day, or nearly her brother's (or her sister's, or her aunt's, or her granddad's) birthday.

Not since Henry Fielding wrote about Tom Jones, and convinced those with a leaning to the literary craft that no character is credible if he is described as wholly good or wholly bad, has any writer, even a father writing about his child, or a child writing about his father or mother, ventured to portray anyone either as all angel or all devil. It is necessary to admit therefore that at times Emmy is a bit of a devil. Yet even then the effect is rather that of spice or seasoning, and makes her in real life, as Tom Jones was in fiction, a thoroughly credible character.

Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

Our Greatest Frozen Asset

IT IS DIFFICULT to understand how Mr. Hoover, who as President of the United States has also been Commander in Chief, could deliver a prepared address about the Russian situation and never even allude to the fact that Russia and the United States have a common boundary in the Bering Sea. "Japan," said Mr. Hoover, "is 6,000 miles away from continental United States." Mr. Hoover's figure happens to be wrong. The distance from Yokohama to Seattle is 4,376 miles. But even the correct figure is meaningless. Alaska is American territory and the distance by sea from Japan to Dutch Harbor is 2,547 miles and from Russian Kamchatka it is 1,281 miles.

LIPPMANN

But what really matters is that there are Russian air bases in Siberia that are within much less than a hundred miles of Alaska, which, Mr. Hoover should remember, is American territory. These Russian air bases are about as near to our main naval bases in Alaska as Norway is to Scotland. How then can a responsible statesman afford to talk as if there were 6,000 miles of ocean between us and danger, and that the only problem presented by the Russian war is how to express our feelings about Bolshevism? For the question posed by the Russian war is whether the ports and airfields of Eastern Siberia are to remain in independent Russian hands, or are to be seized by Japan, or are to be controlled by some sort of puppet government under Nazi or Japanese or Nazi-Japanese control.

THIS IS AN URGENT question since no one can be at all sure whether there would be any Russian political resistance left in Siberia if the regime collapsed in Europe. And it is such a very grave question for the United States that our policy should be based primarily on the advice of our naval, air, and military commanders and not on vaporings about democracy, the four freedoms, and Bolshevism.

For not only does Alaska have to be defended because it is American territory, an impregnable position in Alaska is vital to the defense of the whole Western Hemisphere. Securely in our hands as a base of operations for the fleet and the air force it not only guarantees the defense of the northern and shortest route to the Pacific Coast but it is a great outpost for the only true defense—mainly an offensive against Japan. Were Japan or the Axis to control Eastern Siberia, the whole naval position of the United States would be greatly weakened. From Eastern Siberia the use of Alaska would be severely threatened by air and sea raiders. Japan, on the other hand, would no longer be threatened and therefore checked by the Russians in Siberia, nor nearly so vulnerable to the Americans from Alaska. Whereas we should have to use more warships to guard the Northern Pacific, Japan would be freer than she has ever been to take her fleet out of her home waters and strike where she saw a favorable opening.

WHAT HAPPENS in the region of Siberia and Alaska is of critical importance to us. It will either greatly reduce our naval power or it will greatly increase it. If Siberia falls to the Axis, the effect will be to compel us to keep a very large fleet in the Northern Pacific when we may desperately need those ships in the otherwise undefended Atlantic. If, on the other hand, our military commanders can devise measures for dealing effectively with the Siberian question, we may be able to make it possible to defend the Northern Pacific without freezing the whole fleet there indefinitely.

This, and not what we feel about Stalin, is the great issue which ought to have the full attention of all who not only wish to put America first but also know how to put America first. The problem of Siberia, Alaska, the Northern Pacific, and the position of the Japanese and of the American fleets is just about as serious a problem as we have had to consider since the war began, and it deserves a kind of serious attention which it has not begun to receive.

THE BASIC PROBLEM of American defense is how since we cannot hope to have "a two-ocean navy" for another five years, we are to defend the Western Hemisphere with a one-ocean navy, that is to say with a navy somewhat superior to the Japanese but inferior to the Japanese plus the German, Italian, and French, and if Britain fell, a considerable part of the British. Our policy of giving aid to Britain and to China has been based on the realization that China was a check upon Japan and that Britain has the Axis locked up in Europe. It is a sign of the times that Mr. Hoover, who never promoted this policy when it was being debated, now favors it; that he who did not wish to let Britain buy bombers now rejoices in the bombers being flown to Britain; that he who gave no support to the transfer of the destroyers last year now wishes with the excessive zeal of a convert to hand over to Britain "the same convoy warships we should use if we joined the war," that is to say the Atlantic fleet.

In any event the policy of aiding Britain and China is established as a measure of American defense. But what has been realized generally is that this policy still leaves us with no adequate fleet of our own in the Atlantic and with the fleet in the Pacific as a kind of frozen asset in the middle of the Pacific. This might not be so bad if the country, with the approval of men like Mr. Hoover, were prepared to reinforce Britain so that under no circumstances could we be left to stand alone in the Atlantic. But since those who think like Mr. Hoover compel us to take the awful gamble of a British defeat, it is necessary for that reason alone, but for many others also, to find ways of unfreezing our naval power in the Pacific.

VERY GREAT PROGRESS has been made in this direction as a result of the development of an aerial defense in the region from Manila and Hongkong to Singapore. This undoubtedly relieves the pressure upon the American Navy in the Southern Pacific. The Siberian question, if successfully handled, will enormously relieve the pressure in the Northern Pacific. If it is fumbled, it will, on the other hand, freeze the fleet more than ever.

Our great object, surely, must be to hold Japan in check with the Chinese army, the Russian army, with airplanes and submarines, so that our main fleet shall be free for any eventuality in either ocean.

THE ONLY WAY to make a one-ocean Navy suffice for two oceans is to use other devices, military, economic, and diplomatic to restrain Japan and, then perhaps to reach a settlement with Japan. Our object should be to unfreeze the fleet which is now frozen in the Pacific, working with everybody in the Pacific—the Chinese and the British and the Dutch, of course, and also with the Russians, to achieve this object, the mobility of the American Navy, so indispensable to our own security.

Partial Text Of Knox Talk

'Now Is The Time'

By the Associated Press

Boston, June 30.—The text of Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox's address prepared for the thirty-third National Conference of Governors follows in part:

I AM SPEAKING to you out of a deep sense of my responsibility and as the civilian head of the American Navy . . . At such time, and under such circumstances, one must measure his words with care. I do this when I say to you that everything we cherish is directly challenged by a ruthless dictator who grasps at world dominion. This threat to our own institutions, our hard won freedoms, our very way of life, comes nearer and becomes clear, every day.

Within the past week, Hitler has turned on his dupe—his quasi-ally—Stalin and swung into action against Russia, 160 divisions of its army, supported by a powerful air armada. For eight days now, this attack has been proceeding. Despite Russia's backwardness in things military, she has assembled to confront the Nazi army a huge army of its own. Granted that Germany possesses a far more efficient war machine, and in spite of the unquestioned superiority of German military leadership, to conquer Russia with her immense territory and her millions of soldiers, is a task which is bound to consume vital months in this crucial year of 1941.

For the first time since Hitler loosed the dogs of war on the world, we are provided with a God-given chance to determine the outcome of this word-wide struggle. Now is the time to put into motion the huge machine we have been building since the war began. Our world has been challenged by a pagan force that seeks to destroy the very fundamentals of a Christian civilization. We can insure, beyond a shadow of a doubt, the defeat of that pagan force, and insure a victory for a Christian civilization.

The President reinforced and supported by the people, through the operation of their democratic institutions, has said that it is insufficient to merely produce articles of defense to aid those fighting Germany. He has said also that those articles must be delivered where they can be used. The President declared this should be done; this will be done; this must be done. Thus, in the most solemn fashion, the actual delivery of our aid is a part of our pledge. Now is the time to fulfill that pledge.

MOMENTARILY, HITLER has turned his back upon us: Contemptuously holding our proferred aid to a futile and empty gesture, since we were permitting it to pile up, undelivered, on our docks, he has turned upon his quondam partner and is treacherously reducing Russia to a slave state in his new order. While his back is turned, we must answer his obvious contempt with a smashing blow that can and will change the entire world perspection.

If, while Hitler is assaulting Stalin, we can clear the path across the Atlantic, and deliver in safety, the weapons our factories are now producing, ultimate defeat for Hitler is certain.

(The Secretary recited a list of ship sinkings, with loss of machine guns, ammunition, planes, tanks and food, then continued.)

. . . We must remember that for every ship that we, and the British, are now building, three are being sunk, and not only the sunken ship is lost, but also the planes, the guns, the ammunition and food which it carries.

There is only one end to this rate of sinking—victory for Hitler which will give him ultimate domination over the world.

At this time while Hitler is busy crushin Russia, we are presented with an opportunity to vitally aid Britain. We can help Britain strike at Hitler by gi ing her the means to bomb Hitler's oil, his planes, his guns and other material of war, and by cracking the morale of the German people. Thus we can make them understand the cruelty and ruthlessness which Hitler has unloosed upon the world. This can only be done if the passage across the Atlantic is cleared for traffic and if the ships which carry the oil, the planes, the guns and the food are not sunk. An all-out offensive that will destroy Hitlerism can only be undertaken if the products of the huge war industry which we are completing find their destination on the British Isles promptly and safely.

* * * *

Again I say, now is the time to strike. And, saying that, I would be derelict if I did not add that all of this involves risk and danger.

IT MAY involve sacrifice to the uttermost. When force is turned loose in the world—force directed toward the destruction of the institutions of human freedom—that force can only be met with a greater force—force without limit or stint.

* * * *

America must wake up, not alone to its danger—and the dangers are real and fearsome, but to the realities of the sacrifice demanded, we must, if need be, match with American tears, American toil, American sweat and American blood, the toil, the tears, the sweat, and the blood which Britain has gallantly spent to hold in check the devastating spread of Nazi power throughout the civilized world. To us is given, through the inscrutable ways of God, a challenge, and a responsibility. We cannot meet that challenge—we cannot discharge that responsibility, by working five days a week and eight hours a day; by putting the needs and necessities of civilian life and comforts ahead of the hard necessities of national defense. We cannot cling to any formula of "business as usual" and profits as usual when our business has become the halting of the Hun in his triumphant march toward dominion over an enslaved world in which the light of liberty will be snuffed out, and men everywhere must bend a pliant knee to a pagan tyrant.

I can find no better words with which to close than to repeat the gallant words of my Commander in Chief, to which I subscribe from the bottom of my heart: "I would rather die on by feet than live on my knees."

The time to use our Navy to clear the Atlantic of the German menace is at hand.

Russia And China

By Wilbur Burton

What May We Now Expect

IT MAY BE TAKEN for granted, even though no reports are immediately available, that the first effect on China of Hitler's invasion of Russia will be complete cessation of Soviet supplies to Chungking. This, however, is of no major importance. These supplies have never been as great as Soviet propagandists would have us believe; they were completely stopped during much of last year while Russia was recovering from the war with Finland, and they have been insignificant for most of this year.

They were never vital to China, save possibly for a time after the fall of Shanghai; and for the past two years they have been very secondary to supplies from Great Britain and/or the United States. During this period—ironic to note—a part of the supplies through Russia have been from the Greater Reich, specifically the Czech Skoda works and apparently sent to China because they did not fit into German standardized equipment. Before the fall of Czechoslovakia, Skoda was the largest single supplier to General Chiang Kai-shek.

During the period after the route through Indo-China was cut off the Burma Road closed, the only open route from Chungking to the world was through Russia—and it was during this same period that Russian supplies were least. Smuggling through Japanese lines was more important by far than what came from Russia. There is still probably as much that reaches Chungking by smuggling as over the Burma Road, but such heavy articles as military trucks and artillery can't be smuggled.

FAR MORE important than cessation of supplies is what will be the general party line of China's own Reds in consequence of the Hitlerian assault on the Communist fatherland. Since our own Reds sometimes can't keep the party line straight through one edition of the Daily Worker, no mere observer could possibly know. But a brief survey of the factors involved may throw some light on eventualities.

It may be recalled that General Chiang originally rose to power in a nationalist revolution largely directed and in part financed by Moscow. He broke with Moscow early in 1927, however, and for almost a full decade thereafter was engaged in fighting the Reds—long avowedly regarding them as a greater menace to his China than the Japanese. And for a time, at least, they tacitly regarded him as a greater menace to their China than the Japanese.

A "Soviet Republic of China," with its capital in Juikin, Kiangsi, was formally proclaimed on November 7, 1931, fourteenth anniversary of the Bolshevik Revolution in Russia and a little less than two months after the Japanese invasion of Manchuria. No reference whatsoever was made by the Reds to the Japanese in the inaugural speeches and manifestoes of their grandiose venture. It was only in April of the following year — after Japanese forces had established outposts on the Soviet border—that the records show any Juikin note of Tokyo's imperialistic activities. Then started, in ever mounting volume, a deluge of propaganda for a Chinese "united front" against Japanese aggression. No Chinese Red soldier ever faced a Japanese, however, until mid-1937. Neither did any soldier of Chiang Kai-shek, save briefly in Shanghai in 1932. Such little Chinese resistance as was manifested during this period was by neither the Red nor Chiang factions.

GENERAL CHIANG'S Blueshirts in the cities and his warriors in the field and sky, meanwhile decimated both the Chinese Communist Party and Red Armies. The "Soviet Republic" was completely destroyed in the latter part of 1935, although the main part of the Red Armies under Mao Tse-tung and Chu Tu escaped intact and finally established new bases in Shansi and Shensi. Meanwhile, Russia matched the Japanese conquest of Manchuria by virtual occupation of Sinkiang, China's rich, little known northwest province. This was initially effected by transporting Chinese refugee troops from Manchuria across Siberia into Sinkiang, where with Soviet advice and finance they overthrew the existing regime and established a Moscow puppet government. Later, Russian troops were sent into the province.

In 1936 there was a gradual rapprochement between General Chiang and both Moscow and the Chinese Reds on an anti-Japanese basis. This was dramatically signalized—and presumably expedited—by the classic kidnapping late in 1936 of General Chiang by pro-Red troops at Sian, Shensi. With his Christmas Day release—apparently after diplomatic intervention by both London and Moscow—a definite Kuomintang-Red "united front" was established. All this, it may be recalled, was just after the Nazi-Nipponese anti-Comintern pact.

THUS THE STAGE was set for the full-fledged resistance of China to Japan that started in mid-1937. Under terms of the Red-Kuomintang agreement, both the Chinese Communist Party and the Red Armies were completely subordinated to General Chiang, and all Soviet supplies were sent directly to him.

This agreement was rigorously observed until after the fall of Hankow in 1938 and the removal of General Chiang's capital to Chungking. Then Russia started supplying the Red Armies direct and differences began to develop between the Kuomintang and the Chinese Communist Party. To this date, however, there has never been an indication of any rift between Moscow and Chungking.

At the same time the pro-Soviet groups—in America and elsewhere—have seen to it that Russian aid to China and the exploits of the Chinese Red Armies have been far better heralded than the steady extension and consolidation of neo-Czarist hegemony over north and northwest China. Actually, as I have said, direct Soviet aid—most notably in inferior aircraft—has rarely been vital and has always been greatly exaggerated. And while the Red Armies have displayed many commendable qualities—especially in education and treatment of civilian population—they have never scored any major victory over the Japanese. They have assisted in some victories, they have generally held their lines, and they have supplied their full quota of guerrillas which have been so successful in preventing the Japanese from profiting from their military gains.

But Red policy has been chiefly directed to carving out a Moscow-dominated sphere from the borders of Tibet and India to Manchukuo——embracing Sinkiang, Kansu, Inner Mongolia and Shensi and Shansi. Sinkiang is now wholly under Russian rule and there are Russian units in Kansu, while upward of 500,000 Chinese Red troops are established over Inner Mongolia, Shensi and Shansi.

AT ONE TIME this Red area extended southward to Anhwei, and it was this fact that led to Chungking difficulties with the Communist Fourth Route Army late last year. As a matter of fact, the Chungking order for this army to move northward has never been fully enforced, and Red units still hold sway in various parts of the Yangtse Valley. The Eighth Route Army is the chief Red force, and all evidence indicates that it no longer even makes a pretense of taking orders from Chungking. Nor, so far as is known, has Chungking recently presumed to send it any orders.

On the other hand, the present Red position in China has been built up through invocation of nationalism, and the Red leaders could not if they wished adopt any patently anti-nationalist stand without risking loss of their mass support. But many things may be done in the name of nationalism through adroit propaganda.

If Japan utilizes Hitler's invasion of Russia for further anti-Soviet moves, there will not be, of course, any problem. China's Reds will continue to defend both their Communist and celestial fatherlands. But if Tokyo should seek a deal with beleaguered Moscow on the basis of Chinese Reds desisting from any further anti-Japanese activity?

I WOULD NOT attempt an answer to that question except to point to the record—which seems to show that the Chinese Red leaders would try to conform to the new party line. Whether they could carry their rank and file with them is, however, quite another question. In any event, Gen. Chiang now commands fully four times the armed forces of the Reds, and in the past three years he has also achieved the greatest popular support of any leader in all the millenniums of Chinese history.

Finally, the ultimate decision probably depends more on Washington than on Chungking, Moscow or Tokyo.

Building Problems

Defense Comes First

PROSPECTIVE HOUSE builders, already facing critical shortage in construction materials and equipment, will find their problems intensified by the priority status granted last week to defense building, OPM officials admitted yesterday.

They added that in conjunction with members of the Defense Housing Coordinator's Office, they are preparing a new defense housing critical list—probably containing such items as structural steel, copper and copper wire, zinc and special steel fixtures—on which defense housing projects will be given first call.

Under the new program, preference ratings will be granted to contractors building defense homes, either publicly or privately financed. The stated objective is to assure a steady flow of building materials to housing projects considered essential to the defense program.

IN GENERAL, it was indicated, the priorities will be granted only to housing for workers engaged in defense industries and where the intended sales price is $6,000 or less, or the proposed rental is $50 per month or less.

The ratings will be granted, it was announced, to defense housing projects within areas to be designated by the Defense Housing Coordinator. These areas, it was expected, will be in the neighborhood of new defense plants, shipyards, Government arsenals, or near factories which have suddenly expanded operations to handle large-scale armament orders.

Private contractors have already encountered difficulties in obtaining deliveries on certain building materials, defense officials reported, and must expect further stringencies in the face of rising defense needs for such items as copper, nickel, brass, cork and rubber. The new priorities program, they said, will mean that where a choice exists, preference in deliveries and supply will go to dwellings under construction for workers in defense areas.

FBI Wire-Tapping Measure Beaten

The House last night defeated an Administration-sponsored measure to authorize the Federal Bureau of Investigation to "tap" communications wires in investigations of sabotage, espionage, kidnaping and extortion cases.

The vote was 154 to 146 against the measure, with Republicans joining with Liberal Democrats against the bill.

Nature Outings Set For Rock Creek Park

Donald Edward McHenry, National Capital Parks naturalist, will conduct junior nature outings today and tomorrow in Rock Creek Park. This morning's program, beginning at 9:30, will be for children from 6 to 12. Tomorrow's, at the same time, will be for those over 12.

The groups will organize in picnic grove No. 9, near Beach and Bingham Drives. Children wishing to go to the meeting place by bus are directed to gather at Sixteenth and Underwood Streets Northwest by 9:15 a. m. on both days.

Whys And Wherefors Of Russian Aid

MARK SULLIVAN, of the Herald Tribune outfit, my colleague in punditry, has been worrying about the American party line, so to speak, now that Hitler has chased Joe Stalin into the war on our side, but I think I can straighten him out and many others with him and gladly undertake to do so.

PEGLER

Mr. Sullivan is afraid that our Government's announcement of a policy of all-possible-aid-to-Russia "made an impression that we seemed to take toward Russia the same relation that we have to Britain," and inquired: "How can we say we are going to help Stalin and, at the same time, go on with our prosecution of Stalin's agents in the United States?"

I say that's easy.

FIRST OF ALL, we all know we are not going to take toward Russia the same relation that we have toward Britain, for, to Americans, the Russians are just another breed of faceless people like the Germans, lacking volition in this war and all other situations. We know, too, that they entered the war for no principle, but only because they were jumped on suddenly by a double-crosser no better nor any worse, except that he is more efficient than their own dictator. They didn't come in to preserve any of the freedoms which we have heard so much about or to preserve the Western civilization and Christianity from Hitler and the German race. They suddenly found themselves at war to save their own lives, without, as far as anyone knows, so much as a word of parley or even the pretense of a grievance. They have to fight on our side, and inasmuch as they must fight the common enemy it would be foolish of us not to give them a cheer, which is practically all we can give them, anyway, and refrain from hampering them.

And victory for our side certainly doesn't mean that we automatically fall victim to Stalinism under Russian domination, because, as we very well know, the Russians have been absurdly dumb and clumsy in their efforts to spread Communism in other lands, and have lost the decision wherever they made the break, producing, instead, the reaction, or Hitlerism, which is just Communism under native management. We don't have to fear their conquering us after the war if our side wins, but we certainly would have to fear enslavement by Hitler should he win, because that man is not only as vile as Stalin, but a tremendous fighter who hates our very tripes.

AS TO WHETHER we will whip up something of our own to abolish and supersede our accustomed and cherished American way in the event of victory, I wouldn't undertake to say, because it has been my idea for a long time that the American people have been running down to the saloon with our most precious heirloom and trading them in for habitforming shots of grog to reconcile us to our troubles. We have actually come to the point now of saying that a man is ignoble and un-American who plaintively insists that he is entitled to the money he earns and all he can earn legitimately. And, ironically, the South which for good and easily remembered reasons, hates carpet-baggers, voted almost unanimously and repeatedly for a new carpet-bagger system in return for some pieces of silver out of Washington. Not being industrial, the South didn't have the exeperience with organized unions and unioneers and the labor board and other bureaucrats which might have warned the people that nothing they were gaining in the way of handout was half so precious as what they yielded up.

SO, IF WE WIN, with the involuntary assistance of the Russians, and nevertheless lose those freedoms and our human individuality, that will be just the fault of ourselves and Fate. But if Hitler wins, we will do as Hitler says, because he will have a world on which to draw for soldiers and the tools and ships of war, all directed by this amazingly and frightfully efficient and ruthless genius.

And now what about this business of prosecuting Stalin's agents while we are, in a manner of speaking, his ally in the war on the common enemy?

Well, if Britain had agents among us trying to set up a kingdom we would prosecute those agents, too. But the British have had the intelligence to realize that we dont want a king and would resent any attempt to establish a monarchy here and have left us alone ever since we finally convinced them that we meant business.

STALIN, on the other hand, with the seditious help of a few native Americans and import jobs, including, rather oddly, a strong element of Irish, has been trying to establish Communism here, and that has made it necessary for us to get rather tough in a refined way.

Now, however, he has called them off and after the war, if we win, there will be no Stalin to direct them, because his own mob will get him and somebody else will then assume the privilege of kicking the dull, dumb Russians around.

Sylvan Theater Festival Tonight

Three Brahms ballads, taken from old English and Scottish airs, will be presented at 8:15 p. m. today by the Marian Chace Dancers at the second summer festival of the season at the Sylvan Theater at the Washington Monument.

The Lovette Choral Club, directed by Eva Whiteford Lovette, will sing two groups of summer songs. Although the festivals are ordinarily held on Wednesday evenings, the program has been moved a day ahead this week to make way for July Fourth arrangements at the Monument.

Mrs. Roosevelt Favors Lower Draft Age

Age limits for Selective Service should be lowered, Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt says in an article in the issue of Look magazine appearing on the newsstands today.

Draft boards, she says, "should publish in the press not only the names of all men drafted but the classification of all men in the draft and the reasons for their classification. There seems to be cropping out . . . the feeling that favoritism is shown."

Pointing out that volunteers for the Army have largely been between 18 and 21, Mrs. Roosevelt said that calling men older than 25 has revealed conflicts with needed industrial skills and with dependency.

She added that more uniformity in practice of local boards should be achieved, that tuberculosis tests should be given and that deferment of college students should be considered on the merits of each case.

Volunteer Takes Post at Hampshire House

ON THE JOB—Mrs. Donald L. White, of 1814 Irving Street Northwest, a volunteer for District defense work, has been assigned to the Hampshire House, 1105 New Hampshire Avenue Northwest. She was pictured on the job there yesterday with some of the youngsters in her charge

Miss Streiff's Roommate Fails to Shed Light On Sex-Murder; Garage Clew Proves False

A last hope for a clew in the Strieff murder case vanished yesterday when homicide detectives interviewed a former roommate of the pretty War Department worker.

Miss Betty Stribling, who shared her apartment at 1426 Twenty-first Street Northwest, with Miss Streiff until June 1, came into police headquarters yesterday morning. She had been vacationing in Des Moines, Iowa, her home town as well as the birthplace of Jessie Elizabeth Streiff.

After questioning by police, in an effort to be of help to the authorities, Miss Stribling left headquarters.

"Miss Stribling could shed no light on the case," Acting Chief of Detectives Ira B. Keck stated.

Umbrella Belonged to Friend

He did say, however, that the white, transparent umbrella which Miss Streiff took with her on that fateful Sunday when she vanished in the rain belonged to Miss Stribling.

Betty Strieff borrowed the umbrella on June 6, Miss Stribling told police. The slain girl had no friends here, except for Stanley LeBlanc. LeBlanc had waited for Betty Strieff to return from a trip to a store to buy a stick of butter on June 15.

Miss Strieff left her home at 2110 Nineteenth Street Northwest about 2:30 p. m., and apparently was not seen again, except by her assailant until her nude body was discovered the next morning in a garage in the rear of 1711 Q Street Northwest.

A blood-stained garage in the rear of 1205 Hamilton Street Northwest was also disclosed as having no bearing on the Strieff case. The blood, discovered by Mrs. A. L. Gilbert, of that address, came from the cut fingers or hand of a prowler, police said. The prowler apparently locked himself inside the garage and had to break a window to get out, according to Capt. Keck.

The 26-year-old colored man, who on Sunday gave Police a chase after molesting three white women, also was eliminated from any suspicion in the Strieff case. He lives in the 1500 block of Corcoran Street Northwest just two blocks from the garage where Miss Strieff's body was found. Capt. Keck said the man had been a patient at St. Elizabeths and Gallinger and probably would be sent to one of the institutions for mental observation.

Two white men, who attempted to assault a colored girl will be questioned in the case. Police have one of the men and state the second will be brought in for questioning also.

Police are looking for a colored man in connection with the death of Mabel Everett, colored, of the 400 block of Columbia Road Northwest, whose body was found Sunday under a mattress in the locker room of an apartment house at 3023 Fourteenth Street Northwest. Dr. Richard Rosenberg, deputy coroner said the woman had been dead a week.

Explains Value Of Corps' Work

James J. McEntee, director of the Civilian Conservation Corps, last night explained the defense value of C Cwork and the opportunities offered within its ranks in an NBC broadcast on the eve of the Corps' quarterly enrollment, which begins today.

"To my mind," McEntee said, "the youth of America has two challenges today—to preserve their country's natural resources and human resources."

He outlined the conservation work done by the CCC, citing as special example fire-fighting work and flood relief work. Urging the value of the organization in building up the "physical standards of all young men," he said that experience in the camps was excellent training for army life.

Police Continue Hunt for Attacker

Prince Georges County police last night were continuing their search for a colored man who attacked a young woman and her escort in College Park Saturday.

Chief of Police Arthur Hepburn said yesteday that an intensive investigation of the area where the attack occurred has been made.

Suspect Denies Attack Charge; Held for Jury

James Ralph McKenzie, colored, yesterday calmly faced Judge Walter J. Casey in Police Court and pleaded not guilty to charges that he robbed and attacked Mrs. Vada Abarca a week ago today.

He waived preiminary hearing and was ordered held without bond for grand jury action on the attack charge. He supplied a $5,000 bond on the robbery charge. Another charge of robbery against McKenzie will be presented to the grand jury. This latter charge alleges a holdup of Miss Katherine Harper, 30, of 1035 Quebec Place Northwest, who, like Mrs. Abarca, is a laundry clerk.

McKenzie appeared in court alone yesterday. His attorney, John H. Wilson, communicated with court officials asking that a preliminary hearing be waived and stated his client's intention of pleading not guilty. As soon as Judge Casey had ruled, the prisoner was removed from the courtroom.

Seated in the courtroom, which was crowded, were Mrs. Abarca and Miss Harper. Both stared at McKenzie throughout the proceedings. They were accompanied by Detective Sergt. Dan Jones. He and Sergt. Elmer L. Lewis arrested McKenzie last Thursday while touring the city in a police cruiser with the two victims.

One week ago today Mrs. Abarca was criminally assaulted and robbed in a cleaning establishment in the 3400 block of Fourteenth Street Northwest. The next day, on Wednesday, Miss Harper was robbed while at work in a cleaning establishment in the 1800 block of Fourteenth Street Northwest.

Convalescent Home for Young To Open Today

A summer convalescent home for negro children financed by the Community Chest with the cooperation of the District Tuberculosis Association, will open at Bald Eagle Hill today. Twenty-five convalescent children are expected to arrive in time for dinner at 5 p. m.

Use of the Bald Eagle property was made possible by the Tuberculosis Association which transferred its dollar-a-year lease, and turned over all equipment formerly used in the association's summer camp for tubercular children.

DOCTORS WARN FOLKS WHO ARE CONSTIPATED—

IT IS SAID constipation causes many human discomforts—headaches, lack of energy and mental dullness being but a few. BUT DON'T WORRY—

For years a noted Ohio Doctor, Dr. F. M. Edwards, successfully treated scores of patients for constipation with his famous Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—now sold by druggists everywhere.

Olive Tablets, being purely vegetable, are wonderful! They not only gently yet thoroughly cleanse the bowels but ALSO assist liver bile flow to help digest fatty foods. Test their goodness TONIGHT without fail! 15¢, 30¢, 60¢.

Plant Seizure Bill Assailed Because It Might Aid Russia

By Henry L. Dorris

Copyright by New York Times

The Administration's plant seizure bill was opposed yesterday by Merwin K. Hart, New York State economic counsel, on the ground it would be used to aid Russia. If it is to be passed Hart urged an amendment to prevent it being used in any way to help Russia.

Col. John Thomas Taylor, legislative representative of the American Legion, said the legion was "unqualifiedly for the bill."

"For this Congress to authorize giving away the property of this nation to aid the population of Communist Russia while Russia itself in violation of a solemn treaty is engaged in a plan to destroy the Government of the United States by force would be something so novel, so craven that at the very least it ought not to be done unless the Congress specially cares to authorize it," Hart said.

"I believe the American people are willing and glad to pay any reasonable taxation for national defense but I believe they would vote down overwhelming the taking of their money to aid in the perpetuation of Communist Russia."

The measure, opposed generally by Hart and others at a hearing before the Senate Military Affairs Committee, would permit the President to requisition war equipment and tools necessary to their manufacture and patents or plans for their manufacture.

Hart told the committee he believed that the United States policy of aiding Russia in the war with Germany has hurt Britain's cause in this country, because he said, it has aroused opposition of people who "don't like Soviet Russia."

"There has been a tendency the past eight years," he said, "to take too lightly these rights of the people that are known as property rights. This bill threatens to disrupt the private enterprise system on which we must depend for the building up of our greatly needed defense."

Carl H. Mote, president of the Northern Indiana Telephone Co., was critical of what he said was the "bureaucratic" aim in Washington for a collectivization of all private property.

Arthur W. Dickey, of Detroit, representing the Michigan Patent Law Association, objected to the inclusion of the right to commandeer patents, and Lester P. Barlow, of Washington, also asked that the patent provision be eliminated. Karl Fenning, Washington, representing the National Council of Patent Law Association, urged that the Government license rather than authorize seizure of patents.

A. P. Hagke, Chicago, representing the National Association of Furniture Manufacturers, declared the enactment of the bill would mean the "socialization of all property."

Benjamin C. Marsh, representing the people's lobby, told the committee the bill should require the President to take over all defense industry, contending that "the dictatorship of private business" had retarded the defense program.

Duress Claim Wins New Trial For Convicted Police Slayer

Willie Bullock, 39, colored, won a new trial yesterday for the killing of Patrolman George W. Shinault here nine years ago. Bullock had been under death sentence.

Bullock claimed that after he was caught in April, 1939, the Washington police beat him until his mouth and nose bled and he was dizzy and almost blind with pain. He signed a confession.

"The practice of extorting confessions from poor and ignorant men," said Justice Henry W. Edgerton for the United States Court of Appeals, has been condemned by the Supreme Court. "No such practice shall send any accused to his death."

Bullock will not again be in danger of the electric chair. Justice Edgerton, in stating the specific ground of the new trial order, said the evidence would not support a verdict of murder in the first degree, which required "premeditation and deliberation" of the crime.

Chief Justice D. Lawrence Groner and Justice Fred Vinson concurred in the decision.

James W. Bryan To Be Honored At Stag Party

James William Bryan, recently appointed assistant to the Secretary of Commerce and "originator of the state of AlaFlaMus," will be honored by his friends at "a stag party for an old stag" tonight at 7:30 in the National Press Club Auditorium.

According to the Jim Bryan Night Committee, "friends of Jim will be there from as far away as China—a special delegation from his native Tennessee hills, including a web-footed fiddler-Hindu who saw Jim originate the Indian rope trick—a Kentucky colonel who will tell how Jim won the Derby, Preakness and Belmont on Man o War—also the Dunkard who sold Jim the typeless printing plant."

Engaged Couple's Frank Discussions of 'All Phases Of Life' Reach Impasse When Man Asks Girl Question She Hesitates to Answer Honestly; What to Reply?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: As a girl of 23 I have been deeply interested in the vigorous discussion of chastity, to which you have recently given space in your column. I honestly believe that virtue is the best foundation for a successful marriage; but cannot see that lack of it, in the conventional sense, need ruin a marriage.

It seems to me that men are fundamentally more conventional than women; and that it is a most unusual man who can easily forgive, or even condone, an illicit affair on the part of the girl he hopes to marry. Therefore, I believe the best solution is NOT to tell your past, in the mistaken hope that it will absolve the sin; but, rather, to strive to the very best of your ability to prove to your husband how really faithful you are.

But here is my problem: Three years ago I was engaged to be married to a boy my own age. We were very deeply in love, and as we could not marry for two years we decided not to wait for marriage. As a result of this decision we loved each other more than ever, and it was definitely not on the physical plane only. Then, in 1939, he was instantly killed in an automobile crash, caused by circumstances beyond the control of anyone.

Now, I have just become engaged to a fine boy of 26. We seem suited in most ways, but lately a problem has arisen. We discuss all phases of life freely, but until last night he had never before asked me if I were a virgin. Before I could frame a reply, we were interrupted; and perhaps fortunately, because I honestly did not know what to say.

Should I go against my theories and tell him the truth? Or should I tell a deliberate falsehood? Please help me. I am sure he will repeat the question soon again, and just now I have arrived at a mental impasse. Your column is fine, and people of all ages find help and courage in it. Sincerely,

D. J. A.

Stand Your Ground, In Deflecting Query

DEAR D. J. A.: In the recent "vigorous discussion of chastity," (which, incidentally, might have flourished all summer, if I had published all letters received; including second, third and even fourth letters from some particularly exercised correspondents), there appeared to be one point on which all commentators (from the most liberal to the most straitlaced) were agreed, to-wit: that a girl's repented "past mistakes" are not only her inviolably personal business, but her cross to bear, in silence. In coping with the young man's leading question, therefore, I believe you may take your cue from that cross-section, unanimously concurring opinion.

If again he subjects your record to question, ask him, directly and quietly, "Does it matter?" In so speaking, you will be, on the one hand, neither admitting nor denying; but, on the other hand, will be giving him a significant (yet intangible) clue to the existence of a closed chapter in your past; and a forthright introduction to your honest conviction that it is best to "let the dead past bury its dead." Also, the counter-question challenges him to say, either that it does matter, greatly; or that it wouldn't change his essential estimate of you.

In the event that he says it does matter—then, surely, in fairness to him and in order to keep faith with your sound, instinctive realization that "silence is golden"—you will take immediate, but diplomatic, mutually "face-saving" steps to break the engagement. If he assures you that it doesn't matter ("—at least, not where you are concerned—"), and considerately carries the discussion into the field of abstract theorizing; or otherwise indicates that he understands and dismisses the implications of your attitude, then you might proceed with marriage plans, on the assumption that the delicate subject has been finally and decently disposed of—in a tacit meeting of sensitively attuned minds.

If, however, you find him struggling valiantly but unsuccessfully to take your non-committal attitude in his stride, by first giving you to understand that nothing you might tell him would diminish his love for, or desire to marry, you; and then returning conversationally, time and again, with morbid fascination, to the riddle of your reticence, you had best let him go out of your life, without unburdening your soul to him.

As has been wisely said, "Actions speak louder than words"—and your conduct in relation to him, and to society generally, in the time he has known you is the only evidence he is entitled to sift (and that any open-minded man would care to consider), in judging for himself whether you are a fine, trustworthy person who would make him an exemplary wife. Furthermore, it is sufficient evidence to establish the basic pattern of your character.

And if he feels a need, or shows a disposition, to exhume your past, supposedly for the purpose of getting a precautionary "line" on the real you—he must be appraised as a man who is neurotically on the alert for moral aberrations in others; which would mean, in turn, that he would be always basically distrustful in love, probably because his own imagination, or experience, constitutes an ugy battleground, where unmoral inclinations struggle constantly for supremacy.

M. H.

Wastebaskets May Be Decorative

Even wastebaskets should be decorative, and if the budget won't stand for any nonsense in hand-painted tole, leather or mirror, then make some pretty slip covers for your old ones—relying on your trusty sewing machine to do the hard work.

A tailored cover for a waste basket can be made of a plain fabric bound top and bottom with contrasting bias bands with a monogram made of bias tape. For a dressing room, have a gay nineties "corset" slip cover made of pastel plaid cotton finished top and bottom with a contrasting scalloped facing and laced up the front. For most any pretty bedroom or informal living room, make a waste basket of flowered chintz. For a little girl's room have a wastebasket slipcover made like a little starched apron with pockets and a bow in the back.

Improve Your Tennis Strategy

"TENNIS can be divided into two divisions: offense and defense," says Mercer Beasley, well-known tennis coach.

Know when to go on the defensive and when to take the offensive and up go your chances of winning.

Where you play the ball may decide. The court is divided in three zones for singles play. Behind the base line is the "danger zone" in which the odds against your making a point are highest. The part of the court in gray is the "caution zone" where the odds against you are still fairly high.

Then between the service line and the net is the "attack zone" where your chances are best. Just what the odds are in various spots is shown in our diagram in the booklet.

Proper Garb Can Aid You Defeat Heat

By Jane Driscoll
The Post Fashion Editor

MANY WOMEN, especially those who have recently come to the city for defense work, are experiencing for the first time, a Washington summer. Many of them find temperatures are different from those to which they have been accustomed.

How to dress comfortably and at least look cool is a major problem of those and of most other Washington women. Here are some suggestions from old-timers who are experienced in defeating the heat.

Frosted white and light colored stripes, prints and sheers in featherweight fabrics are one secret of coolness. Even if your dress is a lightweight fabric in a dark color, it will virtually make you look hot. The same dress in white or a light color will almost make you appear air conditioned.

Try Light Chambray

Try out a light colored striped chambray for yourself. When a man pays you the nicest of all compliments—that you look "so cool"—just watch your temperature drop a degree. But thereby hangs a tale. You will not really look cool unless your dress is impeccably tailored. A messy, sloppy dress, that you wear only when it is hot, always looks warm.

Beware, too, of the very sheer dress—the kind under which you have to wear two slips to keep your modesty. They are gay deceivers on the hanger, but on the figure they really shut out the breezes. Sheer black, however, if it isn't too thin, can almost be made to appear chilly when combined with crisp white.

Here Some Recipes

For some concrete recipes for coolness, here are a few other suggestions:

Low bodices with square, V, or sweetheart necks.

Casual shirtwaist or princess lines.

Crisp white embroidery touches.

Fabrics that do not muss badly—pique, chambray, rayon, seersucker and jersey.

Plain cut dresses, with no frills or gadgets—especially about the neck.

Unpressed pleats that do not require continual attention.

Simple accessories — the kind that can be washed or cleaned easily to be kept fresh.

Relax and Take Things Easily, Gloria Swanson's Beauty Advice

By Ida Jean Kain

IF YOU have arrived at the point where you are inclined to hedge about your birth date you will have no trouble in privately recalling Gloria Swanson as one of your favorite silent screen stars. Well, she is back in pictures, and not in one of those mellow, older woman parts, but in one designed to display beauty and fascination. It is almost beyond imagining that anyone who began her career at least a quarter of a century ago, merely dallied with the talkies, and quit the screen cold for several years, could so casually step back into such a role. But Miss Swanson is a very remarkable person. She is perfectly capable of meeting oomph and glamour on their own ground.

Back in the fall of 1937 I told you of a meeting with this famous beauty. At the time I deliberately omitted any mention of her two daughters—Gloria has since married and Michele is getting to be a big girl—because those bits of information didn't seem to fit in with some of the other things I was saying. I didn't want to suggest the "well preserved" celebrity.

Not Young but Beautiful

Meeting Miss Swanson, you won't think of how old she is or how young she looks, but how extraordinarily beautiful she is. She has a fine complexion, blue-green eyes, long, fringed eyelashes, a regal carriage and a perfect figure. (Statistics: Bust, 36 inches; waist, 26 inches; hips, a slight 35½ inches.) And when you add to those points the wit and infinite charm of a cosmopolitan woman of 40-plus you have quite an array of attractiveness.

The secret, if we're to credit Miss Swanson, is that she is "literally lazy." She is convinced that the ability to relax is essential to a woman's looks and well being. And since serenity is the main factor in relaxing, she thinks there is a great deal to be said for the theory of never putting off until tomorrow what you can put off until next week.

Goes for Massaging

She used to insure relaxation by having massage every other day. Now she has it whenever she can manage the time. But in making "Father Takes a Wife" she proved how fit she is. She started in at 9 in the morning to hang upside-down from rings, stand on her head and do anything else that struck the director as good calisthenics, kept at it until quitting time and wasn't even sore the next day.

Even though she has gone lazy, this star was brought up on plenty of exercise. As a child her favorite trick was "skinning the cat"—and she thinks that accounts for the wide shoulders and good bust measurement. Also, when the family was living in Puerto Rico, she imitated the native women who carried heavy baskets on their heads and learned the knack of walking in such perfect poise that today she says she could walk for a block with a book balanced on her head—in spite of high heels and traffic. I believe she could.

Weight is never any problem to Gloria Swanson. She happens to like vegetables plain and she doesn't like foods that are high in fat. That's fortunate, because she is only 5 feet 1½ inches tall without shoes, and for anyone of that height the calories are not usually easily controlled. Her weight never goes above 112 pounds.

You'll be seeing her in pictures soon and you'll be able to judge for yourself what a superb posture and an appreciation of relaxation and calorie control do for a woman.

Argentine Ambassador Fetes Armours Tonight

American Envoy to Buenos Aires and Wife Came Home to Attend Wedding of Son

By Hope Ridings Miller

ENVOY ARMOUR

IN TOWN for a few days are the United States Envoy to the Argentine and Mrs. Norman Armour, who arrived here yesterday from New York and are staying at the Mayflower. The visitors will be feted at a dinner to be given tonight by the Argentine Ambassador and Senora de Espil.

Ambassador and Mrs. Armour flew up from South America last week to attend the wedding on Saturday of their only son, Norman, jr., and Miss Cynthia Sewall Burrage at Ipswich, Mass. When the young couple left on their wedding trip to Canada, the Ambassador and Mrs. Armour returned to New York where they were at the Waldorf-Astoria until yesterday. Although the envoy is on leave of absence from his diplomatic duties, he has come to Washington to report to the State Department.

MRS. ARMOUR

The Armours stopped briefly in Washington last autumn but were here for such a short time they turned down all invitations except one from Mrs. Cordell Hull, who had them in for a cup of tea. Although they were in this country for several weeks at that time, they spent most of their vacation in New England, and went on to Hot Springs, Va., from here.

A career diplomat from more than a quarter of a century, Mr. Armour has been assigned to a number of important posts in Europe, Asia, and South America. When he was serving as third secretary at our embassy in Russia he met Princess Myra Koudacheff, who is now Mrs. Armour. They were married 3 years later, in 1919, when he was on the staff of our embassy at Brussels.

GOING "FOURTH": Solicitor General and Mrs. Francis Biddle are at their summer home, Harvey Cedars, N. J., to stay through the holiday. Both are exepcted to return to Washington early next week . . . Mr. and Mrs. Gifford Pinchot, who are at Grey Towers, Milford, Pa., for the summer, will entertain several friends there over the coming weekend . . . Assistant Secretary of State Adolf A. Berle, jr., will spend the weekend with Mrs. Berle and their children at their summer place Konkopot Farm, near Great Barrington, Mass.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard C. Patterson (he was former Assistant Secretary of Commerce) have invited several Washingtonians for an over-the-Fourth weekend party at Wildewood, their home at Locust Valley, Long Island . . . Off on Thursday for an extended stay in Aurora, N. Y., will be Mr. and Mrs. William P. MacCracken, who have taken a professor's cottage on the campus of Wells College and will stay there until September 1. Accompanying them northward will be their daughter, Nell, and Mrs. MacCracken's mother, Mrs. Simeon T. Lewis. The son of the household, Lewis MacCracken, has a job in Elmira, N. Y., and will be there the remainder of the summer.

MORE TRAVEL NOTES: Assistant Attorney General Thurman Arnold and Mrs. Arnold are making some quick changes in their July 4 plans. Instead of accepting any of the numerous invitations they've had for the weekend, Mr. Arnold will fly to Dallas, Tex., on Thursday and will speak before the Texas Bar Association the following day. Mrs. Arnold will stay at their Virginia home. Meanwhile, she is up to her elbows in plans for helping to put across the Virginia registration for National Civilian Defense on July 12. Mrs. George Sloan is chairman for the project in all northern Virginia; and John Mackall is chairman for Fairfax County, with Mrs. Arnold serving as vice chairman . . . Off to White Sulphur, W. Va., today will go Mr. and Mrs. Harry Grant Meem, who will stay there through the holiday. Later this summer, they'll go to Colorado Springs, to see their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Beale McLean, jr.

CAPITAL CALENDAR: Homer Cummings will entertain a few friends at dinner this evening . . . Mrs. Ben Gund Koehler, daughter of Judge and Mrs. Finis J. Garrett, of Geneva, Nebr., will be feted at a luncheon to be given by Miss Reba Doughton and at a similar fete tomorrow at which Mrs. R. M. Cooper, of Arlington, Va., will be hostess . . . Mr. and Mrs. Henry Parsons Erwin will entertain at a musicale tomorrow evening at Abremont, their Rock Creek Park estate . . . Mrs. Randall Hagner will have guests dining with her tomorrow night at her country home in Maryland . . . AND, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Porter Davidson will entertain tomorrow afternoon in honor of Miss Peggy Lansdowne.

Cynthia Dunn Sets Wedding For October 4

Miss Cynthia Dunn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Clement Dunn, has selected the date of her wedding to Alexander Cochrane, of Boston. The ceremony will take place on Saturday, October 4, in Washington, but just where hasn't been decided yet.

The wedding is to be at 4 o'clock in the afternoon and later there'll be a large reception at the Observatory Circle home of Mr. and Mrs. Dunn. It was only a year ago last month that the pretty bride-to-be made her debut at a garden reception there. After she had spent several months last winter studying in New York, her engagement to Mr. Cochrane was announced.

The prospective bride will have several attendants at her wedding, most of them friends from out of town. With her older sister, Countess Guy de Baillet Latour, Miss Dunn is now vacationing in Marion, Mass. Their mother expects to join them the latter part of July, but is now busy drawing up wedding lists and making other plans for the October ceremony.

Death of Daughter Defers Glasses' Fete

Owing to the death of Mrs. I. W. Digges, daughter of Senator Carter Glass, of Virginia, Mrs. Glass has postponed the luncheon she was to have given today in honor of Mrs. Walter Wyatt.

Mrs. Digges died yesterday in New York of a heart attack. The Senator and his wife left immediately for New York on hearing the news.

Miss Reddan And Dr. Mundell Wed in Trenton

Palms and white gladioli formed the setting for the wedding yesterday morning at 10:30 of Miss Margaret Euphemia Mary Reddan, daughter of Mrs. John A. Reddan, of Trenton, N. J., and the late Mr. Reddan, to Dr. Benjamin James Mundell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Merryman Mundell, of this city.

The ceremony took place at St. Mary's Cathedral in Trenton, the Rev. Richard L. Crean officiating. The bride was given in marriage by her brother, John T. M. Reddan, of Washington. She wore a gown of imported French val lace with a maline skirt over satin. Her long veil was caught with orange blossoms and she carried a prayer book with white orchids.

Mrs. David Nolan Is Matron of Honor

Mrs. David Nolan was matron of honor, wearing a white frock made with a skirt of imported Swiss embroidered organdy and a waist of French silk. Her hat was white, trimmed with cornflower blue velvet, and she carried cornflowers to match. The bridesmaids, Mrs. John T. M. Reddan, of Washington, and Miss Marjorie D'Arcy, of Trenton, were similarly dressed and wore hats trimmed with coral velvet to match their bouquets of geraniums.

Charles Mundell, of Washington, was best man for his brother, and the ushers were John Mundell, another brother, and Joseph Mundell, jr., a cousin.

Reception Follows At Country Club

A small reception at the Trenton Country Club followed the ceremony. Mrs. Reddan wore a white sheer gown with a pink hat and orchids to match, and Mrs. Mundell was also dressed in white, with a cluster of purple orchids.

After a wedding trip through the South, the couple will live at the Frontenac, 4550 Connecticut Avenue. As her traveling costume the bride chose a white and blue silk print and a blue silk jersey coat and turban. She attended Georgian Court College at Lakewood, N. J., and Columbia University. Dr. Mundell studied at Georgetown College and Georgetown Medical School and was a fellow in obstetrics and gynecology at the Mayo Clinic.

Rebecca L. Lee, Dr. Harper to Wed

Mrs. Alexandra McD. Lee announces the engagement of her daughter, Rebecca Laurence Lee, to Dr. Lamar Blewett Harper, U. S. N.

The wedding will take place within a few days, with only members of the immediate families present.

Flegmans Announce Daughter's Betrothal

Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Flegman, of Baltimore, and formerly of Washington, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Shirley M. Flegman, to Maurice Carliner, also of Baltimore.

The bride-elect is a frequent visitor to Washington. She is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Simon Flegman of this city.

Official and Residential

The Netherlands Minister, Dr. Alexander Loudon, is at the Waldorf-Astoria in New York after joining Mme. Loudon at Nonquitt for the weekend.

The President of the United States Chamber of Commerce and Mrs. James Kemper returned from a trip to South America yesterday on the liner Uruguay.

Mrs. Sutherland Mayo has opened Murray Cottage at Southampton, Long Island, for the season.

The Rev. and Mrs. Anson Phelps Stokes have been joined at their home, Brook Farm, in Stockbridge, Mass., by their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. John D. Hatch, jr., of Slingerlands, N. Y. Dr. and Mrs. Stokes were hosts at a luncheon there on Sunday for the Rev. William Appleton Lawrence and Mrs. Lawrence, of Springfield, Mass.

Miss Elizabeth Barbour, daughter of Senator and Mrs. Warren Barbour, joined her aunt, Mrs. Sidney Lee, at the latter's home in Washington for the weekend.

Col. and Mrs. William McKee Dunn, of Washington, have opened their home, Gramercy Farm, at Hot Springs, Va., for the summer. Their daughters, the Misses Mildred, Hildreth, Lanier and Frances Dunn, are with them.

The Sangers Plan Yellowstone Tour

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Sanger will spend this weekend at the home of Mr. Sanger's family in upper New York State. Mrs. Sanger plans a trip West the latter part of July, with a stop at Yellowstone Park and a stay on a ranch.

When they return to Washington on Monday from their weekend, Mr. and Mrs. Sanger hope to start organizing the tennis tournament they have every year on their court at Westmoreland Hills. The competition is in celebration of Mrs. Sanger's birthday.

Manuel Trucco, Formerly Chile's Envoy, Visits U. S.

Welcomed in New York yesterday by various members of his family was the former Chilean Ambassador, Manuel Trucco. The former envoy arrived on the liner Santa Lucia to pay his first visit to the United States since he left here several years ago to return to Santiago.

Mr. Trucco's son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Manuel Trucco, jr., and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Knowlton—she was Rebecca Trucco—met him in New York yesterday. The former Ambassador is expected to come to Washington to renew acquaintances here sometime during his stay in this country.

Mrs. Tyner in New York

Mrs. Elonzo Tyner arrived in New York yesterday and is staying at the St. Regis.

J. U. Smiths On Bridal Tour; To Live in D.C.

After a stay at the Detroit Lakes in Minnesota, Mr. and Mrs. John Upsher Smith, who were married in St. Louis on Saturday, will make their home in Washington.

The bride, the former Miss Virginia Castleman Breckinridge, is the daughter of Mrs. George Coles Breckinridge, of St. Louis, and cousin of Assistant Secretary of State Breckinridge Long. Mr. Smith's parents are Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Upsher Smith, of St. Paul, Minn.

The couple were wed at Tyler Place Presbyterian Church, the Rev. Richard Upsher Smith, of Flint, Mich., twin brother of the bridegroom officiating, assisted by the Rev. George A. Sweazey.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her mother, wore a gown of white taffeta with short puffed sleeves, and heart shaped neckline and a long bodice with a full skirt ending in a train. She wore lilies of the valley in her hair to fasten her fingertip veil and carried calla lilies.

Mrs. Bradford W. Gregory, sister of Mr. Smith, was matron of honor, and the bridesmaids were Miss Carol Fleming and Mrs. William C. Bunch.

Jackson Ravenscroft, of Washington, was best man, and the ushers were Frank Upsher Smith, of St. Paul, and Embert Watson Dwyer.

A dinner for the families and wedding party followed at the Saum Hotel.

The bride attended Western College for Women in Oxford, Ohio, the University of Southern California and Occidental College, both at Los Angeles.

Mr. Smith is a graduate of Carleton College, Northfield, Minn., and the Harvard School of Business Administration. He is a member of the University and Harvard Clubs of Washington.

Thoms Fete Son And Recent Bride

More than 100 guests attended the reception given yesterday afternoon by Dr. and Mrs. Charles Thom in honor of their newlywed son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Richard Thom. The couple were married last week in Long Island, where they will make their home.

Mrs. Thom received her guests wearing a pink lace jacket frock and carrying a fan of Johanna Hill roses. The young Mrs. Thom, who was formerly Miss Dorothy Lee, of Port Jefferson, L. I., chose a white net frock with inserts of lace. She carried an arm bouquet of white roses and mixed flowers.

Among those who assisted the hostess during the hours of 4 and 7 o'clock were Mrs. Henry G. Knight, Mrs. Sydney Frissell, Mrs Hewitt Crosby, Miss Effie Sherzer, Mrs. A. K. Bakshian and Miss Blanche Thomas.

Heathercote-Amorys At Wagner Farm On Long Island

Richard Heathcote-Amory, of the British Embassy, and the Hon. Mrs. Heathcote-Amory are in Southampton, Long Island, spending a few days with Mr. and Mrs. Ernest C. Wagner at Red Top Farm. Mrs. Wagner is the sister of Mrs. George T. Pettingill, wife of the commandant of the Washington Navy Yard, and is a frequent visitor to Washington.

On Sunday the Heathcote-Amorys were honor guests at a tea given by Lady Howard de Walden, of Montreal, London, and Chirk Castle, Wales, mother of Mrs. Heathcote-Amory. The party followed the christening of Ian Mark, infant son of the embassy couple, in St. John's Episcopal Church. Lady de Walden is spending the season at Southampton.

Former D. C. Cleric to Wed

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Watson Forsyth, of Ben Avon, near Pittsburgh, Pa., announce the engagement of their daughter Margaret to the Rev. Samuel Robinson Allison, pastor of the Ben Avon Presbyterian Church. The wedding will take place in the fall, with the Rev. Dr. Albert Joseph McCartney, of the Covenant-First Presbyterian Church of Washington officiating.

Miss Forsyth is a graduate of Wellesley College. Mr. Allison graduated from the Washington and Jefferson College, and from Princeton Theological Seminary. He was formerly assistant minister at the Covenant-First Church in Washington. After four years he went to Scotland for a year of study in the University of Edinburgh, and afterward accepted a call to the Ben Avon Presbyterian Church.

Condons Moving To New Home On Historic Site

Lieut. Comdr. and Mrs. Arthur D. Condon have chosen the site of one of the oldest towns in Maryland for their new home, to which they are moving today. They will reside the year around at London-Town Terrace, their new property, which is on the South River between Washington and Annapolis, with Edgewater, Anne Arundel County, the postoffice address.

Their farm is on the site of the former village of London-Town, one of the first ports of entry in the United States. Only one building now remains, the former Town Hall which was built on the shores of South River in 1600. London-Town was a trading rival of Annapolis, which in those days was called Providence. It was a port of entry in 1683 on the land which belonged to William Burgess, a provincial leader, and was a popular port for the sale and distribution of slaves.

Arms Workers Lunch Bar Opens Today

Undersecretary of the Navy James Forrestal, Assistant Secretary of the Navy Ralph Bard, Admiral Harold R. Stark, Chief of Naval Operations, and Brig. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, deputy director of the Selective Service System, are among the officials who have accepted invitations to the gala opening of the "lunch bar" of the American Women's Voluntary Services today.

In the park back of the Munitions Buildings on Constitution Avenue, the outdoor eating place will be in operation during the summer for officers and civilian employes in these buildings.

At 1 p. m. today a large group of Army and Navy officials will be special guests, seated at tables under the trees.

The A. W. V. S., of which Mrs. Raymond Lee is local president, will conduct the outdoor lunch bar with moderate prices to provide a period of relaxation for men and women engaged "in a vital part of the Nation's business," it was announced.

At the opening today, a group of girls, members of the A. W. V. S. messenger service, will act as usherettes. They are Miss Deborah Kirk, Miss Daisy Davidson, Misses Marian, Caroline and Mary Rowcliff, Miss Betty Stewart-Richardson, Miss Patty Baker, Miss Helen Norris.

Embassy Attache Speaks

Underwood & Underwood

Miss Craig McGeachy (right), press officer at the British Embassy for the Ministry of Economic Warfare, spoke on Englishwomen's role in voluntary services, at the luncheon of the Women's Safety Committee, District of Columbia Motor Club, American Automobile Association, yesterday. She was photographed above with Mrs. George C. Thorpe, chairman of the committee, in the doorway of the Sulgrave Club, where the luncheon was held

Council of Church Women To Survey Welfare Needs

The Washington Council of Church Women yesterday adopted a program for surveying the city's assets and needs in social welfare.

Approximately a score of area chairmen voted to carry on the project at a luncheon meeting at the home of Miss Etta Mai Russell, executive secretary of the council, who planned the undertaking.

The survey, starting Monday and continuing through the summer, will be made in each community, with a listing of religious, recreational and social service agencies. A study will be made of housing, race relations, illness, income levels and other problems in each community, Miss Russell said.

Two Presbyterian missionaries, Miss Dora Mason, of Egypt, and Miss Isabel Blair, who has served in Ethiopia, spoke on their experiences in those countries. Both missionaries are assisting during July at the Wallace Memorial Presbyterian Vacation Bible School, but expect to return to their mission fields within the next few months if international conditions permit them to get passage.

Children who participate in the "doll schools" in various areas of Washington will dress a group of dolls for these missionaries to take back to the foreign countries for children there, the area chairmen voted yesterday.

Three of the "doll schools" opened yesterday at Trinity Methodist Church, the Church of the Reformation and Wilson Memorial Methodist Church, with approximately 200 girls "adopting" dolls given by churchwomen. At the two weeks' schools, these girls will learn homemaking methods through caring for the dolls.

At Miss Russell's luncheon yesterday, guests in addition to the area chairmen were Mrs. George A. Ross, president of the council; Mrs. Wallace N. Streeter, publicity chairman of the council, and Mrs. Walter Kline. Living at 478 N Street Southwest near the waterfront, Miss Russell served one of her seafood specialties—crabmeat salad.

Mrs. E. M. Watson Heads Orchestra Committee Unit

Mrs. Edwin M. Watson has been appointed chairman of the public relations group for the woman's committee of the National Symphony Orchestra, it was announced yesterday.

Mrs. Watson, known professionally as Frances Nash, pianist, who has been soloist with the orchestra several times, was named to the chairmanship by Mrs. Walter Bruce Howe, head of the woman's committee.

Mrs. Truxtun Beale has accepted the chairmanship of the entertainment group of the woman's committee; Mrs. Eugene Byrnes, membership, and Mrs. Robert H. Dunlap, publicity. The latter committee, though not yet complete, includes Mrs. George Angus Garrett, Hope Ridings Miller, Betty Hynes, Alice Eversman and Katharine Brooks.

Mrs. Howe was in Washington for the weekend, coming from Berry Hill, her summer home in Newport, for the opening concert at the Water Gate. She will return to Newport today.

City Club Plans July 'Get-Together' Series

The Womens City Club will hold a series of Thursday evening "get togethers" in July, Mrs. Gladys B. Middlemiss, president, announced yesterday.

A quiz contest and buffet supper will feature the first in the series, July 10. Mrs. H. L. Richardson, hostess, has invited members to her birthday celebration July 17. Mrs. Ruth H. Snodgrass will be hostess at the July 24 program, and Miss Blanche Crapo and Mrs. Gus Schuldt hostesses July 31.

The Womens City Club unit of the Red Cross, which meets at 10 a. m. each Monday at District Red Cross Headquarters, needs more women for sewing and knitting, Mrs. Middlemiss announced.

Women Told War Work Calls for Discipline

By Lucia Giddens

British women, starting their program of voluntary services a year ahead of the war, imposed self-discipline and gained a mastery of routine vital tasks which have made a vast contribution to the nation's defense effort, Miss Craig McGeachy, attache of the British Embassy, said in an address yesterday.

Speaking at the luncheon of the Women's Safety Committee of the District of Columbia Motor Club, American Automobile Association, at the Sulgrave Club, Miss McGeachy said:

The real challenge during the bombardment of civilian population is not death, but the problem of keeping daily life going on with a minimum of dislocation."

She pointed out that women's groups practiced driving in blackouts long before it became an army measure. When war broke out, 2,000 women were taken over by the Government to train other black-out drivers," she said.

Patriotism Must Be Backed by Organization

"Patriotism is not enough. Courage is not enough. One must create a sensible organization, provide training and competence in many branches of work in order to make a strong home defense," Miss McGeachy said.

Mrs. Harry S. Bernton, chairman of the volunteer bureau, District of Columbia Council of Defense, said that of the approximately 20,000 persons signing up here in the recent volunteer registration, 16 per cent listed themselves for skilled or semi-skilled motor service.

Twenty per cent registered in two other classifications of motor service—either to teach or to take training. The total forms a large reservoir of motor corps workers, she said.

"One of the greatest problems in the motor corps is a dearth of knowledge of the city," Mrs. Bernton said. She urged that plans be made for teaching numbers of these volunteers to know the city and short routes from point to point.

Washington I. Cleveland, manager of the District of Columbia division, A. A. A., explained the plan for conserving gasoline, as an effort to avoid a more drastic program of rationing.

2,000,000 Women Help Fight Battle of Britain

Miss McGeachy pointed out that nearly 2,000,000 women in England are in some branch of government service, including cooks and stewards in the Army, transport and ambulance drivers, secretaries and telephone operators for the air force, as well as pilots to ferry planes from factories and repair shops to airdromes.

In addition, the voluntary workers do a variety of chores in the communities in which they live, she pointed out.

Speaking of the child evacuation program, Miss McGeachy said that, with all its complications, more children are being cared for under methods of advanced nursery schools than ever before, and the incidence of childhood diseases such as whooping cough has been reduced among evacuees.

She said plans had been made for numerous homes for psychiatric cases expected as a result of intensive warfare. Fewer of these homes have been found necessary, and the surplus buildings have been given over for use as Red Cross hospitals or evacuation homes, she said. Miss McGeachy is press officer at the Embassy, representing the Ministry of Economic Warfare.

Mrs. Delano Describes Work of D. C. Women

Mrs. Preston Delano, of the Washington unit, American Women's Voluntary Services, described the work of its motor corps, which has graduated 125 mmebers in the year that it has been in operation. Courses in safety education, first aid, map reading for the District and running repairs are required, she said.

Mrs. George C. Thorpe, chairman of the women's safety committee, presided at the luncheon, the last of the season.

Representative Katharine Byron (Democrat), of Maryland; William A. Van Duzer, District director of vehicles and traffic, and Chief Stephen T. Porter, of the District Fire Department, were among the guests at the luncheon.

Committee members present included Mrs. Laurence Vincent Benet, Mrs. Clifford L. Corbin, Mrs. Henry Grattan Doyle, Mrs. John Ecker, Mrs. Joshua Evans, Mrs. David McCoach, Mrs. Paul V. McNutt, Capt. Rhoda Milliken, of the Women's Bureau, Metropolitan Police; Mrs. Merle Thorpe, Mrs. Walter R. Tuckerman and Mrs. Harvey W. Wiley.

Others present included Mrs. Arthur Charles Watkins, new president of the District Federation of Women's Clubs, and Mrs. Thomas G. Dignan, of Worcester, Mass., who is visiting her sister, Mrs. Henry Grattan Doyle.

Scout Tutors Going to Camp

Six Washington women have been appointed to scholarships at the Girl Scout National Training School at Camp Edith Macy, Pleasantville, N. Y., to prepare themselves to assist in the leadership program here next winter, it was announced yesterday.

Mrs. Walter Rastall, 5357 Reno Road, chairman of the program committee for Girl Scouts in District Three, is scheduled to leave this week to take a seven-day council members' course on the history, philosophy and program of Girl Scouting. She is being sent to her district.

Four of the others are leaders selected by the training committee of the Council of Girl Scouts of the District because of the work they have already done and the ability they have shown to interpret their findings to other leaders here.

Mrs. B. S. Mesick, 4439 Greenwich Parkway, will take the course in group leadership in intermediate Girl Scout troops September 2-9. Mrs. Paul Hurney, 3606 McKinley Street Northwest, is being sent by District Three to study the same course.

Mrs. M. D. Montague, 7909 Orchid Street Northwest, has been named by the council's training committee to study "How to Present Nature and Outdoor Activities to Girl Scouts," September 2-9.

Miss Eugenia J. Van Dorn, 1609 Thirty-first Street Northwest, will study "How to Present the Program Fields to Girl Scouts," July 31-August 10.

Mrs. A. D. Studebaker, 3378 Stephenson Place Northwest, will attend Camp Edith Macy, August 14-28 for the course in "How to Present Arts and Crafts to Girl Scouts."

21 'Girls' States' Planned for U. S.

Twenty-one "Girls' States" are being sponsored by the American Legion Auxiliary this year to give selected high school girls special training in citizenship, it was announced yesterday by Mrs. Rae R. Zaontz, radio chairman of the Department of the District of Columbia, American Legion Auxiliary.

The "Girls' States" are modeled after the "Boys' States" which have been conducted for a number of years by The American Legion. The students establish and operate a complete State government of their own, learning how to make the machinery of democracy function by actual practice.

"Girls' States" are being held this year in California, Delaware, Georgia, Illinois, Indiana, Kansas, Louisiana, Michigan, Missouri, Nebraska, New York, Carolina, North Dakota, Oklahoma, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Texas, Vermont, West Virginia, Wisconsin and Wyoming. Practically all are being held in June or July, in session one week.

Since the local auxiliary is in the Nation's Capital, the juniors of high school age are in "Girls' Nation," which is equivalent to the "Girls' States" throughout the country. It is headed by Mrs. Betty Lee Busch.

Washingtonians At Convention

Several Washingtonians have taken leading parts in the ninetieth convention of Alpha Delta Pi Sorority, which ends today at Hot Springs, Va.

Miss Helen Fuller was principal speaker at the dinner; Mrs. Noble Boaz, chairman of the Southern luncheon yesterday; Mrs. George Martin, chairman of the benefit bridge for British Relief, and Miss Jessie Gardner, official convention reporter. Mrs. Richard Fourchy served as convention chairman for registration and finance, and Mrs. F. Norman Hearn for decoration and flowers.

Mrs. William Clark was delegates from the Washington Alumnae Association, while the delegates from the two active Washington chapters were Miss Kathleen Norris, Alpha Pi, from George Washington University, and Miss Ann Ausland, Beta Phi, from the University of Maryland. Gamma Province, of which these two chapters are members, acted as hostess at the convention.

Dr. Sarah Branham, Mrs. Graeme Bannerman and Mrs. E. V. Clendenin, of Washington, also attended the convention.

Relief Society Plans Cruise

A moonlight summer reunion will be held on the steamship, Mount Vernon, July 9, by the Washington Ladies' Auxiliary of the Jewish Consumptives' Relief Society, of which Mrs. Nathan N. Wallack is president.

The excursion is for the benefit of the sanatorium at Denver where nine Washington patients are now receiving free medical care. Mrs. Robert Klein is in charge of tickets and arrangements.

The junior and intermediate groups will also take part in the event, under leadership of their presidents, Miss Nan Goldstein and Mrs. Melvin Myers.

Speech Class Holds Banquet

Mrs. Helen Montfort Moodie's class in public speaking, composed of 14 business and professional men and women of Arlington, Va., held its commencement exercises last night after a banquet in the Hotel Broadmoor. Each graduate made a brief speech.

Congress Passes District Fund Bill

A $54,183,106 District appropriation bill for this fiscal year today awaits the signature of President Roosevelt.

The bill made its last Congressional hurdle yesterday by six votes, the margin by which the House reluctantly agreed to a Senate amendment which permits nonresidents of the District to send their children to local schools without payment of tuition.

Acceptance by the House followed a plea by Representative Mahon (Democrat), of Texas, chairman of the District Appropriations Subcommittee.

The free-tuition amendment, contrary to a House provision which would have required payment by all nonresidents, including members of the armed forces and Congressmen, aroused the ire of Representative Stefan (Republican), of Nebraska.

Stefan urged members to stand by the original House provision, declaring that the practice of teaching children of nonresidents without charge is costing District taxpayers $280,000 a year.

Vote Is 147 To 141

Mahon observed that the provision was subject to point-of-order objection as being legislation in an appropriation bill and pleaded against further delay in enactment of the measure on this account. He lost on a division and then called for a record vote. This time he won, 147 to 141.

The measure, as finally approved, is the largest "District bill" in history and carries increases over 1941 appropriations for schools and other civic improvements. A compromise agreement between Senate and House conferees added 79 policemen to the Metropolitan force, including provisions for four expert crime investigators to be paid captains' salaries.

As the bill was moving toward enactment, Senate leaders announced that Senator Overton (Democrat), of Louisiana, is due to leave the chairmanship of the District Appropriations subcommittee to assume the chairmanship of the Naval subcommittee.

Senator O'Mahoney (Democrat), of Wyoming, next in line for the District post, indicated he woud accept it.

Announcement of advancement of Overton, long a hard fighter for larger Federal payments to the District and author of the Overton formula for settlement of the old District-United State fiscal controversy, was made by Senator Glass (Democrat), of Virginia, chairman of the Appropriations Committee.

Overton, Glass revealed, is next in line for the naval chairmanship soon to be vacated by Senator Byrnes (Democrat), of South Carolina, whose nomination to the Supreme Court has been confirmed.

Fairbanks, Jr., Tells of South America Trip

Douglas Fairbanks, jr., has an important role in the biggest show of his lifetime. And he's not acting. He's dead serious.

Recently returned from a swing through five South American countries, he dangled a spoon over dessert at the Carlton Hotel last night and discussed the setting of the show. Today he's going over some of the script with the director, Under Secretary of State Sumner Welles—who sent him on the tour at the behest of President Roosevelt.

"It wasn't a good-will tour," he said. "It was a fact-finding mission."

The Fairbanks whose favorite weapons on the screen are a rapier or a winsome grin "stumbled along" with the aid of one weapon—a knowledge of the Spanish language, he said.

The fact that he got the facts like a good reporter indicates that the grin must have been employed, even though a rapier was unnecessary.

First of all, he wants it understood that the officials and masses of the people in the countries he visited—Argentina, Brazil, Chile, Uraguay and Peru—are strongly in favor of the United States as opposed to the totalitarian states.

"Everywhere I went hundreds and thousands of people would gather and chant 'Roosevelt, Roosevelt,'" he said. "There's a general worship of the man. To those people he's an absolute hero and the hope of the world."

The "bad guys" in this show are the some 1,200,000 Nazis in South America, according to his findings. "They're very active," said Fairbanks. "And underline the very."

The Nazis are making their presence felt "in more ways than I could tell you in three days," he said. "They have representatives in the press, the radio, in business, in military positions, and in a few cases even in key positions in the governments."

Bookniga Case Slated for Jury This Afternoon

A District Court jury this afternoon is scheduled to begin consideration of criminal conspiracy charges against three alleged Soviet agents whose book company failed to register with the State Department.

Accused are Morris Liskin, president of Bookniga Corporation; Raphael Rush, vice president, and Norman Weinberg, secretary. Justice F. Dickinson Letts yesterday refused to direct a verdict for Liskin.

Meanwhile, Dr. Frederick Ernst Auhagen, founder of the American Fellowship Forum and alleged Nazi propagandist, failed to appear before Judge Charles G. Briggle for trial for failing to register with the State Department. Told that Dr. Auhagen was ill in a New York Hospital, Judge Briggle ordered evidence on his condition produced today.

87 Collectors To Aid USO

Eighty-seven new volunteer defense workers registered as collec- Interdepartmental auditorium last fund drive at a rally held in the Interpedartmental auditorium last night.

Sidney F. Taliaferro, chairman of the drive, presided at the meeting which was attended by only about 150 of the expected 1,600 workers. The rally was addressed by Charles P. Taft, assistant coordinator of defense activities; Edwin N. Lewis, assistant Community Chest director and secretary of the USO committee; Coleman Jennings, Community Chest director and a member of the USO committee; Harry L. Merrick, chairman of the USO general solicitations unit, and Fred Spaulding, USO campaign director.

Taft, Jennings and Lewis described the need for the sought-after funds, while Merrick and Spaulding outlined the collection procedure and the work expected of the volunteer collectors. They explained that the District had been divided into 11 areas, each under an area chairman, for collection purposes, and asked that workers register for the area in which they lived.

Taft cited specific situations at Army camps throughout the country where the number of service men taxed the normal facilities of nearby towns. He explained that the Government was letting agencies such as the Salvation Army and Jewish Welfare Board operate the proposed recreation centers in order to remove the disciplinary atmosphere of Army-run centers.

The third report luncheon of the USO campaign will be held at 12:30 today in the Mayflower Hotel. Brig. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, Deputy Director of Selective Service, will be the speaker and workers will report the progress of the drive in Washington to date.

31st Engineer Company Will Celebrate Its First Organization Day at Fort Belvoir Today

A lusty youngster of 1, the Thirty-first Engineers Company today will celebrate its first Organization Day at Fort Belvoir, Va.

Its piece de resistance, a series of field events, will have a distinctly military flavor, with ponton and assault boat races and contests in barbed wire fence construction, bridge building, rope spicing, and the like. A picnic will be held at noon on the Ponton School beach at Gunston Cove.

Organized at Fort Belvoir July 1, 1940, the Thirty-first started life with a cadre of 10 veteran soldiers and 80 recruits. Last January it lost 40 men in cadres for new outfits, then recruited up to 160 men, its present strength. The company is used by the Engineer School and the Officers Candidates School for instruction and demonstrations in engineer work.

In addition, the Thirty-first tests new engineer equipment for the Engineer Board and tries out new ideas in engineer work ranging from destruction to construction. It has been commanded since its organization by Capt. John B. Davenport, jr. All but three of its enlisted men are volunteers, signed up for three years of service.

One of these is Fort Belvoir's youngest soldier. He is Pvt. First Class Elvin E. Naumann, a Texas lad, who was 16 his last birthday.

In a letter to Capt Davenport, Col. R. C. Cranford, commandant of the Engineer School, yesterday expressed his "sincere appreciation of the fine services the officers and enlisted men have rendered to the school. He praised the "wholehearted manner" in which the company has undertaken its duties and its "interest and efficiency" which have been "of great value . . . and have contributed in a marked degree to training results obtained."

500 Infantrymen Get Chance for a Swim

Fort George G. Meade, Md., June 30 (AP).—Five hundred 115th Infantrymen got a chance to cool off this evening when they visited Bauer's Beach at Bay Ridge, Md.

Opportunity for the swim in Chesapeake Bay was announced at first sergeant's call this morning. Trucks left the regimental area early in the evening to transport the men to the beach.

Provision was made to accommodate 30 men from each of the 12 lettered companies in the regiment, Headquarters Company, the Service Company and the Antitank Company. Twenty men were taken from the Medical Detachment and each of the three Headquarters Detachments.

Col. D. John Markey, regimental commander, said availability of Bauer's Beach for the soldiers is one of the "prize recreational things here."

Paderewski's Body to Rest In Arlington

By the United Press

New York, June 30.—The body of Ignace Jan Paderewski, famed Polish pianist and statesman who died last night of pneumonia at the age of 80, will be interred at the Arlington Memorial National Cemetery—resting place of the United States' military dead—until the end of the war, it was announced today.

President Roosevelt, from his home at Hyde Park, N. Y., had instructed Acting Secretary of State Sumner Welles to ascertain the Paderewski family's wishes concerning temporary burial at Arlington.

At the request of his sister, and in accordance with Polish tradition in the case of great artists, his heart was removed from the body so that it can be buried in the Warsaw Cathedral where the composer Chopin's heart is buried. Paderewski's family had not decided tonight where the pianist's heart would be kept until it safely can be taken to Poland.

[The body will be carried Wednesday to St. Patrick's Cathedral to lie in state until funeral services Thursday at 10 a. m., the New York Times reported.]

[Archbishop Francis J. Spellman cancelled plans for a trip to Washington to officiate at the Pontifical Mass and deliver the eulogy.

[Cathedral rules were waived to allow the casket to be covered with the Polish flag and the Cathedral will remain open all night, as it has not been since the public mourning for Patrick Cardinal Hayes three years ago. Poland's Ambassador to Washington, J. M. Ciechanowski, will head the official Polish delegation at the services.]

Loyalty Oath Fee Banned by Congress

Congress yesterday put an abrupt stop to the small racket of charging Federal employes a fee to administer the Americanism oaths. Each employe must sign an affidavit that he doesn't believe in the overthrow of the Government. The loyalty oaths are required by riders that were placed on all 1942 appropriation bills. Navy Department and several other agencies charged their employes 10 cents to administer the oaths and yesterday the Senate approved a rider to the second deficiency bill that gives power to administrative and supervisory employes to administer the loyalty oaths and the rider adds "and they shall charge no fee for so doing."

H. P. Gould retires today as chief of the Division of Fruit and Vegetable Crop Diseases of the Bureau of Plant Industry. He has spent 40 years in the Agriculture Department and he has been with the bureau since it was organized. He will be succeeded by Dr. John R. Magness. . . . Dr. Lee M. Hutchins has been appointed chief of the Division of Forest Pathology of the Bureau of Plant Industry. He gained fame when he determined the cause and the cure of a peach disease that was threatening to wipe out the crop in the Southeast.

Treasury's employes in its Division of Foreign Funds Control will be brought under Civil Service today. The division is adding nearly 120 new employes but they will be taken from Civil Service registers. . . . The Civil Service test for park and metropolitan policemen will be given July 11 at Tech High School. . . . Bert Gross, president of UFWA's local at USHA, has appealed his furlough. . . . Public Works Administration will hire back upwards of 500 of its furloughed employes. . . . Weather Bureau today celebrates its golden anniversary as a Civil Service agency.

OGR Order Signed

The President yesterday signed an executive order that will bring employes of the Office of Government Reports under Civil Service. The agency's employes would have been brought under Civil Service today and the practical effect of the order is to postpone covering in until January 1 when an estimated 182,000 jobs will be brought under the merit system by the Ramspeck Act. The recent law that legalized the agency carried no restriction against Civil Service which meant that employes would have been covered under today when the 15th appropriation becomes effective. It was suggested that the delay was asked to give officials time to shake up the personnel.

UFWA has started a "pay raises raise morale" campaign at the Government Printing Office, a campaign that union officials say has netted 125 new members at GPO. The CIO union is asking for a raise of 6 cents an hour for employes who haven't had a raise in six months and 12 cents an hour for employes who have gone five or more years without a raise. Erwin Elber, an organizer, will speak on the campaign tonight over WINX at 10:15.

National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics will add 114 new employes at Langley Field, Virginia, and 12 more here under its 1942 appropriation effective today. The new employes will be engineers, computers, draftsmen, and scientific aides. . . . New Civil Service registers and the number of eligibles on each; Hand compositor printer, 4,162; monotype operator, 74; printer slug machine operator, 1,850; field representative, four grades, 219 eligibles. . . . Senators now have authority to raise the salaries of their No. 1 secretaries to $4,500 annually. . . . Bureau of Mines has trained thousands in first aid work and it will cooperate in the Civilian defense program.

Representative George W. Johnson of West Virginia, was quizzing a witness before the House Appropriations Committee. "Who are you," he asked, "where are you from and what is your background?"

"My name," answered the witness, "is Charles P. Taft. I am a lawyer in Cincinnati. I am a brother of Senator Taft. I hope you won't hold that against me, sir." Taft is coordinator of the Health, Welfare, and Related Defense Activities in the Federal Security Agency.

Newspaperman Shocked!

Walter W. Paige, Woodstock, Va., newspaperman, was struck by lightning yesterday while using the telephone at his home. He was taken to the Woodstock hospital where he regained consciousness 20 minutes later. The bolt ripped off his shirt, hurled his spectacles across the room, and split a pencil in his pocket.

Not Even Boogie-Woogie?

Help of the police was asked last night to relieve the sensitive ears of citizens at Second and H Streets Northwest. "A band is playing at the corner," the complaint came in. "But it's not music." On the theory that even the best music when played on the streets late at night is noise, the police responded immediately.

June Love-Bug Invasion Sets Record at Marriage Bureau

SO ENDS THE MONTH OF JUNE—Private Henry Herche, 22, of Arlington Cantonment, and Nellie Baker, 19, of 3118 Dumbarton Avenue Northwest, shown as they appeared yesterday at the District Court Building, were the last to apply for a marriage license in June. They will wed Saturday at the Gospel Mission

A record in hearts and flowers for the marrying month of June was rolled up in District Court when the marriage license clerk's office closed at 4 p. m. yesterday.

A total of 1,157 couples applied for marriage licenses during the month—setting an all-time record. Last June 773 applications were filed.

The theme of national defense cut in even on Lohengrin, however.

The first persons to apply for a license on Monday, June 2, were John E. Moore, 24, an employe of the District Water Department, and Margaret Marie Burke, 25 an employe of the War Department.

"Our plans are all upset now," the new Mrs. Moore said last night at their home, 311 Shepherd Street Northwest.

Like many another couple they don't know where they will be from one day to the next now that Uncle Sam is rolling up his shirtsleeves.

Moore, a graduate of the University of Maryland and a commissioned reserve officer, has been ordered to report for training to Indiantown Gap, Pa.

Such problems as furniture, houses, and whether Mrs. Moore will accompany her husband or remain in Washington have weighed heavily on them—but not so heavily that they don't think marriage is a "great thing."

The last to appear at District Court yesterday was Private Henry Herche, 22, of Arlington Cantonment, and Virginia Baker, 19, of 3110 Dumbarton Avenue. Their trip to the marriage license office followed a six month's courtship.

They came, said Herche, because. . . .

"We wanted to get our license in June."

'Treasury House' Defense Bond Project to Be Dedicated Today

"TREASURY HOUSE," in the park on Pennsylvania Avenue between Fourteenth and Fifteenth Streets Northwest, which was opened for a press preview last night

A house of glass blocks, painted red, white and blue, topped by four American eagles, and designed to bring further support to the national defense effort was unveiled for the press last night.

Known as "Treasury House" and specifically intended as a headquarters for the sale of defense bonds and stamps, it is located on the park property at Fourteenth Street and Pennsylvania Avenue Northwest. It will be dedicated formally at noon today. Vice President Henry A. Wallace and Daniel W. Bell, Undersecretary of the Treasury, will be principal speakers.

As floodlights were switched on last night at Treasury House the limelight revealed the staff of the structure—six pretty girls in blue uniforms and overseas caps, all of whom have but recently graduated from local colleges and who will sell defense stamps and distribute defense stamp albums.

Elaborate programs will be put on daily to attract public attention to the defense project. They will include news broadcasts over a public address system; a daily "quiz" period of 10 or 15 minutes with those questioned receiving 25 cent awards for a correct answer and a glass savings bank in any case; popular music broadcasts; announcements regarding defense bonds and stamps over a newly-invented device set upon a Treasury House counter and making it appear the counter itself is doing the talking.

Close by Treasury House will be Army, Navy, Marine Corps and Coast Guard recruiting stations.

Attracting considerable attention last night was a display of various types of equipment of the four services. Spectators looked with equal curiosity at a diver's helmet of much service and a "Nissen hut," a structure of galvanized iron used by Marines in the tropics and maintaining a temperature 10 degrees cooler than the surrounding atmosphere.

Other military and naval weapons which were to go on display today are an Army P-39 interceptor pursuit plane, torpedoes, mines and a Navy gun; a Marine 81 mm. Howitzer, a baby tank, a field kitchen and a 75 mm. gun.

Price tags, about $75,000 in the case of the plane, will illustrate the relation between defense bonds and the defense effort.

Treasury House was built by the Standard Oil Co. which turned it over to the Treasury Department.

D. C. Welfare Chief to Be Nominated

Board Will Offer Second Suggestion For Post Today; Three Possibilities

The Board of Public Welfare today will submit to the Commissioners a second nomination for District welfare director to succeed Robert Bondy, who resigned recently.

The board, in executive session late yesterday, agreed on the new nomination, but its members were sworn to secrecy by Chairman Frederick W. McReynolds.

Observers at the District Building suggested the group probably took one of three actions—accepted the name of Paul Edwards, local WPA administrator, or Conrad Van Hyning, acting director; or renominated Ray L. Huff, general superintendent of penal institutions, whose name was rejected last week by the Commissioners as "too valuable in his present position."

It is known that the Commissioners strongly favor Edwards. He has had a wide background in public welfare work.

Relief Rule Waived

The board also temporarily waived its rule prohibiting relief payments to employable unemployed persons to permit emergency care of some 3,300 WPA workers who today will begin to be slashed from local payrolls by Federal order.

In long-delayed action, the welfare board authorized Van Hyning to extend relief to all employables who are unable to find private employment after leaving WPA rolls.

Chairman McReynolds was renominated to his post at yesterday's session. Other nominations were: Dr. H. J. Crosson, vice chairman; Mrs. Frank A. Linzel, secretary.

Committee Nominations

Committee nominations were as follows: Child welfare, Mrs. Linzel, chairman; Mrs. Spencer Gordon and A. J. Driscoll; penal committee, Edgar Morris, chairman; James A. Councilor and Mrs. Milton King; public assistance, Dr. Crosson, chairman; McReynolds and John R. Pinkett.

Bus, Street Car Men Win Wage Raises

A new contract giving raises of from 4 to 6 cents an hour to bus and street car operators was signed last night between the Capital Transit Co. and its employes, members of Division 689, Amalgamated Association of Street, Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employes of America.

The agreement provides for increases amounting to 4 cents per hour for operators of two-man cars, and 6 cents per hour for operators of one-man cars and buses, the new maximum rate for this group being 85 cents per hour July 1 to December 31, 1941, and 88 cents per hour for the remainder of the contract year.

Increases also were provided for men in the mechanical department in shops, garages and car houses, and in the way department. These raises will amount generally to 3 cents an hour. A reduction in the number of classifications will result in greater increases for those in the lower paid groups, it was explained.

The company said the cost of the wage increases will be more than $500,000 a year, bringing the total pay roll to more than $7,250,000 a year.

Bethesda Red Cross' Summer Quarters Set

The Bethesda branch, Montgomery County Chapter of the American Red Cross will open temporary summer branch headquarters today in the Bethesda-Chevy Chase High School on the East-West Highway, it was announced yesterday by Mrs. Alvin L. [illegible]binoe, chairman.

A volunteer worker will be on hand to give information to those interested in forming new sewing units.

District Child Labor Change Is Favored

Bills to create an industrial accident-prevention board and to amend the District child labor laws to permit minors to appear in productions in licensed theaters were reported favorably by the House District Committee yesterday.

In a brief session—the last in two weeks—the committee also approved a bill to authorize construction of a block-and-a-half long pipeline in Southeast Washington and tabled a measure authorizing the District Commissioners to set aside the trial board conviction and resultant dismissal of William F. Fey, a District policeman.

The bill in behalf of Fey, introduced by Representative Sasscer (Democrat), of Maryland, was for the purpose of permitting him to retire with a clear record so that he could accept a position with one of the Federal defense agencies, Chairman Randolph told the committee.

When Corporation Counsel Richmond B. Keech read to the committee a list of three trial board convictions, Representative Sauthoff (Progressive), of Wisconsin, said he wanted the committee to go on record against the bill.

"You've got a record here that may explain some of the charges of inefficiency that are being made against the Police Department," Sauthoff said, holding that approval of the bill would not be consistent with the committee's investigation of the department.

Representative Russell (Democrat), of Texas, pleaded that "any man has a right to reform" and the committee voted down Sauthoff's motion for an unfavorable report. Sauthoff then made a point of no quorum and the bill was tabled.

The child actor bill would require parent or guardian to obtain a permit from the Board of Education 14 days in advance of appearance.

Chatfield-Taylor Again to Head Federal ChestUnits

Wayne Chatfield-Taylor, Undersecretary of Commerce, will be in charge of Government forces in the fourteenth annual Community Chest Fund here, it was announced last night.

CHATFIELD-TAYLOR

This is the second campaign with Taylor as head of the Government forces. In accepting the post last night, he stated: "I believe that during this period of concentration on national defense we can too easily forget that many of our fellow citizens cannot take part in this united effort. The Community Chest must help these people."

Man Hurt in Fall

Ruling Exempts U. S. Workers From District Estate Taxes

Federal employes in cases involving inheritance and estate taxes were exempted from payments in a ruling yesterday by Jo V. Morgan, the District one-man Board of Tax Appeals, under the Court of Appeals domicile decision in the nowfamous Sweeney case.

Immediately following Morgan's ruling, Glenn Simmon, assistant corporation counsel, estimating a considerable loss of local revenue through application of the decision to inheritance and estate taxes, announced the District would appeal his verdict.

The Court of Appeals decision, involving the income tax case of James J. Sweeney, a Department of Justice attorney, held that Government employes who maintain voting residence elsewhere while living here are legally domiciled in their home States and exempt from local payments.

Morgan's ruling involved taxes on the estate of Charles F. Pace, former financial clerk of the Senate, who died here March 20, 1940.

It was pointed out that Pace, although living here since 1913, voted in Florida either personally or by absentee ballot and took an oath he was a legal resident of that State.

Morgan explained he would not have applied the ruling to Pace's case had he, been a private worker, but because of his Government position "I felt bound by the Sweeney domicile decision."

Liquor Jury Fails to Indict

"Chaotic conditions" in the Washington retail liquor business were blamed by a special grand jury yesterday on "cutthroat competition, price cutting secret deals and rebates."

The grand jurors said that 1,500 pages of testimony by more than 50 witnesses failed to produce evidence upon which any indictment could be based. However, the jurors said they were reporting the nature of their findings in the hope that both the public and the industry might benefit.

The jurors found danger in the practice of distillers and wholesalers "flooding this market with deals on their product wherein the quantity discount on large purchases has little or no reasonable relation to cost." Small dealers, said the jurors, cannot compete with big cut-rate stores which take advantage of these deals.

Purse-Snatcher Gets $327 Saved 10 Years for Vacation

Thieves took a total of $677 from two women, both of them Bureau of Internal Revenue employes, last night.

A colored purse snatcher ran away with $327 that Mrs. Mary Lou Shannon, 51, of 1607 Seventeenth Street Northwest, had saved for her first vacation in more than 10 years.

Mrs. Shannon reported walking on R Street between Sixteenth and Seventeenth Streets when "a stocky, dark-skinned man" appeared from a clump of bushes and grabbed the pocketbook from her arm.

Thus she saw her savings for a long-planned trip disappear into the night. Mr. and Mrs. Francis Carter, her son-in-law and daughter, have been visiting Mrs. Shannon, and she was getting ready to go back to Alabama with them.

"I've been trying to get away for 10 years," she said. "I certainly hope the police can find my money for me."

Ethel P. Clank, Internal Revenue Bureau clerk, who lives at 2615 Sixteenth Street Northwest, told police that a purse containing $330 in cash was taken from the davenport in her living room. She said she had been in the kitchen, and noticed the theft when she went into the living room after dinner.

At the same time police were investigating the report of Beebe Stoval, of Atlanta, Ga., who said that $84 was missing from her room in a downtown hotel.

$5,500,000 Courthouse Is Requested

Rayburn Refers Whitehurst Message, Asking Action, To House Group

A new $5,500,000 District Court building was requested yesterday by Elmore Whitehurst, assistant director of the Administrative Office of the United States Courts, in a message to Speaker Sam Rayburn.

The proposal was turned over to the House Buildings and Grounds Committee for consideration.

Whitehurst said that the proposed site of the new court building will be on the present location of the old General Accounting Office, in the block bounded by Fourth, Fifth, F and G Streets Northwest.

A building of two wings four stories high and a center section of five stories is planned, Whitehurst stated. Although only rough architectural sketches have been made so far, it is proposed that the new building house all the District courts, the judges' chambers and offices for clerks, marshalls and probation officers, he said.

The planned structure also will be able to house one other court. Whether that court will be the Circuit Court of Appeals has not yet been determined, said Whitehurst.

Crowded conditions in the present District Court have resulted in two judges holding their courts in the Police Court building. The District Bar Association has been requesting a new building for the past two years.

Capital News In Brief

4 Escape, 2 Retaken At Walter Reed

Four mental patients wearing red hospital suits escaped from the Walter Reed Hospital last night about 9:30 p. m. and two of them were captured a short time later by hospital guards and Montgomery County police.

The two men who are still at large are not violent, according to hospital authorities. The two captured men were found 2 miles from the hospital in Montgomery County. They were taken without a struggle.

Girl, 6, Burns Foot On Pile of Hot Solder

Shirley Durso, 6, of 512 Eighth Street Southeast, suffered burns on her left foot yesterday when she stepped into a pile of hot solder being used by the District Sewer Department to repair some pipes.

The child had been playing in front of her house. She was taken to the Providence Hospital, and discharged after treatment of the burns, which were not serious.

'Nostalgia' Is the Word In Such Circumstances

Anyhow, That Was Broadway Back in 1910; Sibyl Bowan to Introduce New Miranda; Musings and Mutterings of the Theater

SOMETHING OTHER THAN THIS will be found somewhere around here concerning the Roadside Theater's production of "Too Much Johnson." These words are merely to hark back to December 27, 1910, when William Gillette, author-star, took his play into the Empire Theater, New York—revised and refurbished after its earlier Broadway appearance in 1894—and recapture a glimpse of what was going on on the Great White Way then. In the pre-neon days of three decades ago, it was really great and decidedly white.

BILLIE BURKE

It was a fine tribute to Mr. Gillette that his farce proved such a hit in such fast company. Sarah Bernhardt was making her "positively last appearance" at the Globe Theater. Elsie Janis and Joseph Cawthorn were to follow in "The Slim Princess." Blanche Bates was at the Hudson in "Nobody's Widow," the Knickerbocker had Mrs. Pat Campbell in "The Foolish Virgin" and Billie Burke was winning new fame at the Lyceum in "Suzanne." At the Broadway, Sothern and Marlowe were appearing in Shakespearean repertoire, while Albert Chevalier cavorted in "Daddy Dufard," at the Hackett. The New Amsterdam was occupied by Lina Abarbanell, in "Madame Sherry," and Christie MacDonald was a tremendous hit in "The Spring Maid."

And still the names go on. Emma Trentini was at the New York in "Naughty Marietta" and Cohan's "Get-Rich-Quick Wallingford" was at the Gaiety; "Pomander Walk," at Wallack's; Belasco's "The Concert," at his own playhouse; "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm," playing the Republic; Nazimova at her own theater, in "Drifting," and the original company of "The Bluebird," at the Majestic. George Nash starred in "The Gamblers," at Maxine Elliott's; Mrs. Leslie Carter in "Two Women," at the Lyric, and Lulu Glaser, at the Herald Square, in "The Girl and the Kaiser." Douglas Fairbanks, pere, was 'way uptown at the West End in "The Cub;" William Collier at the Comedy, in "I'll Be Hanged If I Do," and Sam Bernard, at the Casino, in "He Came From Milwaukee." Back there in 1910, the theater was in its hey-heyday! At the moment, there are 12 shows, all told, on Broadway.

A Warranted Revival

The "Comedy of Errors," the Shakespeare piece produced by the Catholic University Players last January, under the supervision of Father Hartke, was one of the nonprofessional presentations honored by mention in the Tributary Theater Issue of the Theater Arts Monthly, foremost magazine of the drama. The play was one of the few selected after a survey of nationwide productions by little theater and collegiate groups. Outstanding for the unique quality of its stylized staging, the comedy will be revived at the university as the first presentation of the summer season in the campus theater on July 9, 10 and 11.

Eleanor O. Curtiss writes from Chevy Chase, D. C., to express her annoyance at our review of "Adventure in Washington," appearing here on Saturday. She found both entertainment and inspiration in the story of the renegade Senate page, who turned heroic in the closing reels, enjoyed the film's "grand uplift of courage" and found that "the patriotic note struck home to many." The closing words are "Sorry you missed the point, and so deprived many of your readers of the incentive to enjoy this excellent film." It was not so much that we missed the intended point as that we resented the cheap, trite and frequently specious melodramatic devices by which it was arrived at—not to mention some egregious miscasting, which, of course, did not include Master Gene Reynolds, as the tough little egg who turned noble.

Bowan to Do "Bombshell"

That indestructible dynamo of energy known by the name of Sibyl Bowan, mildly surprised by so early a return booking in the Capital, nevertheless will flash her "impression" of Carmen Miranda for the first time in Washington when she opens Friday as topliner of the stage bill at the Earle. . . . "Attended the funeral of Irene Franklin last week, with rather peculiar reactions," writes Sib. "Like going to a tea to meet a lot of old friends. There were no tears shed. None of her family represented, only actors. The one who took it the hardest was her neighbor and stanch friend, Mary Marble, of Chip and Marble fame. It was a pathetic sight, this tiny little lady still beaming with personality, dressed in white, trying to keep up 'for Rene's sake.' Something terribly informal about the whole thing. I wonder why?"

Perhaps because, to those who knew her, Rene would have wanted it that way.

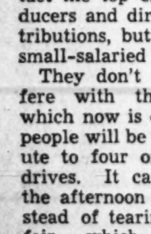
To Restore Pickfair

Hollywood, Calif., June 30.—Mary Pickford held a quiet party in her garden Sunday. Those in attendance were Merle Oberon, Irene Dunne and Mary Martin. They laid out plans to get money for the United China Relief by lining up the No. 1 glamor girls, who personally will contact the top executives, producers and directors for contributions, but won't ask the small-salaried people.



MARY PICKFORD

They don't want to interfere with the USO drive which now is on. Figure top people will be able to contribute to four or five different drives. It came out during the afternoon that Mary, instead of tearing down Pickfair, which, as everyone knows, is the most famous hilltop home in Beverly, will spend $15,000 on reconditioning it.

Hobart Bosworth, now working in "Law of the Tropics" with Connie Bennett, has been in the theater for more than 50 years, and has worked with most of the celebrities on the stage and screen. I asked him the other day whom he considered the most thrilling women he'd ever worked with, and he answered promptly, "Mrs. Fiske and Julia Marlowe."

Then he added, "Oddly enough, those two women have their counterparts today in Bette Davis and Olivia de Havilland. Like Mrs. Fiske, Bette Davis is lively, intellectual, natural, direct and a great actress every minute she's working. Olivia de Havilland is amazingly like Julia Marlowe in her sweetness and spirituality and in the fact that she's a little shy, yet immensely attractive."

Billy McClain, an 85-year-old Negro, who was playing a butler's role in the new Kildare picture, went over to Lionel Barrymore and said, "You don't know who I am, suh, but I played Uncle Tom 'way back in 1883, and the man who played Simon Legree was your daddy, Maurice Barrymore."

Penny Singleton (Blondie) took her 6-year-old daughter, Deegie, to Fort Leavenworth when she went to entertain the boys. When Deegie saw the general put his arms on the luncheon table she said, "'Mabel, Mabel, fat and able, keep your elbows off the table'—that's what they say to me at home when I forget my manners!"

One of the funniest sights on the Universal lot these days is the studio's schoolroom, with Guy Kibbee, big as life, sitting among the scholars in the language class. As the Spanish bishop in Deanna Durbin's next, Guy has quite a bit of Spanish dialogue, and he's boning like any freshman. "And I've just finished a short theological course," he told me proudly.

Paramount may be the Stork Club of Hollywood, but Warners claim to be the Honeymoon Lane, with three engagements having been announced over there within the past month—Priscilla Lane to John Barry, Wayne Morris to Patricia Stewart and Brenda Marshall to Bill Holden. That last one looks serious, now that Brenda's bought an acre in the Valley and paid cash for it.

Bob Alton, New York dance director, doesn't seem to like our girls. Earl Carroll had a bevy of his beauties up to the Beverly Hills Hotel "swimmin' hole" snapping pictures and Bob, who was napping on the sand by the pool, was awakened by the clatter. He took one bored look at the Carroll Venuses, yawned and went back to sleep!

'The Four of Us Certainly Make a Nice Couple!'

Aged Farce Is Revived At Roadside

By Richard L. Coe

It wasn't the heat last night at Roadside; it was the draft, a touch of senility and an unfamiliar pasture. Uncle Sam's Army had tapped a couple of leads during rehearsals, William Gillette's "Too Much Johnson" emphasized that comedy has changed its gait and the Roadside players had moved from their rich field of unashamed melodrama to the quicksands of outright comedy.

For the last several seasons the Roadsiders have made it a practice to shift from their hiss-that-mustached-man opener to the more polite laughs of our sires and theirs before them for their second offering. And generally with more sparkling success than Gillette's 46½-year-old comedy affords. For the Gillette situations are becoming too frail for anything but the strongest transfusions, transfusions such as Jack Benny and a cast of topflight screen farceurs might manage (and there's a hint for YOU, Paramount!). "Too Much Johnson" demands a snap-snap action completely the reverse of the studied—and riotous—poses of melodrama at which the Roadsiders are so unbeatable.

"Too Much Johnson" proves that a man can lie and get away with it. It has to do with a man from Yonkers who tells his wife and her omnipresent mother that he has a sugar plantation in Cuba and is very busy down there when he's not in Yonkers. This, remember, is before Havana became the Mecca of the two-week tripper. Matter of fact, he's never been in Cuba, instead has been carrying on a rewarding flirtation with a little French femme down in Long Branch. The heavens break at once when the little French femme's husband catches on and the wife and mother-in-law decide to visit Cuba. A character is invented for our hero's later ego, Johnson by name, and of course there happens to be a landowner down that a way, Johnson by name.

As the skillful fabricator of untruths (who are to call him a liar?), George Farrington is richly humorous. It's a long part and skilled player that he is, Farrington draws a lot out of it. His deliberation is quite in keeping with the role, but it's too bad the other players follow his carefully measured pace. William Zuckert is swell as the beset fellow of the title, ripping him off with the rat-a-tat-tat boldness of a Brian Donlevy. These two are top-notch and when they're in action, the artifice is genuinely amusing.

Lois Alexander is certainly the best of the supporting players, doing her mother-in-law role with the persimmon taste so vital to tradition mothers-in-law if not to the mothers-in-law of real life. Richard T. Walsh is bombastic enough as the wronged husband. Alice Gartrell Maccubbin Waters and James Taylor are the people from Canada and Meredith Smith the bewildered wife. Florenz Hinz, Gunnar Jagdmann and that tireless trouper, George Spelvin, complete the cast, a group which, without a doubt, will be giving far better performances after they've been at them longer.

And those hats! No word about the Roadsider's comedy would be complete without praise for the monstrosities of 1912 that pepper the feminine heads. Ah and lack-a-day! Man has been progressing after all.

Dancing Beauty

ANN MILLER, one of the hits in "Too Many Girls," now on the screen at the Metropolitan Theater, with Rudy Vallee in "Time Out for Rhythm"

—LEONARD LYONS—

Money on the Liner

ENTERPRISE: When David Selznick planned to produce a movie called "Titanic," he suddenly decided to buy the Leviathan, which then was in drydock, at Hoboken. His secretary called the U. S. Line, and began: "I know this will sound like a silly question—but how much for the Leviathan?" . . . "How much are you prepared to pay?" she was asked—and replied: "$75,000" . . . "What do you plan to do with it?" asked the marine official . . . "Have it towed to San Diego, through the Panama Canal," was the answer . . . "And then what?" asked the official . . . "Then we'll blow it up, for the finale," was the answer . . . "In the first place, it will cost you more than $75,000 just for the towing job," the official informed. "And then again your offer hardly meets the one submitted by the British authorities—who've offered $800,000."

JAMES STEWART

SWANK: "Hot Lips" Page, the dusky swing bandleader who now conducts at Kelly's Stable on West Fifty-second, furnished the music at an elegant party given at Long Island's North Shore on Tuesday night . . . Near Hot Lips' bandstand, the blue-blooded hostess placed a small but distinctive card, announcing: "Mr. H. L. Page and his Orchestra."

DIET: Alfred Hitchcock, the director, flew in from Hollywood last night to broadcast on "Information Please." He's the first guest-expert who never has heard the program . . . Hitchcock went from the airport to the Stork Club, where he ordered a steak and friend potatoes . . . "Potatoes—for you?" the 275-pound director was chided . . . "I'm really doing this for all of you, and not for myself," he told his guests. "You see, if I deprive myself of the potatoes, I'd feel miserable. And when I feel miserable, it always saddens everyone around me. And so I make this sacrifice."

CHANGE: Corpl. James Stewart, the screen star, saw the photo which was published throughout the Nation, showing him examining an airplane motor . . . At the the same time, he saw a picture in an old movie magazine—showing him escorting Liz Whitney to a premiere . . . Stewart held up both pictures and said: "See what a couple of months will do? From Liz Whitney—to Pratt & Whitney."

CHATTER: For the first time since their separation, Jimmy Cromwell and Doris Duke found themselves in the same night club—last night, at the Monte Carlo Beach Club. They were in different parties—and didn't speak to ecah other . . . Assistant General Counsel Miller, who negotiated for more than a billion dollars in defense contracts, is resigning from the U. S. Housing Authority. He'll join the Washington firm of Dempsey & Koplovitz, where Tommy Corcoran has an unlisted office . . . Gabriel Pascal is returning to London, to discuss with George Bernard Show the next play to be adapted into a movie

REPLY: The labor reporter of the Daily Worker called the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers and asked for a statement about the Nazi attack upon Russia . . . The union's publicist, Charles Yale Harrison, answered that phone call. He has been described by the Worker as a Red-baiter, ever since the publication of his book, "Meet Me on the Barricades" . . . "Now what kind of statement do you want?" Harrison replied, reaching for some Daily Worker quotes of two weeks ago. "One, in which we say that America should not pull the chestnuts out of the fire for the decadent British Empire? Or a statement that there's no difference between Churchill and Hitler? Or one denouncing this war as an imperialist struggle? Or one" . . . The reporter hung up.

VARIETY: Billy Rose, who is preparing his autobiography, checked back into the mad period when he produced the circus show, "Jumbo." In those days Rose interviewed large groups of freaks, while, at the telephone, General Manager Will Morrissey tried to induce a friend to house one of the elephants over the weekend . . . On another phone, an aide interviewed an agent, who offered: "A man riding upside down on a unicycle while juggling three lit torches" . . . The aide listened to the description and then asked the agent: "What else does he do?"

HOPE: Janet Fox, who recently toured with Alexander Woollcott, learned that Richard Aldrich was planning to present "The Man Who Came to Dinner," at his summer playhouse in Dennis, Mass. . . . Miss Fox applied to Aldrich for the same role she had played on the road . . . "Sorry," the producer told her, "but I've already selected some one for that role" . . . "But I can play it, and do a good job," Miss Fox assured him ..."Yes, that's true," Aldrich agreed, "but I also have faith in the other lady I've selected" . . . That wasn't no "other lady." That was his wife, Gertrude Lawrence.

WAR: David Hopkins, son of Harry Hopkins, is seeking enlistment in the British army. Young Hopkins is 26, and is married to Cherry Preiser. They have two children. He's anxious to join up as soon as he can—preferring the British army because he's impatient for a whack at the Nazis

Fay Holden Still 'MaHardy' of Films

Fay Holden is Ma Hardy of the movies in spite of herself.

She went shopping in a day off from her Ma Hardy role in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's newest Hardy Family picture—and arrived home with a blue felt hat that matched nearly perfectly a dress she wore in a former picture.

"I completely forgot that I don't have a thing to wear with it," she smiled. "I was buying it to match my Ma Hardy wardrobe!"

Director George Seitz has promised her the hat won't be wasted—she will use it in a scene for the picture.

GETS UNDER THE COOL WAVES—Raymond Dorris, 10, of 2428 I Street Northwest, puts some water between himself and the sun

'Hot' Tips on How To Keep Cool . . .

Light and serious views on how to whip the monster heat were given expression in Washington yesterday—by lovely ladies in swimming and by the Health Department which told what foods are best in this weather.

It appears that the 94 degree temperature of yesterday made 17-months' old Susan Badger, 14 North Oakland Street, Arlington, Va., one of hundreds who fled to the river side, wonder what's the use of anything, clothes included. She just took them off.

And at the East Potomac Swimming Pool, around noon when the earth cooked, 10-year-old Raymond Dorris, 2428 I Street Northwest, put as much water as possible between himself and the sun. Ruth Schwartz, 8426 Piney Branch Road, silhouetted a lovely bathing suit, and dived for an approving audience.

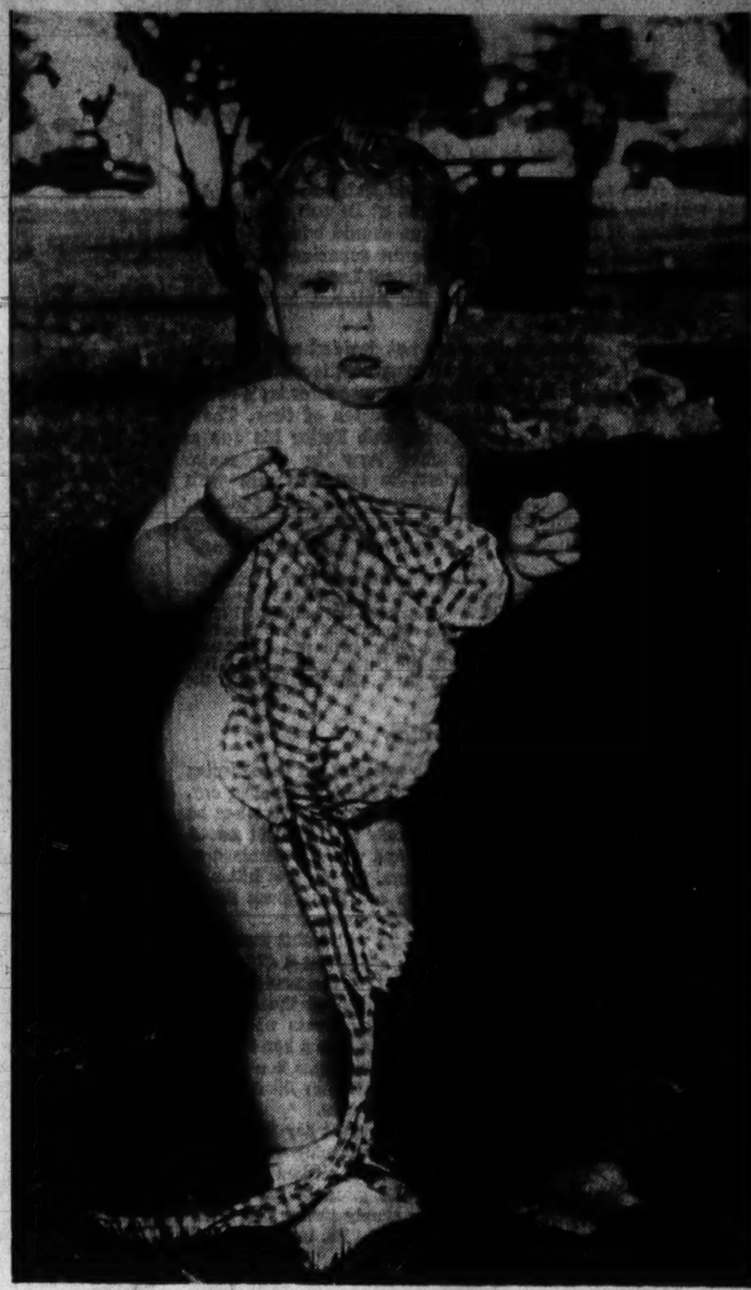
Others, heat-stricken too, got out of town if they could, or went down the Potomac on the river boats or to the movies where it's cool.

The food hints, issued by the Health authorities at request of the Board of Education, say:

Avoid over-eating, drink plenty of water, especially if perspiring; eat leafy vegetables, fruits and salads and use slightly more salt on hot days.

Light-weight clothing was advocated and excessive exercise in the direct sun was warned against. Food should be cooked thoroughly and not allowed to stand too long a time between preparation and use.

And as another help, firemen will turn the hose on children who choose to congregate for a good, cool soaking, between 2:15 p. m. and 2:45 p. m. tomorrow at Western High School, and again at Sixth and L Street Northwest tomorrow between 2 p. m. and 2:30 p. m., it was announced.



IN THE SHADE OF A POTOMAC PARK TREE—Susan Badger, 17 months, took things in her own hands, pulled off her dress to get cool. She's the daughter of Lieut. and Mrs. R. J. Badger, who are visiting at 14 North Oakland Street, Arlington, Va.

Bill Cunningham's Column

Indians Still in the Race

By Bill Cunningham

It is neither polite nor politic for the buzzards to start wheeling and rattling their wattles before the potential corpse has really keeled over, and some of the obituaries now being pumped out in honor of the stumbling Cleveland Indians may have to be fished back and reconditioned in a hurry. From where this particular scout is parked on a sycamore limb, the Ohio Injun doesn't appear to be fatally wounded, nor any more than temporarily winged.

But, because he's had a little trouble getting through the pastures of the East, while the Yanks and the Red Sox have suddenly burst into flame, the critics are saying somebody's shot got him, and are shifting to the Yanks as the premier pennant winning prospect. Well, mebbe, but it seems to this seemer they're overlooking certain items such as injuries, principally to Keltner and Trosky, certain slumps which no ball club can ever avoid, and certain freaks in the schedule that give especially New York the better of it for a spell right through this particular interval.

The only thing is, we're rolling right up on July 4, where, by long baseball legend, the leader must be, if he hopes to win out at the finish. As a matter of fact, the theory works out pretty accurately upon the testimony of the statistics, too, but there are just enough exceptions to give the others a shot of hope. Getting down to actual facts, and taking the races in both leagues for the last 26 years, the figuring held good a grand total of 28 times.

Let's be a little plainer.

Last year, a curious scribe with time on his hands and quest in his soul, went back through the records for 25 years in the two leagues. That gave him a total of 50 winners. Of the 50, he found that 28 had really been leading their respective herds upon the glorious Fireworks Festival. Of the remaining 22, all but six had been no worse than second place on July 4. Of the remaining six, three had been in third place, the other three in fourth.

To that, last year's report is herewith added by your correspondent. Detroit, which won the American League pennant in 1940, was in a virtual tie with Cleveland for first place on July 4, while Cincinnati, the eventual winner of the National, was in the second notch, one game behind the leading Brooklyn Dodgers.

So what you can say is that, since 1915, no team not in the first division on July 4 has won a pennant in either league (yeah, I've heard about the 1914 Braves!); and in the American, no team not in first place or almighty close to it, has ever cut that particular caper.

The standing last year, upon that fateful morn, was Cleveland, Detroit and Boston (three games behind). The standing this year upon that equally fatefully morn, seems likely to be New York, Cleveland and Bos- (possibly three games behind again). Which do you want?

The newly thundering chorus is now roaring, "The Yanks."

Well, maybe, but, after all, it's the team Joe McCarthy gave up on last year. It's the one he benched and broke up, saying Rolfe was too old, Crosetti was gone, Babe Dahlgren wouldn't do. They were hailing his noble experiment down in St. Pete last March when he had Gordon on first, and those two kids, Priddy and Rizzuto at second and short. They said it might look crazy but it was all right because Marse Joe was a genius; he'd never been wrong about anything yet.

Well, he was wrong on that one, one way or the other, for he's now back where he was with what he has left. And he's winning ball games right now, but if he were right in the first place, he won't win enough.

The Red Sox?

They've got enough power to go over and set Poland free, and not enough pitching to grease the hinges on your grandmother's specs, provided it were all reduced to neat's foot oil. They're like the firemen who surrounded the blaze and just called it names because they didn't have any hose. When they do get a little pitching, it stuns 'em so utterly they break up somewhere else.

Browns Chase Bob Feller, Trounce Tribe, 12-6

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

Anything Can Happen in an Afternoon

A week from today the American and National League All-Stars will play their annual ball game at Detroit, and it will prove nothing. If the American League should win, it will not be further proof that the American is the superior league. If, by chance, it is a National League victory, few will believe that the National is the faster league.

POVICH

Such matters are not decided on any given afternoon. Baseball greatness is measured not by today's performance, or yesterday's or tomorrow's, but over a stretch of time. That's why Ty Cobb, giving Bob Feller his due as the greatest pitcher now in the major leagues, is reluctant to compare him with Walter Johnson. "Johnson was a great pitcher for 20 years," Cobb pointed the other day. "Feller may be as great, if he lasts as long."

There have been days when the last-place Browns have beaten the league-leading Yankees in a double-header, both by shut-out scores but none would be as absurd to acclaim the Browns as the better ball team. That is one of baseball's chief charms, the element of its inconsistency. Every day in the week, the better tennis player will win his match, and to only a slightly less degree so will the better golfer, but a ball team that gets licked twice for its every three victories can win the pennant with a .600 percentage.

DiMag Proves Greatness in Stretch

What happens on any given afternoon can be tossed out in reckoning baseball's heroes, as we were saying. At Griffith Stadium the other day, Joe DiMaggio represented almost the ultra in batting talent when he shattered George Sisler's record by hitting safely in 41 straight games. Yet he collected only one hit in each game and was far outshined in the second game of the day by Johnny Sturm, the weakest hitter of the Yankees, who collected a single, double and triple. Such things can happen in baseball without occasioning any surprise.

But over the course of the season, DiMaggio will outhit Strum by as much as 80 points—the difference between a .350 and a .270 hitter. That is where DiMag's greatness lies—over the 154-game stretch. Like every other baseball champion, he stands the test of time. Horse racing, like baseball, reserves its accolades for the ones which can withstand the rigors of campaigning. Once upon a time a horse named Clyde Van Dusen won the Kentucky Derby, but that name now evokes only a snicker among racing men. Because Clyde Van Dusen never won a race before the Derby or did he win one after.

Ever hear of Charley Robertson? He had one great day in the big leagues. He was a rookie with the White Sox, pitching against the power-hitting Detroit Tigers 20 years ago, when he pitched baseball's only perfect no-hit, no-run, no-man-reach-first game in the last 40 years. But his fame was transient. He was simply having one great afternoon. He couldn't even stick in the majors. His name is never mentioned when great pitchers are the topic.

Baseball has a way of turning up these one-day heroes. Two years ago, the Nats' Venezuelan pitcher, Alex Carasquel, stepped into the batter's box and hit one of the longest home runs ever seen in Griffith Stadium. He hasn't hit one since. The first game Ed Linke ever pitched in the majors he shut out the Red Sox with four hits, but Linke wasn't much pitcher. A Washington rookie named Henry Coppola won his major league debut a few years ago by beating Boston with five hits. Just a flash in the pan.

Many Great Hitters Look Bad at Times

There isn't much doubt that Ted Williams is one of the great hitters in baseball. Probably he's the best. Yet on a day in Boston last week when the Red Sox banged out 18 hits, Williams made none of them. Such things can happen without detriment to a man's reputation if he has made it over the long stretch. I saw Babe Ruth, Lou Gehrig and Tony Lazzeri strike out with the bases loaded and a nonentity named Carl Fischer doing the pitching for Washington.

Roger Cramer has not been an exciting player in his 11 years in the big leagues. He isn't a power hitter. Only once in the past three seasons has he hit a ball over a fence. Yet his place among the fine players of big league baseball is secure, because invariably he has been one of the few men to make as many as 200 hits a season. That group is not numerous—last year there were only three—and Cramer by his consistency has proved his greatness.

Whatever happens out in Detroit in the All-Star game won't mean much. The game may be won, or lost, on a bad hop. Such things happen. The team that is hot on Tuesday afternoon will be the winner. What we have been trying to say is that one baseball game means nothing much as a test. Baseball measures its heroes by the number of their encores.

On the Line

With CONSIDINE

He's Coming—the World's Best Swim Prospect

New York, June 30.—Bill Smith, jr., the Hawaiian-born boy who has been breaking a swimming record every time he takes a bath, is coming to the mainland for the national championships, to be held in St. Louis soon. And thereby hangs a strange tale that started in Detroit, which saw East meet West, and which must be bringing a pearly smile of satisfaction to the mahogany face of the sheriff of Honolulu, Duke Kahanamoku, way out there in our verdant brass knuckles in the Pacific, Hawaii.

CONSIDINE

Bill Smith, jr., is only 17, but from what he has shown to date it is going to take an anchor on each ankle to keep him from becoming the greatest swimmer the United States ever developed. On last May 7, 9 and 24; in Hawaii, Smith broke either the American or world free style records for the 200-meter, 400-meter and 800-meter long course events; the 220-yard, 400-meter and 440-yard short course events and cracked Jack Medica's free style records for the 550-yard, 600, 700 and 800-yard distances. Not even Weissmueller or the proud sheriff of Honolulu, the two greatest swimmers this or any other nation ever fostered, ever had a streak as hot as Smith had on those three days in May.

The Name Suits Very Well, Thank You

Bill's father, a Honolulu cop, is from Detroit. His mother is a Hawaiian. He has a sister named Audrey Leilani Smith, but recently, when the old man asked Bill if he wanted to take a Hawaiian first name, the good-looking kid answered, "If Bill's good enough for you, Pop, it's good enough for me."

Like Glenn Cunningham, Weissmueller and other great stars, Bill threw off a heavy yoke of illness and went on to become an outstanding star. When he was 10 years old he was stricken with typhoid fever. After three months in bed in Children's Hospital, Honolulu, doctors gave up on him. As a last resort they kept him packed in ice for five straight days, and Bill Smith, sr., gave the blood for the several transfusions he needed. Young Bill rallied and was eventually carried home, bald as a cue ball. Each day Bill, sr., and his gentle Hawaiian wife carried the boy to the beach, massaged him with cocoanut oil and let him exercise feebly in the water. Young Bill learned to walk again.

When he was strong enough Bill gave up swimming. During the long period of convalescence he had sat bug-eyed on the sidelines of the lush playgrounds in Honolulu and seen the rough and tumble antics of the barefooted football players. He wanted to be one of them.

He stopped training and went into football with a tremendous relish, and he might never have gone back to swimming if it hadn't been for an idea his father got. The old man took the kid to a hospital to visit an older football player who had been seriously hurt in a game, and the result of the visit is that young Bill went back to his swimming lessons.

Promises to Be Country's Best

He became a student of the great Japanese swimming instructor, Sakamoto, who soon saw in him the makings of a champion. Bill persuaded his father to let him move from Honolulu to the nearby island of Maui, where Sakamoto has his school. Sakamoto's pool was undergoing repairs, and for a month Bill and the other pupils swam in a plantation irrigation ditch, dodging no one knows what refuse. When the pool was ready Bill fairly flew through the water, and did not know why he was suddenly so much better until Sakamoto explained that he had seen to it that the boys had been swimming against the current in the irrigation ditches.

Bill should mop up things at St. Louis and be this country's No. 1 boy when we send our swimming team to the Pan-American Olympics next year. For he's got everything, and has yet to see his prime.

His tremendous performances remind us of a day last January when we sat listening to the old duke talking on the fabled beach at Waikiki. We had asked him why none of those god-like brown boys, then riding in on their surfboards, sometimes with a pretty girl on their shoulders,

"They're lazy, these new beach boys," the duke said. "They don't had followed in the duke's footsteps.

like the drudgery of becoming a great swimmer. Look at them. They even get their surfboards from Cincinnati, Ohio. When I was a kid I used to carve my boards, or even beat a five-gallon tin can flat and use that. I figured out the flutter kick without ever knowing that it was just the thing to do. But things are made too easy for these new kids. There's only one who looks like he'll do. Kid named Smith. Bill Smith. He works at it . . . and now I'm keeping my fingers crossed."

Furr Loses To Franklin At Stadium

Montgomery Stops Jones in 5th Round Of Feature; Prelim Grabs the Spotlight

By Al Hailey

Youth was served last night at Griffith Stadium, much to the disgust of Phil Full and 2,000 fans who saw him lose a ten-round-decision to 22-year-old Al Franklin, Washington colored welterweight, in a wild battle which completely overshadowed the main event.

Thus the 30-year-old Furr, who has ruled the welterweight roost in the District for almost a decade, saw his last claim to fame crumble as the more agile colored youngster danced a rhumba around him and left his face a bloody mask.

Phil fought a battle that was exasperating to the fans but right down the alley of the bounding Franklin. He threw caution to the winds when Franklin opened deep gashes over his left eye and on his right cheek and staked all on a knockout—almost achieving it in the sixth when he opened up a body attack that sent Al to the canvas for no count.

Vines Must Wait

Phil was scheduled to fight Vinnie Vines in Newark in a month but lost that chance tonight, for he will be in no condition to fight for at least six weeks as a result of the deep gashes which bled profusely from the fourth through the tenth rounds.

If Phil's lack of discretion in abandoning caution was irksome to the fans, the performance of Bob Montgomery, a 22-year-old colored lightweight from Philadelphia was even more so.

Montgomery, branded as the coming 135-pound champion, did the expected by cutting the face of Wishy Jones, veteran Atlanta fighter, so badly that Referee Charley Reynolds had to stop the fight at the end of the fourth round.

Scored in 5th

Montgomery, always on top of the ring-wise Jones raised a nasty gash over both of Jones eyes and was accredited with a technical knockout in the fifth round—under National Boxing Association rules which state if a fighter cannot come out for a round the TKO shall be accredited to the round.

Jones made Montgomery, recent conqueror of Champion Lew Jenkins, look like an amateur for the first two rounds. He easily eluded Jones' offerings, boxed the first on even terms and then won the second. But Montgomery opened up in the third, cut Jones' face literally to ribbons and had him ready for the kill in the fourth when the bell sounded.

The Furr-Franklin show-stealer was close all the way, however. Referee Reynolds gave Furr 87 points to Franklin's 98; Judge Jimmy Sullivan scored it 93 to 91 for Franklin and Bob Eller had it 96 to 86 for Franklin. Furr lost one round, the seventh, on a low blow.

A Swift Battle

Lew Bass, young 158-pound amateur graduate handled by two newspaper boys, and Ken Stribling, 152, local colored fighter, stole the preliminary show in a rousing 4-rounder that saw Bass, veteran of three pro fights and five in the amateur ranks, slam Stribling all over the ring and almost finish him in the second. Stribling rallied gamely and lasted the distance, only to lose the decision.

Oscar (Thuderbolt) Wright, 133½, rocked a sadly over-matched Eddie Allen, 134, to sleep with a smashing right hand to the chin in 1 minute and 45 seconds of the night's scheduled 6-rounder. Matchmaker Menendez should hang his head for putting the ill-equipped Philadelphian in the ring with the local colored boy.

A Brooklyn Dodger Who Didn't—Owen Goes Down

Deep concern is written on the face of Pitcher John Podgajny of the Phils (right), as he comes in to assist Dodger Catcher Mickey Owen, whom he beaned in the second inning of yesterday's game in Brooklyn. Umpire Babe Pinelli and Phil Catcher Ben Warren lean over the prostrate Owen.

Pirates Beat Cardinals, 4-3, In Night Game

By the Associated Press

Pittsburgh, June 30.—Maurice Van Robay's triple scoring two mates in the third inning proved the deciding blow which gave Pittsburgh a 4-to-3 triumph over the St. Louis Cardinals.

It was Pittsburgh's first victory in eight games this year with the Cardinals.

Ken Heintzelman, Pirate southpaw, was denied for an even dozen hits by the slugging Cardinals, but couldn't be tapped when the tying or winning runs were on base. In the eighth Herman Tripplett opened with a single and went to third on Johnny Mize's single. But he held the base as Enos Slaughter forced Mize, Fletcher to Rookie Alf Anderson, and then Eddie Lake hit into a double play.

Again in the ninth with men on first and second and none out, Heintzelman fanned Pinchhitter John (Hippity) Hopp and the next two men were retired.

Sammy Nahem held the Bucs to two hits, one a triple by Frankie Gustine, after relieving Harry Gumbert in the wake of Van Robay's triple.

Mickey Owen 'Beaned' As Flock Routs Phils, 9-2

Six Stitches Needed to Close Cut Suffered on Podgajny's Pitch

By the Associated Press

Brooklyn, June 30.—The Dodgers won their tenth straight from the Phillies today, 9 to 2, but in doing so lost the services of Catcher Mickey Owen, one of six Brooklyn players who had been named to the National League squad for the All-Star game July 8.

Owen was cut over the left eye in the second inning by a ball pitched by John Podgajny. At the hospital it took six stitches to close the wound, and Club Secretary John MacDonald said it was extremely doubtful the backstop would be able to play at Detroit.

The Dodgers, with Pete Reiser and Cookie Lavagetto leading the attack and Whitlow Wyatt holding the Phils to six hits in his twelfth victory, wasted little time going after their triumph.

They scored two runs in the first on a single by Billy Herman, Reiser's triple to the left field corner and a fielder's choice on which he slid safely over the plate. A homer over the right field fence—his seventh—by Reiser in the third was good for another.

In the fifth Podgajny was sent to the showers when he cut loose with a wild pitch after Brooklyn had filled the bases, to let in one run, and then was clipped for a single by Lavagetto, one of three he got during the afternoon, for two more tallies.

Off Tom Harmon, who replaced Podgajny, the Dodgers got one more run in the sixth and their last two in the eighth.

Wyatt, who struck out seven and didn't walk a man, spread the Phils' six safeties over five innings but was tagged for home runs by Benny Warren in the fifth and Dan Litwhiler in the sixth.

Nats Win, 3-1, Over Trenton In 14 Innings

Trenton, N. J., June 3.—The Nationals staggered to a 3-1 victory over Goose Goslin's Trenton Senators here tonight but required 14 innings and the aid of a jittery Trenton infield to supply what might be referred to kindly as the winning punch. It was an exhibition game in which the Nats exhibited very little hitting.

Locked at 1-1 entering the 14th inning, the Nats received something of a break when Native Son George Case singled to left and scooted to second as First Baseman Jerry Hannahoe allowed Pitcher Joe Rancher's attempt to pick Case off first to skid off his glove.

Jimmy Bloodworth fanned and Al Evans lofted a pop fly back of third base. The Trenton infield held a short debate over who should handle the ball and it finally fell safely. Case held second, but both runners advanced a second later as Rancher, who was hauled in from center field to pitch, unleashed a wild pitch.

Walter Masterson, who had followed Vernon Kennedy and Arnold Anderson to the mound struck out George Archie lifted a foul fly back of the plate, but Catcher Al Sabo, a former Nat, missed it completely and Archie then pumped a double against the left field fence, scoring Case and Bloodworth with the winning margin.

Washington made 13 hits, while

Riddle Wins 8th as Reds Beat Cubs, 7-1

By the Associated Press

Cincinnati, June 30—The Cincinnati Reds pounded veteran Charlie Root from the box with five hits tonight to score five runs in the first inning and start Elmer Riddle to a 7-to-1 victory over the Chicago Cubs. It was Riddle's eighth triumph of an unbeaten season.

Root retired only one of the first seven Redlegs to bat. Here's what they did to the 42-year-old right-hander: Bill Werber, Frank McCormick and Jimmy Gleeson singled; Lloyd Waner bunted safely; and Mike McCormick smashed a two-run double. Ernie Lombardi, whom Root purposely passed, scored on Riddle's long fly off Forest Pressnell.

McCullough Homers

Ridle yielded the only Chicago run in the fourth when Clyde McCullough clouted his fourth homer of the season. His curve ball fanned six Cubs and he was nicked for seven hits.

Singles by Waner, Lonnie Frey and Frank McCormick's long fly brought the Reds a run in the second. They added another in the seventh on a walk to Gleeson and singles by Lombardi and Mike McCormick.

Riddle in Form

Riddle, topping the National Leagu pitchers in his second year in the senior circuit, did not walk a single Cub and left only four stranded on base. Johnny Hudson was nipped at the plate after he doubled and tried to score on Pressnell's bunt in the third when the ball got through Werber.

9-Run Spree In 7th Inning Is Decisive

Bobby Misses 17th Victory as St. Louis Explodes; Kramer Credited With Game

By the Associated Press

St. Louis, June 30.—The last-place Browns exploded right in Bobby Feller's face in the seventh inning today, the American League ace pitcher was soon in the showers and the Browns beat Cleveland, 12 to 6.

Nine runs crossed the plate in the seventh. Two came on Joe Grace's second home run of the season. Another pair were due to the Ken Keltner's wild throw to first after Rick Ferrell had bunted safely toward third scoring Harlond Clift.

Until that inning Feller seemed well on his way to his seventeenth victory of the season—a mark most pitchers would gladly accept for an entire year's effort. The Browns had hit only in the third when they scored three runs on three hits—the pay-off blow being George McQuinn's ninth homer.

The Indians scored three runs in the first inning on Hal Trosky's tenth home run of the year. He came home behind Lou Boudreau who had doubled and Keltner who had walked.

Feller tripled in the second after two were out and died on third. In the fourth he singled and scored on Boudreau's eighth home run.

Jack Kramer, who replaced Starter Denny Galehouse with none out and one on in the fifth, received credit for the victory.

Uline, Mike Jacobs Unite; Chick Meehan Fights 'Monopoly'

Ice Magnate Gets License For D.C. Bouts

Uline Announces Tie-up After Okay From Mike Jacobs Following Confab

Michael J. Uline, newcomer to Washington's sports scene, yesterday was granted a promoter's license by the District Boxing Commission and promptly announced cooperative pact with Mike Jacobs, New York fight czar.

Uline will promote boxing shows in his new $700,000 ice arena next fall "in full cooperation" with Jacobs, he said.

The ice magnate, who conferred with Jacobs Saturday in New York, said he plans no boxing ventures this summer in the Capital because "it is logical to presume" that any of Jacobs' big-time outdoor shows will attract more customers in New York than in Washington.

Likes Fistic Outlook

"Jacobs suggested that we forget all about hot-weather shows here and I agreed with him, for I don't think the town goes for them," Uline said. "I do think Washington will go for good fights. We don't want any bad ones—they have to be good or not at all because the poor houses are the ones that hurt the sport."

Uline has not yet appointed his matchmaker but he said that could be worked out with any of a trio of local men "or even some of the managers."

"There are plenty of good men in this town," he said, adding that he had given consideration to taking in Goldie Ahearn, veteran Washington matchmaker.

Lee Perrin, who for 20 years has been connected with commercial expositions in New York, Baltimore and Washington, was named manager of the Uline Arena. It is understood that Uline's matchmaker will act as comatchmaker or assistant to Perrin in arranging the boxing ventures. Perrin, little experienced in boxing, will handle all other entertainments.

Ray Alvis Is Out

Uline definately ruled out Ray Alvis, local promoter who staged three fights in the Northeast ice arena in conjunction with Jacobs and the local ice magnate.

"He is not among the men I have in mind as a prospective matchmaker," said Uline, who was confined to his home yesterday with a minor illness.

Referring to the recent Buddy Scott-Bob Pastor fight in Griffith Stadium which drew a $2,500 house, Uline said he wanted no part in such turnouts.

"I think the three fights put on in my arena proved that Washington wants to see good fights and will turn out," he said.

He referred to the Buddy Baer-Tony Galento fight, which drew $21,000; the Billy Conn-Danny Hassett fight, which drew $13,000 and the Ernie Vigh-Steve Mamakos battle which was the best of the three but drew only $9,000.

Principals in Boxing War

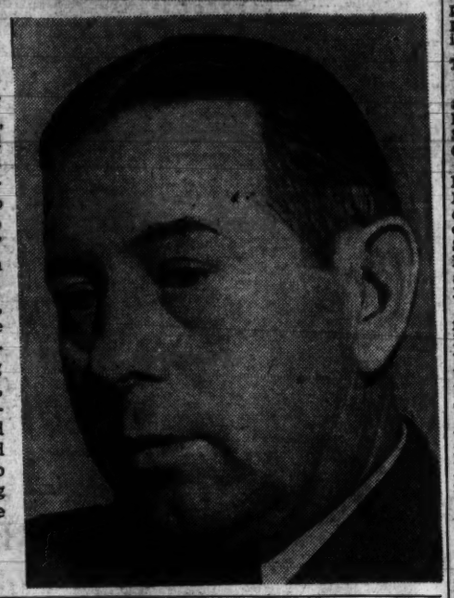
Michael J. Uline, owner of the new Uline Ice Arena, threw his hat in the fight ring in a big way yesterday when he obtained a license to promote fights in the District. Uline announced a cooperative pact with "Czar" Mike Jacobs yesterday



Chick Meehan, former football coach, has entered the fistic wars with a determination to break up Mike Jacobs' monopoly in the ring business. Meehan, head of the new Brooklyn Boxing Association, was here yesterday and flatly stated he intends to give boxing back to the public

Attacks Present Jacobs Setup as Head of Rival Ring Group in Brooklyn

Chick Meehan, who achieved national fame as a college football coach, yesterday came to Washington long enough to fire the opening blast in a new campaign to break up the reign of Mike Jacobs and the Twentieth Century Sporting Club over the Nation's professional boxing.

Meehan, new president of the Jacobs-baiting Brooklyn Boxing Association, outlined an all-out attack on what he termed an "unfair boxing monopoly" and pledged aid to any Washington promoter who would combat it.

Carefully refraining from mentioning Jacobs by name, Meehan announced his anti-monopoly campaign as he played host to newspapermen yesterday at a luncheon in the Shoreham Hotel.

To Broadcast Views

He will broadcast his views today at 5:15 p. m. from New York when he will be interviewed by Bill Stern over a National Broadcasting Company station.

Meehan's Brooklyn venture in the Dodgers' homegrounds, Ebbets Field, is designed to break the back of Jacobs' boxing structure, and it opens July 8 with Washington's Steve Mamakos fighting Tami Mauriello there in a 10-round fight as the feature on a card of four 10-rounders.

Meehan, who rose to fame in football circles as coach at Syracuse, his alma mater, New York University and Manhattan College—in the order named—left no doubts that he intends to combat Jacobs on every hand.

He said that as yet he has no intention of promoting fights in Washington and said that in view of the "number of capable men you have here," he did not think he had any business entering the Capital.

"We are in this to give boxing

Two More Ends Sign Redskin Contracts—Total Now Is 10

Aguirre, of Saints, And Vanderbilt's Heistand on Line

The Washington Redskins will be well stocked with flank talent, it appeared yesterday as two college draftees—both ends—were signed, bringing the total of ends signed for 1941 to ten.

The new men are Ed Heistand, Vanderbilt, and Joe Aguirre, St. Mary's.

Heistand is described as one of the greatest offensive ends ever to play for the Commodores and in 1939 was the fourth leading pass catcher in the Natio. Aguirre, 6 foot 2½, 215-pound flankman, was a star for three years at St. Mary's and it was his educated toe that place-kicked the field goal which beat Fordham last year.

The Redskins now have 14 draftees in the fold, more than in any previous year, and have signed a total of 36 players. The club will carry only six regular ends during the playing season.

Ching Johnson Named Coach Of Uline Six

Ching Johnson, famous hockey player of former years and more recently as a coach of Canadian teams, yesterday was signed to coach Washington's newest hockey team which will play under an American League franchise in Uline ice arena next fall and winter.

Johnson, who was a star with the New York Americans and the New York Rovers, will start building the new Washington club right away, Michael J. Uline said in announcing his signing.

As a player Johnson received many awards for outstanding stick work and Uline said he was very happy that Johnson chose to accept a year's contract here.

"We paid a pretty high price," was Uline's only comment when salary terms were mentioned.

Joe DiMaggio To Shoot for Keeler's Mark

New York, June 30.—Joe DiMaggio had his fingers crossed tonight.

This was his preliminary effort to put the jinx on a pair of Boston pitchers as prepared for an effort to equal Wee Willie Keeler's all-time hitting streak record.

Joe will employ a bat tomorrow, however, when the Yanks eet Boston in a double-header, and if he secures a hit in each of the games he will have equaled Keeler's mark of 44 consecutive games.

"This record business makes a fellow a little tense," DiMaggio said, adding:

"But when I get up to the plate tomorrow I'll try to forget about records and simply try to get my hits just as I would an yother time."

Davis Feuds Again Tonight With Zivic

New York, June 30.—The Hatfields and McCoys were gentle mountain boys compared to those flaming feudists, Pvt. Al "Bummy" Davis and Welterweight Champion Fritzie Zivic, who blaze away again tomorrow night.

This return 12-round nontitle battle was arranged by Army officers, the N. Y. Boxing Commission and Promoter Mike Jacobs to settle one of the bitterest feuds in ring history.

Because of the hatred shared by the two principals and the promise of another riotous melee, more than 35,000 fans are expected at the Giants' ball park, unless predicted showers cause a postponement to Wednesday.

Rarely has such genuine rancor fueled a fight as that which features this second meeting between the two "dead-end kids"—Davis, who became the toughest boy in Brownsville, Brooklyn's toughest bailiwick, and Zivic, who rose from the welter of fists in Pittsburgh's smokey streets.

This feud was spawend in turbulent Madison Square Garden on November 15 when Davis was disqualified in the second round after tossing more than ten low blows at Zivic's groin. After the disqualification, the already maddened Davis went completely Berserk, and in trying to annihilate Zivic, kicked Referee Billy Cavanagh in the thigh. The ring swarmed with handlers and police, and fans joined the hurly-burly by throwing anything at hand into the roped square.

Despite Bummy's promises to belt Zivic's brains out his time, Zivic is the 3-1 favorite—largely because of his excellent showing in the first round of their November encounter.

Midget Races Feature Gesell, Banks Tonight

With Ernie Gesell and Henry Banks, two of the East's outstanding drivers, in competition for the first time, West Lanham Midget Auto Speedway throws its doors open for the second time tonight for a full program of racing. The eight-race card will start promptly at 8:30.

Gesell and Banks are expected to resume their battle for recognition as this section's leading money winners. Though both were scheduled to start in last week's dedicatory program, Banks was unable to arrange his schedule to include the event and Gesell remained idle with motor difficulties.

Banks' most recent victory was at Cedarhurst, Long Island, last week when Gesell finished out of the money. Previously, however, the latter had scored three major victories in 7 days.

Other stars of the "doodleburg" circuit definitely scheduled to start for the first time tonight are Bill Schindler, the one-legged wizard; Lyle Dickey, former driver, and Ted Tappett. Last week's entries who will try again are Mike Joseph, winner in the inaugural; Walt Walker, Len Duncan, Johnny Ringer, Andy DeVercelly, Fred Bebee, Cowboy O'Connell and Henry Pierson.

Chisox Defeat Tigers, 7 to 6

By the Associated Press

Chicago, June 30.—The Chicago White Sox knocked Schoolboy Rowe out of the box in the ninth inning today and scored two runs to come from behind and beat the Detroit Tigers 7 to 6.

The Tigers had taken the lead with a run in the first half of the ninth. Singles by Joe Kuhel, Luke Appling and Julius Solters and Rudy York's error on a throw by Rowe gave the Sox the two needed runs and John Dungan Rigney his fifth victory of the season.

Rowe, who came into the game after Johnny Gorsica had been removed for a pinch-hitter in the seventh, was the losing pitcher.

The Sox made 14 hits off Gorsica, Rowe and Benton while the Tigers counted ten hits off Rigney. Joe Kuhel smashed out his eighth homer of the season in the fifth and York accounted for his sixteenth of the season in the sixth.

Giants Score 3 in 12th, Beat Braves, 3-0

Boston, June 30.—Lanky Cliff Melton, the New York Giant's southpaw, pitched a six-hit shutout against the Braves today and topped it off by cracking a single to right in the first of the twelfth to start the rally that gave the Terrymen a 3-0 victory.

There was one out when Melton got his hit. Dick Bartell's double advanced him to third, and both scored on a freak two-bagger by Johnny Rucker, whose hard grounder hit Second Baseman Carvel Rowell on the forehead and caromed into centerfield. Mel Ott's single drove in Rucker with the final run. The game was another in the long hard-luck string for Manuel Salvo. The Braves' pitcher had given up only seven hits going into the twelfth, but the defeat was his tenth in a row. His only victory was over the Phillies on the second day of the season.

Melton walked three men and fanned six in hanging up his sixth victory, compared to five defeats.

In a Reynolds portrait, I found a SECRET MESSAGE about one of Washington's finest whiskies!

IMAGINE! LEARNING HOW to buy whiskey by looking at a painting! A friend of mine, an art dealer, taught me how. He was discussing Sir Joshua Reynolds' famous portrait of Dr. Johnson, painted in 1775. "That's how I came upon Fine Arts!", he said.

"GREAT PAINTINGS are built up to perfection. First, Reynolds made a sketch of Johnson.

"THEN, warm tones were carefully blended in. Fine whiskies do this in Fine Arts.

"NEXT, Reynolds developed little details. In Fine Arts, deep-bodied whiskies are blended in.

"FINALLY, 'glazes' bring out subtleties, just as whiskies of character bring out Fine Arts' subtleties.

"NOW YOU SEE why Fine Arts is one of the finest whiskies in town. Each of the whiskies in it is perfect by itself—together they create a matchless blend." And he proceeded to demonstrate by pouring me a taste of Fine Arts. That was conclusive proof. For flavor, body and smoothness, it's the greatest whiskey I've had. Reynolds was right!

Six Dodgers Selected on N. L. All-Star Roster

15 Players Of '40 Squad Named Again

Reds, Cardinals And Cubs Place Four Men Apiece; McKechnie Manages

By Judson Bailey

Associated Press Sports Writer

New York, June 30.—The National League squad for baseball's All-Star game July 8 at Detroit was announced today, with 15 members of last year's victorious team again on the honor roll.

The Brooklyn Dodgers received most recognition with six players among the group of 25 chosen by Manager Bill McKechnie of the Cincinnati Reds with the assistance of the other pilots in the circuit.

The World Champion Reds, St. Louis Cardinals and Chicago Cubs each rated four berths Chicago, Pittsburgh and New York three each, and Philadelphia and Boston one. The rules require that every club be represented.

McKechnie, directing the senior loop crew for the second straight year, selected seven pitchers, three catchers, eight infielders and seven outfielders from the nominations of his fellow managers.

This array includes:

PITCHERS—Bucky Walters and Paul Derringer, Cincinnati; Whitley Wyatt, Brooklyn; Lon Warneke, St. Louis; Carl Hubbell, New York; Claude Passeau, Chicago, and Cy Blanton, Philadelphia.

CATCHERS—Mickey Owen, Brooklyn; Al Lopez, Pittsburgh, and Harry Danning, New York.

INFIELDERS—Johnny Mize, St. Louis; Billy Herman and Harry Lavagetto, Brooklyn; Linus Frey and Frank McCormick, Cincinnati; Stan Hack, Chicago; Arky Vaughan, Pittsburgh, and Eddie Miller, Boston.

OUTFIELDERS—Pete Reiser and Joe Medwick, Brooklyn; Terry Moore and Enos Slaughter, St. Louis; Bob Elliott, Pittsburgh; Bill Nicholson, Chicago, and Mel Ott, New York.

In addition, McKechnie named Managers Leo Durocher, of Brooklyn, and Jimmy Wilson, of Chicago; Pitcher Joe Beggs and Coach Hank Gowdy, of Cincinnati, as batting practice battery, and Dr. Richard Rhode of the Reds as trainer.

Six players who took part in the 1940 spectacle at St. Louis were not selected this year. They were: Max West, of Boston, whose three-run homer in the first inning sparked the Nationls to their 4-0 victory; Babe Phelps and Pete Coscarart, of Brooklyn; Joe Moore, of New York; Merrill May, of Philadelphia, and Larry French, of Chicago.

back to the public and make it a sport again," Meehan said.

"Boxing is no longer a sport, it has become a business monopoly . . . in which a fighter, before he is given a chance at the title, is forced to sign an iron-clad agreement with the trust giving it exclusive rights to his services.

"We are going to bring this monopoly out into the open and expose it," the former football coach who made New York University football teams feared in college circles declared.

Meehan is understood to have several influential men backing him in the new Brooklyn Boxing Association, and a powerful organization also is reported to be sanctioning his drive on the so-called fistic monopoly.

Meehan, who said he decided to enter the boxing business when a committee of New York citizens prevailed upon him to "do something about a disgusting situation," admitted frankly that his boxing knowledge is scanty.

"I'm leaving that up to my able matchmakers," he declared.

Jimmie Bronson, former adviser and chief second to Gene Tunney, and Billy Brown, are Meehan's assistants. They pulled out of the Jacobs organization to join the Flatbush group.

Jacobs has predicted ruin for the new organization and has forecast that Meehan's outfit will die after September 15 for lack of an indoor arena, such as Jacobs' Madison Square Garden.

"I can't reveal my hand, but we will be active this fall and next winter," Meehan said quietly.

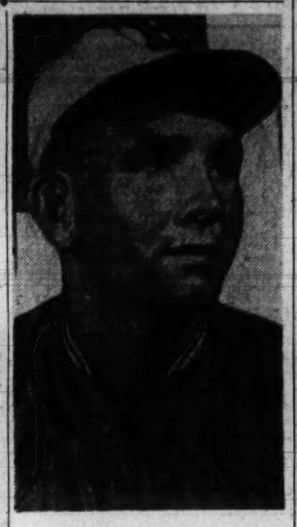
Toast of the Sandlots...



He won't be 17 years old for a month or so, but already they're calling Billy Sullivan the best pitching prospect Washington has uncovered in many years. That he's the star of the powerful Senate Beer club's staff is ample proof he has something.

One hundred and eighty pounds of very modest and likable youngster, Billy already has two years of tossing experience. And his southpaw slants have earned enviable records. Last year, naturally, was best. He won 15 and lost only three then, being beaten out in the city championships by Dixie Tavern, 1-0. His only no-hitter was recorded then, too, for Tru-Blu over the Powers Builders.

A student last year at Jefferson Junior High, Billy hopes to enter St. John's High in September. His husky build and athletic leanings will be turned to football there, and he may try basketball, too, though football is his favorite next to softball.

His first interest in softball, he says, was inspired by his brother, "Jumbo," a veteran at the game. "Jumbo" taught him the drop he puts on the ball, though "Jumbo" himself admits he has never taught Billy how to run. His heel-and-toe method doesn't exactly tend toward terrific speed.

The game he enjoyed pitching the most? Well, that was last year, he says, when he beat the famed Oklahoma Cowboys, 1-0, as the result of a one-hit performance.—BILL BURNETT.

'Young' H. & J. Club Upsets Champ Brewers in Post League

Kenny Deavers Shackles Heurich With 7-Hit Pitching; Lacey Loses

The Washington Post-Industrial League season was provided with its biggest surprise yesterday when H. and J. Construction nine, seeing its first year in competition and a cellar-dweller to this point, hung a 7-2 shellacking on the city champion Heurich Brewers on the Ellipse.

With Kenny Deavers, former Eastern High pitcher, giving up only seven hits over the route, the Constructors took their winning margin with a five-run barrage in the second inning.

Third Baseman Dorish started the Schwartz walked, and after both had been moved up by Artes' sacrifice, Outfielder Hobson doubled them home. Deavers pushed Hobson up when he was granted a walk, and both tallied on P. Jenkins' rousing triple. Jenkins himself came across the plate on Art Lacey's wild pitch.

Lacey allowed 11 safeties, three for extra bases, during the affair. The losers' only sock for more than one base was a double by Pepco Barry, who hit safely on three of his four trips to bat.

Unsigned Cub Player Gets $5 Fine in Court

Chicago, June 30 (AP).—Robert McGowan, 28, who interrupted the Chicago Cubs-Pittsburgh Pirates baseball game last Friday by leaping from the stands and sliding into second base from third, paid $5 today for the privilege.

Municipal Judge Leon Edelman imposed the fine on a disorderly conduct charge.

Senate Beats I. B. M., 3 to 1, At Ballston

One of the most exciting softball battles of the season resulted last night at Ballston Stadium as Senate Beer, leader in the Merchants Night League, nosed out I. B. M. after a nip-and-tuck battle, 3-1. Abe Rosenfield, of the winners, allowed four hits compared to the three given up by Pete Mastradonata.

In a preliminary, Standard Linen swamped Adam Hats, 17-3, behind the four-hit hurling of Rubin.

Gauzza Calls Meeting Of League Managers

Managers of the three teams which are tied for the lead in section B of the Capital City League—Perry's Restaurant, Ninth Street Lunch and Pepsi-Cola—have been asked by League President Vic Gauzza to attend a meeting tonight at the Atlas Sport Store at 5 o'clock. Details of the first section title playoff will be discussed.

Lefty Horejsi Wins

Pitching his last game for Kavakos Grill before leaving for the Officers Training Camp at Platisburg, "Lefty" Horejsi allowed only two hits yesterday as the Grillmen downed May Hardware in the Sherwood League, 13-1.

Don Canale Wins Feature In M. A. Tennis

Continuing his spectacular rush through preliminary rounds of the Middle Atlantic Tennis Tournament at Columbia Country Club, Dan Canale, Notre Dame star, ousted Charlie Channing in a torrid 3-set match yesterday.

Canale had difficulty getting started, losing the opening set by 6—4, but came ahead in the last two sets to win, 6—3, 6—4. In the opener the eventual victor had Channing at match point three times before the latter broke through for the decision. Without ruffing his slick hair, Barney Welsh, top-seeded player, moved through his match with Igor Cassini in straight sets, 6—0, and 6—2. In every case the favorite advanced yesterday in two sets, except when Ellis took a default victory over Bob Barnes.

Today the doubles go into the third round with Welsh and Hugh Lynch topping the card in a meeting with the winner of the Breese-Smith and Cassini-Moorhead match.

Yesterday's Results

Welsh defeated Cassini, 6—0, 6—2; Ellis defeated Barnes, default; Johnsen defeated E. Miller, 6—1, 6—2; Adair defeated Hutchinson, 6—4, 6—2; Leavens defeated Shenkin, 6—3, 6—3; Breese defeated Hoyt, 6—2, 6—3; Lynch defeated Williamson, 6—3, 6—3; Canale defeated Channing, 4—6, 8—3, 6—4.

Trenton made 12. The game was started in a light rain and the Nats' cautious tactics on the slippery treacherous field netted them a continual booing from the 800 fans.

Market Nine Noses GAO By 2-1 Count

Despite a 6-hit pitching effort by Les Hoff, General Accounting Office nine lost a 2-1 decision to Center Market yesterday, throwing the Departmental League standings into a deadlock between the two teams.

Joe Wells, Market hurler, was slammed for 11 hits by last year's champions, but he kept them safely scattered. The two runs which won for him were pushed over in the fourth inning when Finn doubled, Roberts walked and Remington chased Finn home with a single. The throw from Outfielder Parisi bounded away from Cather Moore and Roberts also scored on the play.

THE SPHINX IS SAID TO BE grinning

Throughout the ages, the Sphinx, squatting in the shadow of the Pyramids, has kept its cynical and set expression. Nothing to date has stirred up its placidity.

But rumor indicates that now there is a new look on the face of the Sphinx—its eyes are popping with eagerness, its nostrils are spread in luxurious sniffs, its tongue hangs out and its mouth fairly drools.

Cliff Spencer's 67, Bob Brownell's 68 Feature at Washington

Al Jamison, Partner Win Pro-Amateur

Flattery and Jones Also Figure in Pro-Am Victory; Spencer Nears Mark

By Merrell W. Whittlesey

The Middle Atlantic P. G. A. tournament committee was called to a special meeting to decide the winner of the pro-amateur yesterday at Washington Golf and Country Club—but there was no meeting required to settle the respective pro and amateur sweepstakes winners.

For Cliff Spencer, the sun-tanned East Potomac mentor, took a seven on the par four sixth hole and still played the layout in 67 strokes, three under par, to win the pro sweepstakes by two shots.

The pro-amateur was finally awarded to Al Jamison, the Bradley Hills pro and Brownell, with a 135 stroke total. Jamison posted a par 70 and Brownell a 68-3, 65.

Flattery Scores

Baltimore C. C. pro Jimmy Flattery and a club member, C. E. Jones, were winers in the pro-am in the second handicap class, Flattery with a 75 and Jones with 82-18, 63 for a 139 total.

The Beaver Dam team of Al Houghton and Arthur Keefer scored in the third class, Houghton with 69 and Keefer 91-19, 70 for 139.

Harold Gordon, a 19-year-old Georgetown student and Indian Spring member, won low net in the amateur competition with one of the greatest finishes in local tournament history, four birdies on the last four holes. Young Gordon finished 4—3—3—3, holding a sensational side-hill 20-footer on the eighteenth green which hit the cup, jumped up and settled back in. His round was 72, minus ten handicap strokes for a net 62. Gordon recently reduced his handicap from 18 to 10.

Gordon and Mel Shorey, Indian Spring pro, were originally declared winners of the pro-amateur, Gordon with 72—10—72 and Shorey with a par 70 for 132. But Shorey also had Charley Malone as a partner and each pro was allowed but one amateur with handicaps from 1 to 10.

Thus, Shorey was given Malone's score, as his lowest handicapped partner, 71-5, 66, for a 136 total, and Gordon was refunded his entry fee.

Spencer played the last 12 holes of his 67 round in seven under fours. Given a four on the sixth he would have smashed the competitive course mark by a pair of shots but he drove behind a tree, hit trees on his next two shots and was finally on in five and two-putted. He made only two long putts in his sub-par string, a 30-footer on the seventh and a 12-footer for a par on 18.

Brownell hit 16 of the 18 greens in regulation strokes in his 68 effort, dropping three birdie putts and going over on the seventeenth hole.

Cox, Houghton 2d

Wiffy Cox and Al Houghton each dropped a shot from par with 69s to tie for second in the pro-sweepstakes.

In a meeting following the play in which handicaps were discussed, the pros recommended that in all future handicap tournaments played with handicaps of six and under play from scratch. Tournaments of late have revealed some of the club handicap systems far out of line.

A near-dusk match which carried more wagers than the purse of the afternoon tournament found Mel Shorey and Charles Malone upsetting Cliff Spencer and Ralph Bogart, 1 up in 13 holes. The match was originally scheduled for nine, but was all even at that point when Malone dropped a 10-footer for a birdie deuce to square it on the ninth green. Malone holed an 18-footer to halve the eleventh and won the match on 12 when Bogart and Spencer three-putted. They halved the thirteenth in the dark.

Podesta, Hall Steal Clay Court Spot

By the Associated Press

New York, June 30.—Four highly rated Californians arrived today to begin their quest for the Eastern Clay Court tennis championship, but while spectators braved intermittent showers to watch their belated debuts, a couple of less publicized New Jersey players managed to sneak into the fourth round and assume temporary leadership over the field.

They were Jeff Podesta, of Montclair, N. J., 1938 and 1939 titlist and a quarter-finalist last year, and J. Gilbert, Hall, of East Orange, seeded seventh. Podesta blew six match points before eliminating Bob Hippenstiel, of the University of California, 6—4, 10—8, while Hall blanked Phil Ruebel, of Brooklyn.

The Pacific Coast quartet was headed by Frank Kovach, of Oakland, who ousted Jim Snyder, of New York, 6—0, 6—0. Kovacs, runner-up last year to Frank Parker, is seeded second behind the defending champion who begins play tomorrow. Jack Kramer, of Los Angeles, seeded third, dropped only one game in each set against Jim Roberts, of Boston.

Fourth-seeded Ted Schroeder, of Glendale, national doubles champion, scored at 6—1, 6—3, over Morgan Evans, of Point O'Woods, N. Y., and Ted Olewine, of Santa Monica, Calif., the national intercollegiate doubles champion, defeated Lieut. Caldwell Russell, of New York, 6—3, 6—3.

Jim Decker, of Reno, Nev., reached the third round with a 7—5, 6—1 triumph over Vincent Paul, of New York.

Most of the seeded women were on hand for their tournament with top-seeded Mrs. Sarah Palfrey Cooke, defeating Helen Lynen, of Ridgewood, N. J., 6—1, 6—1, in the first round, conquered Donalda Gillingham, of Philadelphia, 6—3, 6—2, to reach the third round after both had drawn first round byes.

Manor Women Win Team Match Title

Woodmont Easily Wins Second Team Crown, Increasing Final Margin to 20 Points

By the margin of a 6-inch putt Manor won its third consecutive Third Team Championship of the District Women's Golf Association yesterday as the long, drawn out team schedules were completed.

The Second Teams completed their play at Kenwood with Woodmont, already home as winner before the final matches, increased its margin over the second place Argyle outfit to 20 points, scoring 81½ over the 11 matches to 61½ for the runners-up. Kenwood won the first team trophy as play was completed last week.

Manor entered the third teams finals yesterday leading by eight points. They drew a bye so Army and Navy, Columbia, and Woodmont all stood a chance of overtaking the hosts.

Columbia defeated Woodmont, 6-3, eliminating both teams from first place contention and Army and Navy won, 7½ to 1½ over the last-place Kenwood outfit to fall just a half-point shy of a tie with the three-time winners. Woodmont had only three players present.

Army and Navy lost its chance to overtake Manor in the first foursome when Mrs. Walter L. Weible missed a six-inch putt on the eighteenth green to decide 2½ points. Mrs. Weible was surprised the putt wasn't a "gimmie" and she stepped up to it hit it and to the surprise of the entire foursome, it hit the back of the cup and glanced off.

Manor thus finished with 32 points Army and Navy 31½ and Columbia 30½.

Mrs. W. A. Hill, jr., and Madeline Bast were the leaders in the Manor victory with 16 out of a possible 18 points over the six-match series. Mrs. Doran S. Platt was the only regular player who helped win the cup last year while Mrs. C. E. McGowan, captain was an alternate. Mrs. H. L. Lacey and Mrs. James Hill, jr., a member of the winning team in 1939, completed the victorious sextet.

Woodmont's second-team victory followed three month's play in which the Wisconsin Avenue Club members were ahead all the way.

Woodmont's entire team received only 13 handicap strokes over the 11 matches and gave 155. Columbia's first team calibre lineup gave 295 handicap strokes and received none while Congressional gave 152½ and received 12. At the other extreme, Indian Spring received 248 handicap strokes.

The winners will all be hosts in field days today, Kenwood to the first teams; Woodmont, the second, and Manor, the third.

Pretty Coed Wins College Golf Medal

By International News Service

Columbus, Ohio, June 30.—A pretty 19-year-old coed tonight could hardly believe her eyes as she kept studying the card that brought her medal honors in the 18-hole qualifying round of the Women's National Intercollegiate Golf Tournament.

"Golly, I can't believe it," Marjorie Row, of Detroit, a junior from Michigan State, exclaimed. "I've never broken 80 before in my life."

She broke 80 with a vengeance today, however, playing a 39-36—75, five strokes under women's par for the University golf course.

Three strokes back of the excited medalist was Alberta Little, of Rollins, and Pat Grant, of Oklahoma Baptist, carded the third best score, an even-par 80.

Others Below 90

Other coeds who broke 90 to become eligible for the match play which begins tomorrow with an 18-hole round, runs through Wednesday when 36 holes are on the schedule, and concludes Thursday with an 18-hole final, included:

Eleanor Dudey, University of Aabama, 82; Betty Mackemer, Rollins, 83; Frances Ann McCanna, St. Marys of the Woods, 84; Mary Lou Eaton, Ohio State, 85; Ruth Thomas, of Hillsdale, Martha B. Bakin, of Miami, and Dorothy Hicks, of Western Reserve, 87's; Deborah Morgan, Michigan State, Marjorie Wendel, of Skidmore College, and Betty Putnam, of Arizona U., 88's; and Mary Jane Wilson, Bouve Boston School, Eddell Wortz, Stephens, and Mitzie Levine, Western Reserve, 89's.

Rillins won the team title with a 161 aggregate. Michigan State was second with 163, Western Reserve third with 16, Ohio State fourth with 183, and Purdue fifth with 191.

Paul Runyan Leads Field In Mass. Open

Osterville, Mass., June 30.—After erasing all of his mistakes on the putting green with his deadly accuracy, Paul Runyan, the two-time P. G. A. champion from White Plains, N. Y., topped the star-studded Massachusetts Open Golf field at halfway mark of the 72-hole competition today by posting a pair of 2 under 70's at Oyster Harbors.

Runyan, whose 140 total gave him a 2 strokes lead over Horton Smith, of Pinehurst, N. C., the defending champion, was erratic off the tees during his first round and, as soon as he corrected that flaw, he discovered weaknesses in his short iron game.

Smith opened with a 4 under 68, but went 2 over on his second round for a total of 142. He was one stroke better than honeymooning Willie Turnesa, of Detroit, the 1938 National Amateur titlist; Harold (Jug) McSpaden, of Winchester, a three-time winner of this event, and Herman Barron, of White Plains, N. Y.

Interior Netmen Beat Farm Credit

Interior Department Recreation Association tennis team turned in a convincing 5-0 victory over Farm Credit yesterday on the Maui courts.

Following are the results:

A.) defeated Stimmons and Margolin, 6—0, 6—2; Witchener and Miller (I. D. R. A.) defeated J. Hulbert and H. Hulbert, 8—6, 6—2; Davidson and Murata (I. D. R. A.) defeated Vincent and Flannery, 6—1, 8—10, 6—4.

Metz Sets American Golf Record With 131 for 36-Hole Round

By International News Service

Kankakee, Ill., June 30.—Dick Metz, of Oak Park, Ill., professional, set a new American golf record for 36 holes of tournament play, a check of the record book revealed tonight.

Metz, playing in the Midwest Open, shot a 63—68—131 in the final two rounds yesterday. Although his card yesterday was 10 strokes below par, he finished with a 272 for second place, two strokes behind the winner, Lloyd Mangrum.

The previous 36-hole record was held jointly by Henry Cotton, who carded 132 in the 1934 British Open; Jim Ferrier, who produced the same card in the New South Wales Amateur in 1935, and Lawson Little, who carded his 132 in the 1936 Canadian Open.

Pimlico Lady Scores Two-Length Victory at Charles Town

Scocca Turns in Exceptional Ride Over Heavy Course; StonehavenPays$106

By Walter Haight

A Staff Correspondent

Charles Town, W. Va., June 30.—Pimlico Lady, owned by G. G. Waugh, jr., showed a liking for a heavy track this afternoon and romped off with first money in the Hagerstown Purse, featuring the wash day program at this racing center. Two and a half lengths behind the 4-year-old daughter of Okapi came Capt. Edwart Johnston's Clay Hill to be second, three parts of a length in advance of C. W. Davis' Storminess.

Pimlico Lady was luke warm in the wagering and returned $12.60 for each $2 investment. The filly was clocked in 1:20 1-5 for the about 6 furlongs over an oval that was drying out after a heavy downpour early this morning.

Jockey Danny Scocca, Washington boy, put up a whale of a ride on Pimlico Lady. He steadied her along while Blablah set the early pace and roused her on the backstretch. Pimlico Lady responded by disposing of Blablah and pulled out to a daylight lead. Scocca took no chances and kept her going right down to the wire. Clay Hill rallied mildly to take the pace from Storminess which gained ground by coming through on the inside entering the stretch.

The big monetary punch on the program was a surprise victory by D. Mitchel's Stonehaven. This 5-year-old mare virtually ran over horses to get in front on the backstretch in the third race and bounded home in front of her nearest opposition. She paid a $106.60 individual mutuel and put the finishing touches on a $232.40 daily double. Hiblaze, a $3.80 favorite racing for W. C. Waple, had won the second race from Highland Song, Don Dash and five others.

Jockey Willie Kelly, leading rider at the meeting, added a winner to his string in the fourth race by bringing E. R. Pike's Seplin along on the inside to pay $27.40. Jockey Albert Vesseli took the fifth race with an excellent driving finish aboard Hot Man, a $5 choice.

Dear Al:

Friend Richmond B. Keech, once star fullback for the Business High football team and now District Corporation Counsel, is so busy these days that he is unable to give attention to colts and mares he has acquired. He has a number of young horses which should make good hunters and would like to sell them. Call him at National 6000. Nick Saegmuller, field secretary of the Virginia Horseman's Association, writes to remind me that at the recent United Hunts meeting five of the eight races were won by Virginia-bred horses. He also calls attention to the fact that the sire, Belfonds, is getting results, pointing out that Home Wolf, owned by Colin MacLeod, jr., of Middleburg, equaled the track record at Aqueduct in the mud. M. B. Goss, of Winchester, Va., claimed Hot Man, winner of yesterday's feature race, for $1,200 from Mrs. Anderson. If Jockey Willie Kelly wins the saddle championship here, and he is out in front at this writing, the man who deserves a lot of credit will be Sanford (Pete) Ptersen. He is Kelly's agent and he stages a battle for mounts every day with Jack McKenzie, who handles the book for Sammy Palumbo. Both boys are good riders, so the race is simmering down to the best horses. Petersen hails from Johnstown, Pa. McKenzie is a former jockey and is from Hagerstown. We now have two horse auctions coming up. C. M. Feltner will sell some 20 head tomorrow morning in the paddock, starting at 10:30 a. m. On Friday morning at the same hour, H. O. Wilt will put his four-horse stable on the block. Business is taking all of Wilt' time and so he is selling Tavern, Morroco D., Trixie Lass and Lead Please. Tavern and Morocco D. each have won two races at the meeting while the other pair have been in the money. Wilt lives at nearby Rippon, W. Va. I have several letters suggesting that Jockey Buddy Root ride Clymene next time she goes. I'll see if that can be arranged. See you on the rail.

BILL.

First race—COLORED POST turned in a creditable race here and promises to improve off that effort. I'm going to string along. LADY BUCK likes this sprint route and showed speed recently. GOLDEN KEY to take care of the others.

Second race—TAUT seems to have found the right spot in this field. Needs only the right handling. CHIDE raced well recently and promises to be a threat. FULTON B. has keen early speed and may forget to stop.

Third race—ASTER LADY is a flash from the gate and won with a front-running effort earlier in the meeting. If she can beat this gang to the first turn it will be all over but the pay-off. CHAKRA and PART ONE to take care of the others.

Fourth race—FUSIONETTE gets an inside post and a light assignment. Deserves the call over these routers. DANZIG is improving gradually and looms as one to beat. COUNTERPART gets in with a feather.

Fifth race—I'm going to string along with DRESSMAKER in this field. This one closes like the wind and that 100-pound assignment should help. TIME SCOUT'S last was a beaut. There is plenty of strength on the reserve list with SCHLEY GOREE and TAVERN probably the best.

Sixth race—MARANDAN has some class and probably will take the day's feature event. OWALLER has plenty of early foot and will have to be caught. FLAG ETTA may find the route too short.

Seventh race—PAMUNKEY breaks off the rail and should make every post a winning one in this company. CHANNING is rounding into form. SUNSWEEP for the minor award.

Eighth race—GROUCHY is improving and may be ready to take a purse in this field. QUILL downed TRANSDAY last out but needs a fast track for a best effort. KELLY'S LAD is a possiblity.

Sub race—If this event is used I'll take OF COURSE, SAIL BY and GREAT SARAH.

Best bet—PAMUNKEY.

Meade Misses Race With Family Ill

New York, June 30 (AP).—Jockey Don Meade cancelled his mount in the last race at Aqueduct today and prepared to fly to his home at Plankington, S. D., because of an illness in his family.

He told friends his two grandmothers were seriously ill and asking to see him. He planned to fly to Omaha tonight.

Pepco's Net Decreases in Fiscal Year

Despite a record volume of business, the Potomac Electric Power Company yesterday reported that net income in the fiscal year ended May 31, 1941, was below that of the previous fiscal year.

Net profit, the company's statement showed, totaled $3,620,953 in the 12 months ended May 31, as compared with $3,758,487 in the fiscal year ended May 31, 1940.

Operating revenues soared to $17,227,525, against $16,241,319 in the previous year but—

Operating expenses and taxes jumped to $21,399,781 as compared with $11,415,801 in the previous fiscal year. Both figures include allowance for depreciation.

Taxes, other than income taxes, advanced to $1,413,110. In the previous 12 months, these were $1,242,864. Provision for Federal income taxes anticipating a sharp increase, was $1,208,215, as compared with $1,053,349 in the 12 months ended May 31, 1940.

At the same time the income statement of Washington Railway and Electric Company was issued, showing net income for the fiscal year ended May 31, 11941, totaled $2,901,610.

A. G. Neal is president of the Potomac Electric Power Co. and of the Washington Railway and Electric Co. All of the outstanding common stock of Potomac Electric and about 50 per cent of the outstanding stock of Capital Transit are owned by Washington Railway and Electric Company which in turn is largely owned by North American Company.

No figures are availabale for W. R. & E's earnings for the fiscal year ended May 31, 1940. Yesterday's statement was the first interim one ever released here.

North American Unit Postpones Vote on Breakup

Wilmington, Del., June 30 (AP).—Stockholders of the North American Light & Power Co. met here today and immediately adjourned until July 21 at 2 p. m. (E. S. T.) under an agreement reached here last Friday during hearing of a Federal Court case.

As agreed, the North American Co., parent concern of a vast utility system embracing Light & Power, voted its majority stock for adjournment.

Judge John P. Nields, of U. S. Disrtict Court, has indicated that before the meeting he will announce a decision on an injunction asked by the Securities and Exchange Commission to restrain North American from voting its stock for dissolution of the subsidiary.

McKesson Issue Awarded in N. Y.

New York, June 30 (AP).—An underwriting syndicate headed by Kidder, Peabody & Co., Lazard Freres & Co., and F. S. Moseley & Co. today entered successful bids for $13,700,000 15-year sinking fund debentures and 56,000 shares of 5¼ per cent cumulative preferred stock of McKesson & Robbins, Inc.

The syndicate's bid for the debentures of the reorganized drug concern was 103.17 for 3½s; for the preferred stock, $100 par, the bid was $99.84 a share.

William J. Wardall, trustee of McKesson & Robbins announced he was turning over to the new company the assets which he has held in trust since his appointment as trustee on December 8, 1938, but would retain cash, which with the proceeds from the sale of the new securities will be sufficient to permit the payment of all creditors in full.

Wholesale Orders Show 32% Gain

Sales of 2,905 wholesale firms in 35 different businesses, the Commerce Department says, amounted to $303,634,000 during May, which was an increase of 4 per cent over April and 32 per cent over May, 1940.

Reports from 1,811 of the firms showed inventories totaling $269,365,000, an increase of 1 per cent over April and 16 per cent over May of last year. It was the twenty-second month in which inventories increased over the corresponding month of the previous year.

Cotton Seat Price Drops

New York, June 30 (AP).—A membership in the New York Cotton Exchange sold today for $3,500, a price $650 below the previous transaction.

New York Cotton

New York, June 30 (AP).—Cotton futures whistled upward from maximum losses of as much as $1 a bale to gains as high as 40 cents a bale today, then finally closed 15 to 50 cents a bale lower on uneasiness over Federal price fixing possibilities.

Principal sellers were commission houses, New Orleans accounts and brokers with Memphis connections.

A more favorable weather report from the cotton belt, particularly in the West, was considered a factor in the decline.

There was virtually no trading in the Worth Street cotton gray goods market as dealers sought to dispell confustion resulting from the imposition of price ceilings by the Federal Government Saturday.

Defense Bond Questionnaire

Q—Could the Government stop offering Defense Bonds, and raise all the money it needs through taxes alone?

A—No. Excessive taxes always lead to national ruin.

Q—By buying all the Defense Bonds I can afford, and then some, do I do anything to keep taxes down?

A—Yes. If you will do this, and influence all your friends to do this, you will produce a great effect. The more money raised by borrowing, the less need be raised by taxation.

Q—Where does the Government spend the money raised by Defense Bonds?

A—This money is spent in the United States. It helps to pay, train, arm, feed, clothe, and house the men in our Army, Navy, Marine Corps, and defense industries. It buys all the materials which these men need, thus helping the workers, farmers, merchants, manufacturers, and transportation men all over America.

Q—Can I sell or transfer a Defense Bond to a friend or a dealer in stocks and bonds?

A—No. The bond, for your protection, is registered in your name. But you can cash it at any time, after sixty days, for the full amount you paid, plus any interest due you.

NOTE—To purchase Defense Bonds and Stamps, go to the nearest post office or bank, or write for information to the Treasurer of the United States, Washington.

Rubber Orders Limited to Needs

New York, June 30 (AP).—United States Rubber Company today notified customers it would have to limit their future orders to "actual requirements" during the emergency period.

Citing the Office of Production Management's order for the conservation of supply anad direct distribution of rubber, the company said the curtailment "will make necessary drastic reductions in our production resulting in inability to give our rural service to regular customers."

Ship Equipment Plants Planned

New York, June 30 (AP).—Charles E. Wilson, president of the General Electric Company, today announced plans for the construction of two plants which will maanufacture propulsion equipment for merchant ships—with Government funds.

The plants will be built in Erie, Pa., and Lynn, Mass., at a cost of between $20,000,000 and $25,000,000 under a lease agreement with the Defense Plant Corporation. The former will produce turbines, the latter reduction gears.

Stocks Point Lower in Torpid Trading; Turnover Shrinks to 271,650 Shares

New York, June 30.—The stock market today stepped out of June and the first half of the year with minus signs predominating but without any particular show of weakness.

Buying reluctance was apparent from the start of the proceedings and brokers blamed the timidity mainly on German claims Nazi troops had driven almost half the way to Moscow. Red forces, though, were out with counterclaims, all of which was hardly conducive to any spirited bidding by market bulls.

Business developments were more or less comforting, but here the trend toward Federal price fixing was thought to have proven somewhat of a speculative handicap.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was off .1 of a point at 41.8 but for the month retained a net advance of 2 full points. For the six months the composite was off 2.1 points and, compared with the conclusion of the first half of 1940, was up .3.

The day's dealing were among the slowest for the year to date, totaling 271,650 shares against 408,640 last Friday. In surveying the six-month's stretch, commission houses found little to cheer about in discovering that the volume was just about half that of the like period a year ago.

In the day's home news budget was the estimated drop of 6.2 points in this week's steel mill operations, although the recession was much less than normal for the independence holiday week owing to pressing defense needs for the metal.

Stocks down fractions to a point or so included U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, General Motors, Chrysler, Southern Pacific, Anaconda, U. S. Rubber, Douglas Aircraft, Westinghouse, Borden, Woolworth, International Harvester and Western Union.

On the other side of the fence with fractional gains were American Telephone, Oliver Farm, American Smelting, Johns-Manville, Texas Corporation, Southern Railway and United Aircraft. Standard Oil (N. J.), American Woolen preferred and Pathe registered new 1941 tops.

Among losers in a ragged Curb were Phoenix Securities, Aluminum of America, Gulf Oil and Humble Oil. Brewster Aero edged upward along with American Cyanamid "B," Creole Petroleum and Sherwin Williams. Transfers here approximated 52,000 shares versus 98,000 Friday.

A selected group of foreign bonds moved to new highs for the year today as the general list hovered close to Saturday's price.

Denmark 6s rose 3⅛, Queensland 7s were up 1½ at 97½, Norway 4¼s added 1¼ at 39¼ and gains of a point each were registered by several others, including Uruguay adjustment 3¾s, Sao Paulo stamped 7s and Rome 6½s. Japan 6½ rose 3½ to 72½ but the 5½s lost a point.

Turnover of $5,000,750, par value, was the lowest in more than a week, and compared with $10,364,300 last Friday. The Associated Press average of ten foreign issues advanced .3 of a point to 47.3, a new 1941 high. Changes in other groups were negligible.

United States Governments moved in a narrow range on the Stock Exchange and over the counter. A few medium term treasuries were up an average of ⅛ of a point while others lost as much.

Rail Passenger Revenues Seen Best Since 1931

New York, June 30 (AP)—Railroad circles estimated today that at the present rate passenger revenues for 1941 should top $500,000,000 for the first time since 1931, when the total was $551,000,000.

Passenger business started upward last December, these sources said, and has continued to rise above the rate for last year, when the total was $453,000,000.

Among factors credited for the increase were extensive movement of troops, travel of visitors and soldiers to and from cantonments, more travel by business men and vacationing in this country rather than in Europe.

Sleeping and parlor car revenues for the first quarter of this year passed coach revenues, including commuting business. Since the better class traffic nets the railroads more from higher fares, this was considered a factor in the upturn.

Steel Operations Slacken in Week Due to Holiday

New York, June 30 (AP)—Steel mills will operate this week at an average of 93.7 per cent of capacity, the American Iron & Steel Institute estimated today.

This level compares with 99.9 per cent in the preceding week, the drop being accounted for by some trimming of schedules for the July 4 holiday. A month ago operations were at 99.2 per cent and a year ago 74.2 per cent.

Steel circles pointed out that the July 4 holiday recession will be slight as compared with recent years because of pressure on mills for defense metal deliveries. Last year the holiday curtailment brought a drop of 12 percentage points.

The Federal Reserve Board said yesterday that check debits in banks of 274 leading cities totaled $9,997,000,000 in the week ended June 25, compared with $11,494,000,000 in the preceding week and $7,743,000,000 in the corresponding week last year.

Comparisons with a year ago, by Federal Reserve districts (in millions of dollars) follow:

Air Transport Reviewed

The expanding air transport industry faces the greatest period of growth in its history during the next ten years, according to an illustraated analysis of the industry prepared by Merrill Lynch, E. A. Pierce & Cassatt, and released here.

Despite the fact that air travel expanded ninefold in the past decade—and air transport companies as a group operated profitably for the first time in 1939—the future potentialities of air transportation are tremendous, and thus far the surface has hardly been scratched, according to the study.

Highlights of the booklet include: Facts and figures about the air transportation industry as a whole; history, business facts and figures on ten leading airline companies; illustrations tracing evolution of airplanes from the time the Wright Brothers in 1903 made the first airplane flight in history at Kitty Hawk, N. C., through the period of barnstorming and hedge-hopping to the superb transcontinental and transoceanic airliners of today; maps showing the growth of airline companies during the last 15 years; tables showing comparison with the railroad industry.

The Oriental Building Association, oldest of its kind in Washington, today will mark the eightieth anniversary of its founding. Located at 600 F Street Northwest, the association is headed by the following officers: President, Chapin B. Bauman; secretary, Ralph A. Xander; treasurer, John George Kolb.

Directors are Carl C. Haneke, William H. Grass, John J. Kolb, Mr. Bauman, Thomas B. Young, Louis C. Dismer, C. Albert Parker, Mr. Xander, Mr. Kolb, Dr. Frederick H. Morhart, Frederick W. Schneider.

The building unit is a member of the United States Savings & Loan League, the Federal Home Loan Bank, and District of Columbia Building & Loan League.

U. A. L. Express Sets Peak

United Air Lines planes flew 252,262,401 pound-miles of express during May, the largest volume of air express ever carried by any domestic airline in a single month, U. A. L. officials said yesterday.

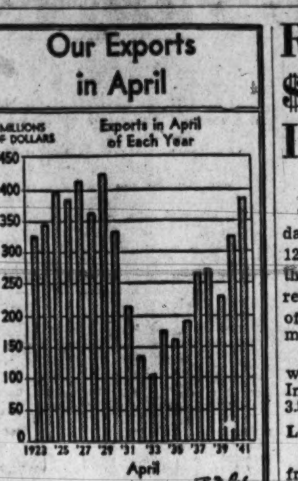
This was a gain of 10 per cent over October last year, previously the best month, and an increase of 40 per cent over May, 1940. Continued heavy movement of shipments linked with national defense was held a major factor in the May gain.

Lumber Production Index Shows Climb

By the Associated Press

The National Lumber Manufacturing Association reported yesterday that lumber production for the week ended June 21 stood at 124 per cent of the average of the corresponding week 1935--1939 and shipments 134 per cent.

Production totaled 262,146,000 feet, which was 2 per cent greater than the previous week, and 10 per cent greater than the corresponding week a year ago.



Cottonseed Oil Leads Drop in Commodities

By the Associated Press

Commodity futures prices yesterday were generally lower, cottonseed oil dropping the full cent a pound permitted under a rule of the New York Produce Exchange, as a result of the Government's move toward additional price-fixing.

Cotton closed 15 to 50 cents a bale under Saturday's level, silk was .03½ to .06½ cent a pound off. Hides lost from .05 to .08 cent a pound and rubber, now under Government control, was .05 cent higher to .15 cent a pound lower.

Santos Coffee caught some of the reaction and lost from .23 to .25 cent a pound. Cocoa was .12 of a cent a pound lower, world sugar contracts dropped .01 to .02 cent a pound and domestic sugar was cheaper by .01½ to .03 cent.

In Chicago, wheat moved against the trend, gaining from 1 to 1½ cents a bushel, and corn was unchanged to ⅜ cent a bushel higher.

The Associated Press index of 35 wholesale spot staples dropped to 88.50 per cent of the 1926 average, compared with 89.06 per cent Saturday.

Wheat Prices Rally

Chicago, June 30 (AP).—Wheat prices rose as much as 1⅝ cents early today in recovering from Saturday's slump and then spent the remainder of the session fluctuating nervously near top levels of the day.

Mill buying, some of which was associated with Government purchases of flour, and short covering and reinvestment operations accounted for the strength. Limiting the rally, however, was selling associated with increased movement of new wheat in the Southwest and weakness of soybeans and lard. After the close it was reported the Government purchased 399,900 barrels of enriched white flour, 128,100 barrels of graham flour, 75,000 barrels of corn grits and 34,650,000 pounds of oats cereal.

Wheat closed 1@1½ cents higher than Saturday, July $1.04⅜@$1.04¼, September $1.05⅞@$1.05¾; corn unchanged to ⅜ up, July 73⅝, September 76¼; oats ⅞@1⅛ higher, soybeans 2⅜@3¼ lower; rye ½@1⅛ higher and lard 17@20.

Rail Nets Up $154,269,802 In 5 Months

By the Associated Press

Class 1 railroads reported yesterday that they had earned $342,702,129, before interest and rentals, in the first five months of 1941. This represented an annual rate of return of 4.03 per cent on property investment.

The corresponding 1940 figures were $197,432,327 and 2.34 per cent. In 1930 they were $301,732,780 and 3.51 per cent.

Loadings to Gain 14.8 Per Cent

New York, June 30 (AP).—Railroad freight carloadings in the third quarter are expected to be 14.8 per cent greater than actual loadings in the comparable 1940 period, the 13 shippers advisory boards estimated today. All of the 13 regions represented by the boards will show an increase.

The Alleghany board, covering the steel and anthracite regions, estimated loadings would increase 25.3 per cent. This was the largest gain estimated by any board.

Rails Buy Equipment

New York, June 30 (AP).—Railway Age said today that the Union Pacific Railroad has ordered 2,500 freight car underframes from Mount Vernon Car Manufacturing Co.

American Car & Foundry Co. has been awarded contracts for 200 gondola cars by the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railroad and 150 automobile cars by Central of Georgia.

Sugar Futures

New York, June 30 (AP).—World sugar futures slumped today under the impetus of hedging and liquidation, and prices ranged 1½ to 3 points lower at the close. Total sales were 16,900 tons.

Domestic futures declined 1 to 2 points on transfers of 13,000 tons.

There was a light volume of raw sugar sold at 3.55 cents a pound, and reports said some was available under that.

Refined Syrups Sales Corporation announced a new price of 4.90 cents a pound for July shipment and said orders previously taken for refined sugar at 5 cents would be repriced.

Mrs. Digges, Carter Glass' Daughter, Dies

Mrs. Isaac Watlington Digges, 42, of Westchester County, N. Y., daughter of Senator Glass, of Virginia, died yesterday of a heart attack, it was learned here.

Mrs. Digges' brother-in-law, John Boatwright, of Danville, Va., went by airplane yesterday to New York to arrange for the funeral, which will be held at Montview, the home of Senator Glass, at Lynchburg, Va., at a time to be announced, it was said at the Senator's office.

Mrs. Digges was well known in Washington circles. Her marriage to Mr. Digges, a New York attorney, took place here in the drawing room of the Raleigh Hotel on January 4, 1934.

Mrs. Digges had been in ill health for several weeks. Born in Lynchburg, she was educated at Gunston Hall and had worked for a while on the staff of Time Magazine. She was active on behalf of the United Service Organizations since the start of that movement.

Surviving, besides her father, are a sister, Mrs. John Boatwright, of Danville, and two brothers, Powell Glass and Carter Glass, jr., of Lynchburg.

Jackson Wins Court Approval Despite Attack

The Senate Judiciary Committee yesterday gave unanimous approval to the appointment of Robert H. Jackson to the Supreme Court, despite an angry assertion by Senator Tydings (Democrat), of Maryland, that the Attorney General "hasn't the character, integrity or judicial temperament to sit on the Supreme Court."

Tydings appeared before a Judiciary subcommittee to denounce Jackson for his refusal to order a criminal libel prosecution of newspaper columnists who charged that the Maryland Senator had arranged for WPA construction of a road and yacht basin on his estate near Havre de Grace.

Charges Declared False

The Attorney General, testifying at the same hearing, said an FBI investigation had disclosed no truth in the columnists' charge against Tydings but that he did not believe the Justice Department should undertake criminal libel prosecutions "where there has been no breach of the peace or other public injury done by the libel" and where the person aggrieved has "ample means" to institute a civil suit.

"I know I have made hundreds of mistakes as attorney general," Jackson told the subcommittee, "but this wasn't one of them."

Tydings asked the Justice Department to take action in the case in January, 1940, after Drew Pearson and Robert S. Allen had accused him in a radio broadcast of putting through "a very interesting little deal" resulting in improvement of his property by WPA workers.

Lack of Candor Charged

The Attorney General's refusal to prosecute was characteristic, Tydings said, of "the weasel words, lack of candor and lack of resolution that have marked the Justice Department under Jackson."

Tydings rose from his chair to face Jackson and the subcommittee members as he shouted that the Attorney General was given to "crooked thinking" and that "every man on this committee knows in his heart" that his nomination to the Supreme Court should not be confirmed.

Senator O'Mahoney (Democrat), of Wyoming, a subcommittee member, commented that "the record shows indisputably that no WPA expenditures were made on Senator Tydings' property, but that is not the issue here."

"The only question for us," Senator Hatch (Democrat), of New Mexico, explained, "is whether the Attorney General's decision of policy in this case was such a decision that it shows he is an unfit person to be a Justice of the Supreme Court."

The subcommittee took only 5 minutes to report the nomination favorably, and the full committee gave its approval immediately afterward.

Tydings said he will continue his fight against confirmation of Jackson when the nomination reaches the Senate floor, probably on Thursday.

D. C. Summer Schools Open This Morning

Public summer school sessions for senior high, junior high and elementary school pupils will open in the District at 8:30 a. m. today.

The term will continue for 30 school days, ending Friday, August 8, according to E. J. Lockwood, director of Evening and Summer Schools for the District. He said that the schools would be in session on two Saturdays, July 12 and 19, in order to make up the required number of days.

Sixteen District school buildings will be used for the summer sessions. The senior high group will meet at the Central High School, Thirteenth and Clifton Streets Northwest, and the junior high, in the Macfarland Junior High, Iowa Avenue and Webster Street Northwest, and the Stuart Junior High, Fourth and E Streets Northeast.

Elementary and Americanization classes will be held in 13 schools throughout the city.

The session are open to pupils from outside the District, Lockwood said, but only upon written request of their school principals.

Courses are being offered in English, mathematics, languages, history, civics and the sciences, as well as business courses such as typing and shorthand.

Louisiana Reform Act Held Illegal

By the United Press

New Orleans, June 30.—The Louisiana supreme court today declared unconstitutional the reorganization act and amendment, key measures of Gov. Sam Jones' "reform" administration, while the Governor surrounded himself with 30 armed State police in the skyscraper capitol in Baton Rouge in defiance of a subpena.

The subpena was for Jones to appear in another court for a hearing on an injunction an administration measure creating a crime commission.

Senator Joe T. Cawthon, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, telegraphed to Jones a request that he call a special session of the legislature:

"It is very evident the chaos in this State wdill grow worse unless you call the legislature together immediately."

The 5-to-2 supreme court decision was the greatest jolt felt so far by the administration which ousted the heirs of Huey P. Long.

Jones and Attorney General Eugene Stanley reserved comment on effect of the Supreme court ruling until they had studied the majority opinion. Any change in State departments was expected to be delayed at least two weeks by a State petition for a rehearing. Ruling on such a petition probably would come down between July 18 and 28.

Jones and the Attorney General previously said a ruling that the reorganization act was unconstitutional would cause "chaos."

By Executive Order, Jones had set up 16 of the 20 new departments provided in the reorganization program. The four others were scheduled to have been established this summer.

Just before the decision came down in New Orleans, Revenue Director Martin Close said in Baton Rouge that State finances would be paralyzed if the high court upheld the unconstitutionality ruling last March by District Judge James D. Womack, of East Baton Rouge Parish.

Latin America Reported 'Fed Up' With Missions

Douglas Fairbanks, jr., just back from a tour of Latin-American countries for the Nelson Rockefeller committee, declared yesterday that South America is "fed up" with good-will missions from the United States. He decried description of his visit as that of a "good-will ambassador," asserting that President Roosevelt and the State Department sent him as a "fact finder." He said that one of the facts he learned was that Latin America would prefer more practical cooperation in a cultural an deconomic way than a flock of public-speaking good-will envoys.

Fairbanks, who reported to Acting Secretary of State Welles, urged that more Latin Amreican leaders be invited to the United States.

THE McGILLICUDDY SPECIAL

UNCHANGING AS THE GREAT WALL OF CHINA IS "CONNIE MACK" McGILLICUDDY'S TASTE IN COLLARS. THE ATHLETICS' GRAND OLD MAN ORDERS THEM DIRECT FROM THE FACTORY—BECAUSE MOST DEPARTMENT STORES HAVE STOPPED CARRYING THE HIGH STARCHED CHOKER MODEL HE'S WORN SINCE HE WAS SEVENTEEN.

DON'T TELL GOERING

SUGGESTIONS ARE ALWAYS IN ORDER.

Some fellows seem to have all the luck. Take the case of John McCartney, the radio technician, whose job it is to put on the air the "Kate Smith Speaks" program which you hear over WJSV and the Columbia network every day at 11 a. m.

Well, Kate Smith has elected to spend her summer at Lake Placid, one of upper New York State's pleasantest vacation spots, with lots of trees, and lakes and cool air and all that sort of thing about constantly.

And so that means that McCartney, too, has to spend his summer at Lake Placid, getting all those things and his salary besides and all he has to do is put in about an hour a day getting things ready for the broadcast.

When his fellow engineers look at him rather balefully, pretty green with envy, Mac manfully points out that in the winter time he often has to work 16 hours a day on Kate Smith's shows, what with rehearsals for the "Variety Hour" as well as for the daily broadcast chat—but, unfortunately, they're not any the less envious.

In addition to putting in hours of fishing, swimming, golfing and what have you, in his fine Adirondack Mountain resort all summer, John has the worry, much as he has in the city, of commuting to work every day—but it's in a speed boat instead of in the subway.

Contract Bridge

♠KJ72
♡Q107
♢Q1082
♣75

The bidding has gone:

South	West	North	East
1♡	Pass	2♣	Pass
3♡	Pass	3NT	Pass
4♡	Pass	Pass	Pass

What is your opening lead?

Answer

If you open a trump you will probably lose your queen and if you play a spade or a diamond you may be leading right into an opposing tenace. Although North bid clubs, they were neither rebid nor supported by his partner. It looks as if East has the balance of the club strength and you should open that suit.
